45 DAYS' PASSENGER SERVICE BETWEEN NEW ZEALAND and LONDON.

The following splendid steamers are appointed to leave NEW ZEALAND for LONDON DIRECT as follow (Final Port as arranged):—

Steamer.	Tons Register.	Horse-power.	Date of Departure.
DORIC	4744	3000	March 22.
TAINUI	5000	3500	April 12.
COPTIC	4367	3000	May 9.
ARAWA	5200	3500	June 6.
IONIC	4753	3000	July 4.
DORIC	4744	3000	August 11.

The above steamers are all built of steel, and have unequalled accommodation for all classes of passengers. The White Star steamers Ionic, Doric, and Coptic are the same that have established so high a reputation on the Atlantic and Japan and San Francisco services. Passengers will have an opportunity of seeing the many beauties of New Zealand scenery, and will escape the heat of the Red Sea passage. Every luxury and comfort supplied, and fares at the most reasonable rates.

For further particulars, apply to

DALGETY and COMPANY, LIMITED,

Agents,

5, Bent-street.

THE NEW ZEALAND SHIPPING COMPANY'S ROYAL MAIL LINE OF STEAMERS

(under contract with the New Zealand Government), will be despatched with Her Majesty's Mails as under for London, via Rio de Janeiro and Madeira:—

FROM LYTTELTON:

Steamer.	Tonnage.	Commander.	Date.
RIMUTAKA	4750	Hallett	March 14

TONGARIRO	4163	Boys	June 4
AORANGI	4163	Turpin	July 2

And thenceforward every fourth Thursday.

The above are all magnificent new steel steamers, having most experienced commanders. The passenger accommodation is replete with every modern convenience, and the dietary scale such as will well sustain the Company's reputation.

The homeward route is via the Straits of Magellan (weather permitting), and the time of journey is not expected to exceed 45 days.  Passengers by this route avoid the intense heat experienced in the Suez Canal and Red Sea.

The steamers will call at Rio de Janeiro, universally pronounced the loveliest harbour in the world.

An experienced surgeon will accompany each steamer.

Passage money—Saloon, from 60 guineas; second cabin, 40 guineas; steerage, 18 to 20 guineas.

For further particulars apply to

MASON BROTHERS, Limited, Sydney,

where plans of cabins can be seen and passages booked at through rates from Sydney, thus affording travellers the additional advantage of visiting New Zealand.

EXCURSION SEASON ARRANGEMENTS, 1885.

EXCURSIONS TO SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

In consequence of the marked success of the trips made in June and July, 1884, the company intend organising, in July, 1885—July having proved to be the best month of the year for visiting the South Seas—a third excursion to the beautiful islands of the South Pacific. The trip will occupy one month from Auckland, one-half of the time being spent at sea, and one-half on shore, during which will be visited

FIJI, SAMOA, TONGA.

Fare, £40 from Auckland.

Should sufficient inducement offer, a second trip will be made on the return of the steamer in August, when Fiji will be omitted, and the excursion will be extended to embrace and others of the beautiful groups of the South Seas.

SAMOA

TAHITI,

Fare, £60 from Auckland.

For fuller particulars see Supplement the Australasian 17th January.

Townsville—Saloon, £4; return, £7 5s. Steerage, £2 5s.

Corresponding reductions to other ports.

The undersigned have now arranged the movements of their steamers so that passengers for Queensland can call successively at all Northern Ports as far as Townsville. Steamers leaving Brisbane on Tuesdays call at MARYBOROUGH, ROCKHAMPTON, MACKAY, and TOWNSVILLE.

Passengers by these steamers may rely upon

A SMOOTH PASSAGE

north of Brisbane, as they will go inside of Fraser's Island, thus

AVOIDING BREAKSEA SPIT,

and the discomfort which going round the Spit involves. PASSENGERS for ROCKHAMPTON also are taken up to the town, thus AVOIDING the ANNOYANCE and DELAY of TRANSHIPPING INTO a STEAM LAUNCH in Keppel Bay.

FOR PASSENGERS the excellent accommodation provided in the BARRABOOL is well and favourably known.

For freight and passage apply to

THE WILMER PIANO.
THE CELEBRATED No. 11 PIANO.
This noble instrument is one of the largest and best constructed Pianos ever turned out of a factory; was designed and manufactured expressly and solely for ourselves, and by one of Germany's first makers.

THE WILMER has the power and tone almost of a Grand, certainly more powerful than any other upright Piano that has yet been presented to the Australian public, and notwithstanding its great power, yet the

WILMER
is one of the sweetest toned possible. Beautiful, rich, and sympathetic.

THE WILMER
entrances the ear of even the most uninformed musician, whilst the touch is perfection, if this is possible.

THE WILMER
will always command a large sale, because, with its superb qualities, it combines moderation in price, and owing to its splendid construction the piano can be sent without fear to any portion of her Majesty's dominions, and that is saying a great deal.

THE WILMER
has a magnificent iron frame, is overstrung (double oblique), thus possessing great length of string, and producing splendid volume and fulness of tone.

THE WILMER
has a supple action, on the Steinway system, evenness of touch, and splendid repetition.

THE WILMER
is supplied at a low price for cash, and on very easy terms of payment.

Illustrated Catalogues and full description with drawings, &c., of the WILMER, on application.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

The PARTNERSHIP hitherto existing between ROBERT LESSELLS and JAMES LESSELLS, under the style of R. LESSELLS and SON, Booksellers, News Agents, Tobacconists, &c., Summer-street, Orange, has this day been DISSOLVED by mutual consent. The business in future will be conducted by JAMES LESSELLS only, on whose behalf we solicit a continuance of the support so liberally accorded to us in the past.

R. LESSELLS and SON.

Orange, March 2nd, 1885.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Having purchased from Mr. Robert Lessells the whole of his interest in the late firm of R. Lessells and Son, together with all accounts owing to them, I beg respectfully to solicit a continuance of the support so liberally accorded to the firm during the past, assuring the public of my best endeavours to execute their commands.

JAMES LESSELLS.

Orange, March 2nd, 1885.

NOTICE is hereby given that the PARTNERSHIP which for some years past has been carried on by the undersigned, THOMAS HAWES and ALEXANDER GEORGE MANSON SWANSON, under the style or firm of "HAWES and SWANSON," in the trade or business of Storekeepers, at Ryde, in the colony of New South Wales, has been this day dissolved by mutual consent. All debts due by and to the late firm will be paid and received by the said ALEXANDER GEORGE MANSON SWANSON, who will in future carry on the business on his own separate account.

Dated this twenty-eighth day of February, 1885.

THOMAS HAWES.

IMPORTANT PUBLIC NOTICE.

L. UHDE begs to inform his friends and public in New South Wales, as in the neighbouring colonies, that he has secured those splendid premises formerly occupied as residence by the late Montague Levy, Esq., for a first-class Family Hotel, to be called the Grand Hotel. The hotel (from its situation), being within 50 yards from the Post and Telegraph Offices, and in the centre of all business; it is within a few yards of George-street, yet completely away from the noise of that main thoroughfare. It is opposite the beautiful Park. The hotel has been newly furnished throughout, and no expense spared to ensure the travelling public a comfortable home of which the want has been felt so long in this city. Mr. Uhde has secured a first-class staff of cooks, so as to guarantee that no complaint will be made in the Cuisine Department. The best Wines and Spirits have been procured, and will be continued to be supplied. Hot and cold water baths. Luncheon will be served on Monday next from half-past 12 until 2 o'clock. Dinner at half-past 6 daily, except Sundays.

L. UHDE, Proprietor.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—TOWN HALL COFFEE PALACE, 519, 521, 523, George-street.

The Proprietor wishes to inform the public that this Establishment is entirely under his own management, and hopes by strict attention to business to share a fair amount of public patronage. Superior bedrooms, single and double, sitting, reading, and smoking rooms. Hot and cold baths. The dining-rooms are spacious and well ventilated. Best luncheon in Sydney, 1s. J. Thomas, pro.

GAS COOKING STOVES.

RALEIGH'S "PARAGON."

Awarded the only Special First Prize (gold medal) for Cooking Stoves at the late Wealth and Industrial Exhibition.

The following testimonials from the highest authorities should convince the public of the superiority of Raleigh's Gas Cooking Stoves over all others, English or colonial:—

"The Australian Gas-light Company,
"Sydney, February 17th.

"Sir,—I hereby certify that I was present during the cooking test of your "Victory" Gas Stove, and saw a joint roasting and six vessels boiling at the same time, with one burner only; the consumption of gas being twelve feet per hour, at a cost of one penny.

"(Signed) G. EDWARDS, Inspector.

"To Mr. Raleigh."

Now what could be nicer than that?

The following is from the highest London authority on gas cooking stoves, a gentleman who has used every known maker's gas stove in London:—

"The Sydney Coffee Palace Company, Limited,
"George-street, Sydney, April 7, 1884.

"Mr. M. Raleigh.

"Sir,—Having seen and carefully examined your Gas Cooking Stove 'Paragon' while in operation, I have great pleasure in testifying to its excellent cooking powers.

"I have had a large experience in the utilisation of gas for cooking purposes, notably at the Criterion and Hanover-square Clubs, London. I am quite of opinion that for really good work and economy your stove excels anything I have yet seen.

"Yours truly,
"J. D. BALLARD."

The following testimonials are from persons who had English gas stoves in use, and found them utterly useless for cooking purposes. One gentleman remarked that they were like a donkey's ear, more ornamental than useful. If you really intend to buy a gas stove, what is gained by taking the discarded old style of gas stove when you can have the very best the world has yet seen for less money, and which will save its price in gas in twelve months? If you once see the "Paragon" you will endorse all that is claimed for it.

"To Mr. Raleigh.
"Ivy Lodge, Redfern.

"Dear Sir,—The gas stove I purchased from you has proved a great success.

"I had an English gas stove in use, which was constantly out of order, and did not cook well. I replaced it with your 'Victory,' which I have now been using some time, and my cook tells me it roasts, bakes, grills, toasts, &c., to perfection, and is to my entire satisfaction.

"Yours, &c., F. LEE,
"Hudson Brothers, Redfern Works."

"To Mr. Raleigh.

"Having purchased, as you are aware, an English gas stove with tiled sides, which was strongly recommended to me, and given it a fair trial, I found it did not answer for either roasting or baking. I sent the stove to you to be altered into a Raleigh Stove, and I have now had it some months in use in my kitchen in its altered state, and I think it only fair to tell you that whilst in its original condition it was almost useless to me, it now answers admirably for all purposes—viz., roasting, baking, grilling, toasting, and boiling.

"Yours truly,
"JOHN J. WOOD."

MONEY TO LEND UPON MORTGAGE, LAND and HOUSE PROPERTY.
I have large sums to lend upon mortgage of city and suburban freehold and leasehold property, at 6 and 7 per cent.; also, upon good remunerative country properties, farms, orchards, &c.
Property owners, feeling oppressed by heavy interest and the mode of repayment to Building Societies, are informed that I am willing to release their properties and lend them for a fixed period the same amount at 6 per cent. for city, and 7 per cent. for suburban property. Builders and others who mortgage with me can receive progress payments as the work proceeds.

BILLS DISCOUNTED at current rates.
MONEY ADVANCED to persons under wills, legacies, &c. Money lent to [illegible]. H. C. Roberts, 6, Victoria-chambers, Phillip-st.

HALF-A-MILLION OF MONEY TO LEND.
I have Money ready for investment on city property at 6 per cent., also on suburban and good country properties. I make liberal advances on household furniture without possession or publicity, repayable by easy instalments; the interest in many instances is only a slight advance on bank rates, and there are no fines or fees, which have rendered the business of money-lending contemptible. I advance the full surrender-value of any Life Policy, which may be repaid by weekly or monthly instalments. I purchase Life Interests and make advances thereon if required; also on wills, legacies, and to persons entitled to money in Europe. I Discount Trade Bills every day at a very reasonable rate of interest, and grant liberal advances on bonded certificates, diamonds, merchandise, and personal security. Gentlemen of rank, bank managers, members of Parliament, barristers, solicitors, mayors, aldermen, doctors, priests, merchants, and Civil servants can obtain an advance of money from me without any security whatever.

AN EXPLORATION IN PERAK.

By the Rev. J. E. Tenison-Woods, F.G.S., F.L.S.

III.

Our camp was in a beautiful situation, down deep in the wood valley, and by the side of a cascade, where a fine stream of limpid water came tumbling and foaming over granite boulders. The palm-leaf house—well, perhaps I ought to call it a shed, for it was open on all sides—was ingeniously built. Four trees were chosen, and to these a flooring of saplings was tied by strips of rattan. On the saplings were laid laths of bamboo, beaten out flat. The roof was made of similar laths, about six inches apart. The covering was composed of leaves of a dwarf palm (Pinanga), with leaves almost as large as a banana. They were hung upon the bamboo by notches or slits made in the midrib, and thus laid over each other like tiles. This roof made a cool shade of agreeable green colour, and was quite effectual against rain. It sloped down almost to the floor on one side, and as the trees on this side to which it was fastened grew in the water, we were soothed by the bubbling sound of the torrent which rolled under us as we slept. The only disadvantage to this kind of tenement was that it was quite open to wild animals. We hoped, however, that we should be sufficiently protected by camp fires and the lights which kept burning all night—not a sufficient security, as I afterwards learned. Four smaller and less carefully constructed huts housed our men.

Our supper was soon disposed of, and we were all asleep before long. We intended to set watches, but we were all too tired after our first day's fatigue. We Europeans slept on rugs, with a blanket over us, and did not find it too warm. The bats were very troublesome. Every now and then they would flap down on our faces, awaking us with a disagreeable start. Two or three flying squirrels interviewed us. They scarcely showed any timidity, but ran all over the bungalow, and chirped around us all night long.

Perhaps it may be of use to future explorers to state what our food was. Our main resource was rice, over which we poured a little beef tea made from Liebig's extract of meat. When we had time we used dried salt fish with the rice. This is what the Malays and Chinese principally live upon. It is fried and chopped fine, and a little mingled with the rice. Our drink was tea, or more rarely cocoa, though we had a little wine and spirits for an emergency. For vegetables we were not badly off. The Malays used the heart of the young palm-leaves, besides several roots, and very often wild fruits. Fish and birds we were able often to add to our bill of fare, until we got high up the mountain.

After a good night's rest, undisturbed by either tigers or Chinese gang robbers, we awoke to find it raining and misty. A pleasant bath in the cascade and a hasty breakfast soon made us ready for the march. But it was not so easy to get the party away. Packing was a long process, and the loads had to be adjusted. If we had left the men to themselves half our things would have been left behind. It was amusing to see the way in which a man would shoulder a little parcel and try to steal away with it, or the good-humoured way in which he would laugh when detected. Our vivacious Italian (Bozzolo) was equal to the occasion. His eyes were everywhere. Every man had to bear a fair share of the burden. It took a long time, but at last it was done, and we were on the move once more.

In spite of the rain and in spite of the wind, the party did not look so badly as I expected. The rain soon cleared off; that was one good thing, and the men began to be more cheerful. But a Malay is never lively. His features sometimes relax into a smile, or he hums a plaintive ditty as he strides along; but excitement or uproarious merriment does not belong to his nature.

We soon came to the edge of a very deep gorge, with precipitous rocky sides. A fallen tree spanned the depth at a height of 60 feet or more, and there was nothing for it but to cross. To the barefooted Malays this was an easy matter; but to begin this kind of Blondin work in shooting-boots required some nerve, and I should have been glad of a little previous practice. Then we climbed again, and then descended, and so on, up and down, in and out, under a deep shade, which almost shut out the sky from overhead. Then we went along the bed of a river for about a mile, and across a steep ridge, which, so to speak, took it out of us all considerably. It was almost perpendicular, but, being covered with deep soil, which the rain had converted into mud, it was very difficult to get a footing upon it. There were fine trees, however, which served as a help and a rest.

Here we saw some magnificent specimens of one of the glories of the Malayan forest, Fagræa auriculata. It is a stout vine or creeper, with trumpet-shaped flowers eight inches long and ten across, of cream yellow colour, and most fragrant perfume. There was another species somewhat smaller, but equally beautiful; and several other flowers, which I shall enumerate a little further on.

When we descended from this ridge we came to an important stream with a bed about 100 yards wide and an actual channel of 70 or 80 feet. It was full of granite boulders amid which the waterholes were large, clear, and deep. This was the Kenas River, which enters into the Perak at Sengyang, some five days' journey from where we were. The Malays had built us a camp here, but it was much too early for a halt. We left in the sheds some heavy material which we found we did not want, intending to stay and fish at this place on our return. We were now only 2500 feet above the sea, and the temperature never varied much from 86°.

A thick undulating forest of about a mile divided this stream from a smaller one, and on crossing this we found that our pioneers had erected a substantial and pretty rustic seat with a beautiful shelter of leaves. Here also was the chief Lamsa and the pioneers. The old man welcomed me in a neat Malay speech. He said we were now at the foot of Gunong Bubu, from the summit of which we were only two and a-half days' journey. Henceforth we should have no more descending, but every step we climbed would be a real gain not to be lost again. He concluded by hoping that I might be successful and find plenty of "obat" (medicinal herbs) on the mountain; for this, of course, was his only idea of why I was making the journey.

There could be no doubt that Lamsa was correct in saying that now we should have nothing but climbing. The spur beyond us looked like a wall, and there seemed no end to it. But it was cool and shady, and promised a great improvement on yesterday's travelling. Lamsa told us to take a good drink from the limpid stream which flowed round our bower, for there was no water to be had at any place short of our next camp. He then cut a short length of the root of a stout rattan which grew near, and to my surprise, poured from it into a cocoanut shell about a pint of clear sweet water. As he handed it to me he said that he was sorry that this was the last place where we should find this tree.

I think we should have stayed longer in this pleasant bower had not the leeches made it rather lively. Many of the Malays had been careless, and were consequently bleeding rather profusely from the legs. When foiled by the leech-gaiters they would pursue their explorations until they reached the neck, and thus we found many in a short time round our throats, or between the shoulder.

It was about 11 a.m. when we began to climb the spur, which was really very steep. I can now vividly recall the strange groups toiling up above me with their burdens swinging on long bamboos. It looked like peering up an archway of palm leaves, amid which the long line of blue and red garments extended in a serpentine line like a theatrical procession. Though the shade was dense, the timber was poor and light. Palm trees made up the bulk of it, but not the graceful broad-leaved palms which had given us shelter the night previously, but bertam (Eugeissonia tristis), which is so covered with long needle-like thorns that one dared not cling to it for any help in climbing.

I think we climbed for about three hours without seeing either the slightest change in the vegetation, or the steepness of the path. Then we came to a rhinoceros track, which made the path open and well beaten. This led us to the bathing-places of these animals, which consisted of square water-holes, cut so regularly out of the slope that for a long time I could hardly be persuaded that it had not been done by human hands. We were all very thirsty, but dared not touch this muddy water, which is said to be very dangerous to drink. The smell of it ought to tell that. A rhinoceros has a peculiar odour—like a pig, only nastier.

Lamsa and his men had gone on before to choose a camp where we could get water. For a long time before we reached the place we were cheered by hearing the echoes of the blows of the parang lopping off the branches for our huts. Between three and four we reached the clearing, on the only comparatively level piece of ground we had seen. There was just room for four huts, and these rose up like magic around us. Lamsa was seated on the ground chewing betel, and quietly platting the leaves of palm branches for the roofing. He rose and invited me to come and learn how to do this useful work, which is easily acquired. In a quarter of an hour I had mastered the trade, and with F. Scortechini was busily engaged in making a roof for our dwelling. The leaves of the bertam are about 15 feet long. By binding over the sword-like leaflets of one side, and plaiting them into those of the other side, one soon obtains a piece of thatch about 12 feet long and 10 inches wide. Thus was our little shelter speedily woved. Cooking apparatus was as rapidly placed on pegs driven into the earth, and in two hours we were as comfortably housed and provided for as if we had been in the midst of civilisation.

It wanted two hours to evening, and the time was spent in exploring. We soon found that our rambles would be like a quarter-deck walk, "two steps and overboard." We were on the sharp edge of a spur, from every side of which the land descended almost precipitously. It was covered with forest—above and below were both equally hidden. From the southward we could hear the dull, hoarse roar of some very large cascade which could not have been more than a mile away. We tried to get to it, but the descent was too rapid. Not liking to lose the advantage we had gained by all our climbing, we left it until our return, an intention which we were not able to realise.

The forests were singularly still but for this noise of the roar of waters. A few monkeys came chattering down to look at us. They kept silence while gazing at us in mute astonishment, creeping gently down so as to be as near as possible. Then suddenly they started away howling and screeching, throwing themselves from branch to branch with surprising force until they were lost in the dark recesses of the forest below. Just at sunset a most surprising sound like a railway whistle attracted our attention. It was so loud and thrilling as to seem even beyond the powers of a bird. What was our surprise when told by the Malays that it was a cicada. They call it the sunset insect, and believe that its special office is to call the labourer from work. My experience of the Malay is that he is the man of all nations that least requires to be told when it is time to leave off work. The cicada ought therefore to go somewhere else, for it has a fine loud note, and is most punctual.

When darkness gathered round, the Malays drew within their huts and began their devotions. These consist in a certain number of prostrations towards Mecca, and the utterance of a few Arabic words which of course they do not understand. Very few of those who were with us were well up in the methods adopted by the Mussulmen of the peninsula. One of our coolies from Penang offered to become their teacher, and consequently our camp was kept alive with this devotional drill until near midnight. We should never have slept if we had not dispersed this rank and file, but a word was sufficient, and the camp was soon wrapped in silence. No one kept watch. The flickering fires were considered a sufficient protection against a tiger, a rhinoceros, or a mosquito.

Rain again in the morning, with a heavy white mist hanging over the hills. As usual, there was much delay in getting away from camp, though at each resting place our baggage was getting considerably lighter. We could leave things for our return journey in perfect safety. The climbing was now very steep, and though the rain was still incessant, the ground was not nearly so muddy. Up, up, up we went, very slowly for my part, for really it was very much like climbing a wall. We could see nothing of the forest around—just a short distance above and below, no more. I am sure the Malays rejoiced over my slow rate of progress. It suited them to a nicety. In spite of their heavy burdens, they often stretched a hand to me to help me over some difficult log or boulder. Up, up we went. I thought we must have ascended at least 10,000 feet; yet we were not yet 3500 above the sea. But mountain-climbing in muddy regions is very deceptive, especially if one slips a step or two back every few yards.

It was one incessant climb from the beginning to the end of this day's journey. There was only one level platform of a few hundred yards. This was followed, to our regret, by a descent of 100 feet. This kind of dell was probably a good landmark, so we set to work to fell some of the timber, while I boiled water to determine the height. There was a change in the vegetation about this spot. The trees were higher and finer, with many dammura pines. As usual, the stems were a mass of orchids and ferns. It was here we lost sight of the bertam palm, and its place was taken by a small palm with fan-shaped leaves at least a yard in diameter. We imagined it to be a species of licuala. This now became the only undergrowth, except an occasional tree-fern with a few lycopods, ferns, and small shrubs. The trees cut down did not afford anything new.

I think this platform was at about the middle of our day's journey. The rest of it was a little more open, and varied by no incident on the unceasing climb, climb. One tree attracted my attention by having very large claw marks upon it. It had been frequently ascended by a large tiger-cat, and probably for the sake of monkeys, who slept in fancied security in the branches. A tiger-cat is a smart animal, but it must be smart indeed to catch a monkey. It requires a very quick eye and steady hand even to shoot one.

At about 3 p.m. we reached our journey's end. The camp was beautifully chosen on an open platform on the north-western face of a steep spur. Though it was open, we could see nothing as yet of the country around. The higher branches of the trees below just shut out the prospect; but a part of the pinnacle of the mountain summit was visible at a distance of about 1500 feet above us. Our huts were in course of erection. I thought we should miss the bertam for our roofs, but the large leaves of the licuala did as well under the fertile constructive genius of the Malay, aided by the indispensable rattan. The houses were certainly smaller and more shut in than any we had as yet occupied; but it was getting very cold now at the elevation we had reached, and we were glad enough of our blankets at night as well as a good cheerful, and large fire.

When the houses were finished all hands were set to work to clear away the timber from the slopes below us. This was a work of some time. In these thick forests it is not sufficient to cut a tree through in order that it may fall. The trunks are so close together and so bound and entangled by vines that as many as five and six and sometimes ten trees must have their trunks severed ere they topple over. Then the sight is a grand one. In their ruin they crash down on the trees beneath, snapping them off and bearing them over until an avalanche of falling timber is created. The roar is something awful, and really the ground trembles as the great stems fall and rebound on the earth. It is not very safe either to stand near. I have seen the stem of a large tree snapped off and cast sideways some 50 yards like a child's plaything.

When about two hours had been spent in thus clearing the platform, a magnificent prospect was unfolded, Arang Para, with the bungalow, lay beneath us a few miles to the north. Gapir Pass and the plains towards the sea were also visible, with much of the mountain scenery on the upper Perak. At night we lit fires and sent up rockets, which were seen from Arang Para. The view which our little clearing had obtained cheered us with the anticipation of what we should see from the summit of the mountain.

Another day's journey would clearly bring us to the object of our expedition. From the Malays, however, we could get no information. Most of them said it would take us a whole day, but, as it proved, we were able easily to go from our camp to the summit and back again in six hours. We now sent back half our coolies to get more stores, as our rice and salt fish disappeared with amazing rapidity. That night we had rain, fog and a cutting north wind, and though the thermometer went down only to 65° we all felt the cold extremely. But the air was bracing, and we all felt cheered by it. In no camp had we so much fun and rattle and carried it so far into the night. There was plenty to laugh at in the many accidents and incongruities of roughing it in the jungle. Much of our accidental experience may be useful to future travellers, so I may record that kerosene is a bad addition to rice, and anchovy paste cannot be eaten with marmalade. Our Malay and Chinese boys were also a fund of amusement to us, and so the days passed pleasantly and the nights seemed never long.

OLD COLONIAL DAYS.

By Obed West.

III.

Having mentioned in a previous article that it was at one time punishable with death to cross the Cowpasture River in order to protect from molestation the wild cattle, belonging to the Government, which had been discovered there, it is necessary that something should be said of those cattle.

Shortly after the arrival of Governor Phillip and his fleet in 1788, the greater part of the cattle he had brought with him, strayed away from the settlement, and were not seen for many years afterwards; when they were discovered about the Cowpasture River, having in the meantime increased to a vast herd. When found various devices were tried to capture and tame them, but they had become so wild that every manœuvre failed in a greater or less degree, and at last the Government had to take them as best they could, either dead or alive. Unused to the sight of man, his presence was enough to scare them, and in their excessive wildness and affright they took to places so inaccessible that the colonists whose duty it was to secure them, if possible, were afraid to follow them, and had recourse to the beating of drums to attract the brutes from their hiding by the unusual noise. No sooner did they come out of the scrub than they were shot at or shot down. This device succeeded for a time: but the wounded cattle were not likely to indulge their curiosity a second time, and, as the herd got used to the noise, its effect was lost, and other means had to be resorted to. But success did not come in a day. Many expedients were tried, but all proved abortive, until the Government adopted a system (which is still in vogue for the capture of kangaroos as well as wild cattle); races, wings, and stockyards of a most substantial character were erected, the ordinary fences being of ironbark, and having four rails. The yards at the extremity of the race, having five rails, besides capping poles, stood considerably over six feet. Bands of prisoners, to whom life was of little value, and whose daring might be measured by their misery, were employed to hunt the wild animals from their strongholds. Quiet droves, known at the time as "flying herds," were used to decoy the wild ones first into the race, and then into the yard where some were finally despatched, others were made fit for use as working bullocks, and brought in to work on the roads about Sydney. At such places large establishments were kept up, and a great many prisoners, busily employed, some engaged in the chase, some in the slaughter, some in the tanning of hides, and some in the cutting up and salting down the beef. The young stock, however, was preserved in a different way, and taken to Rooty Hill to swell the herd at that place, which was then a Government cattle station. From this herd the Government used to give out cattle to the colonists who had received grants of land, and were supposed, after three or four years, to return a similar number to those given, to the Government stock. Cawdor was the first establishment of the kind described and was always known as the "Head station." It is part of the Macarthur Estate now, and doubtless the remains of the old buildings have long ago been removed. Mr. George Johnstone, son of Major Johnstone, was the person in charge, but unfortunately lost his life there, through being thrown from his horse. Adjutant Wild became his successor, and the supervision was no sinecure. Numerous huts were erected for the men. Slaughter-yards, tan-pits, and all the accessories of a large and varied establishment, soon found a place in this busy settlement, while the adjacent lands were turned to profitable account by being put under cultivation. One of the out-stations was "Lowe's Hill," opposite Cobbitty. Having been abandoned by the Government it was granted to the late Mr. Macleay, then Colonial Secretary. As the wild cattle became less numerous, it was thought no longer profitable to yard them as heretofore; but men were employed to run them down singly and shoot them in their mountain fastnesses. Large dogs of the mastiff breed were found useful and almost indispensable in the chase; and as the animals became worried and fagged out the horsemen would leap from their saddles and hamstring the poor brutes, and thus inhumanly secure their prey. It was computed I recollect that over 2000 head were destroyed around the district of The Oaks during the last year of the Government slaughter. These cattle hunters could tell of adventures as thrilling, if not as warlike, as those of Othello; and if their narrations never won a Desdemona, we may be sure that they won attention and beguiled many a weary hour in the hard lives of those, too often, hardened men. A Nimrod of the old type, appropriately named Bullock, once told me of a snake story as exciting as any paragraphist could desire. Having taken more grog than he could well carry, he thought he had better rest under it, and while sleeping off its effect he was aroused by feeling a snake inside the leg of his trousers. Afraid to move lest the reptile should bite him, he lay perfectly still. Crawling upwards, it tried to get away through the man's shirt collar, but the kerchief would not allow of this, and the cool messenger pursued another course, wriggling round and round the poor fellow's body until it finally escaped down the other leg of his pantaloons, and left him a sadder but a wiser man, for the fright had sobered him more effectually than his nap. He averred that the perspiration ran off him like water. It was said in the old days that the man through whose neglect the cattle originally escaped was hanged in consequence, but for the truth of this I cannot vouch, though according well with the spirit of the times, when liberty and life were empty names to many of the unfortunate race who first peopled our shores.

The young bulls used to generally herd together. Where they used to resort the ground was all rooted and torn up, and the places were known as bull-beds. There was a place called Bull Head Range about two miles from the Oaks station, and it derived its name from the cattle-hunters when they killed the animals about there, sticking the heads up in the trees. Towards the end of the time when the cattle were at large the head and horns were a very conspicuous part of the beast, and I have seen the trees all round the place bedecked with these not very graceful ornaments.

A curious incident mentioned by Bonwick in connection with the loss of these cattle is worthy of notice. After Governor Phillip had returned to England he heard of the discovery of the lost cattle, and addressed the following despatch to Governor King:—"As two of the cows last seen after our landing were my property, I have an undoubted claim to a share in the cattle since found to have increased in so extraordinary a manner." Thus showing that even Governors may have an eye to business, and are not above driving a bargain, much as they may affect to despise the sons and daughters of trade and commerce. It is said that he received some compensation, but the amount we know not.

Before closing, a few general remarks may not be unacceptable to your readers. The cattle, originally brought from the Cape of Good Hope, were of a poor description, and by in-breeding after they strayed away they contrived to invert the Darwinian theory and dwindled down to a very inferior race indeed. But this deterioration from a squatter's point of view was rather an advantage in the eye of a true sportsman. Unencumbered with flesh, and hardy as other mountaineers, they were equal in speed and endurance to the horse, and all the qualities most hateful to the grazier, their leanness, their lankness, their wildness, and their wiriness but added to the enjoyment, the excitement, and the enthusiasm of the chase. But bad as was the meat, and rigorous as were the laws of the time, many hunted them for their beef, for flesh of any kind was then quite a luxury to the prisoners as well as to the poorer class of colonists; while others for the sheer love of sport risked limbs, liberty, and life for the fascinating and all-absorbing chase. The game was indeed hazardous, and only venturous spirits indulged in it. The country was rough and rugged, and there was every likelihood of accidents—it was comparatively unexplored, and they might have been lost—it was interdicted, and they might have been hanged. Surely sport was never hedged round with greater difficulties, or beset with greater danger. One might have thought the natural dangers had been enough to overawe the most daring, or, if not, the law had turned the scale; but every instinct of man revolts at tyranny, and rises in opposition to everything that unjustly interferes with his liberty, and hence what was intended as a check became an incentive, and bad country and bad laws were boldly overridden by those good old sportsmen of the good old times.

GERMANY, NETHERLANDS, AND AUSTRALASIA.

When nearly 15 years ago the great struggle began which caused the downfall of the French Empire and the foundation of the German one, it caused a good deal of interest even out here, although then it was only about once a month that spare notices came to these far distant lands about what was going on in old Europe. But though the news was few and far between, all the more eagerly was it looked for.

Few they were who ever thought that the matter might some day have a bearing on the interests of the English-speaking southern hemisphere. But it very soon appeared to a close observer that the Black Eagle longed for maritime possessions, and that the means he was likely to choose would probably bring him close to the Australian continent.

Hardly was the German Empire proclaimed in Versailles, on the birthday of Emperor Wilhelm, when philosophising German politicians began to offer tempting friendly advices to the good Netherlanders, showing what a blessing it would be to them to be clasped to the bosom of the High German Vaterland, which would so readily receive them as an integral part of its new organisation.

That ever the pigheaded Dutch should be so blind to their own interests as to look with indifference at such splendid advantages, that was of course never anticipated. Could they undervalue the honour of manning the German Navy, an honour once intended for ungrateful Denmark? Could they be unreasonable enough to refuse to make Father Rhine German at his mouth as he already is in his middle? Could they not see the great ideal good of exchanging their Low German patois for the High German idiom.

Alas! alas! Children are in their perverse foolishness not alive to their own interests. To all this the little country answered in a manner not to be mistaken by any one who took the trouble to read between the lines. In the first place, the tercentenary of the great revolt against Spain was celebrated in 1872 all over the land in the most patriotic manner, and although the Dutchman does not talk much he showed that he values his individuality. Further great sums were granted for strengthening the naval and military forces, and for improving the means of putting the land under water as a reception for an ingressing enemy. They plainly showed that they did not care about being swallowed by the new empire.

Now it may be true enough that the German Government has done nothing as yet directly to threaten the brave little coastland; but there can be little doubt that hungry looks are sent out to the Zuyder Zee and the delta of the Rhine, increased seaboard at the German Ocean, plentiful supplies of good sailors, and at last great colonial possessions. Aye, there is the sore point to Australia. If the Empire should swallow the little Holland, then it would in consequence be the possessor of the whole Indian Archipelago, and, what is far more, of the claims on Western New Guinea. What would Australia say to that—to having three-quarters of the great island in the hands of a Power whom we certainly are not over-inclined to look at as so particularly friendly?

It is clear, then, that the turmoil on the great Continent of Europe is of vital interest to us out here in the antipodes. If England and Russia were engaged in an all-absorbing war: if France, foolishly occupied in distant regions, as China, Madagascar, and so on, should have at last broken the camel's back and provoked Italy beyond endurance, and perhaps even Spain, who would then interfere to stop Germany from absorbing Holland? Certainly not Austria, the unready.

The nation in question, anyhow, has been alive to its interests, and has of late acted in a way that shows both prudence and determination. When lately, by the death of Prince Alexander of Orange, the last male heir to the throne of Holland had disappeared, a change in the Constitution was made, transferring the succession to the King's daughter in his second marriage, the little Princess Wilhelmina, now a child between 4 and 5 years. The Queen has also been declared Regent in case her daughter should succeed before her majority, and at the same time an approachment has taken place between the Royal families of the United Netherlands and Belgium, who for more than half a century kept up a position of complete estrangement towards each other. There have even rumours been heard about a matrimonial treaty, with the object of uniting the little princess with the heir apparent to the throne of Belgium, Prince Baldwin, the nephew of the King. This young prince is about 11 years older than the spoken-of bride. From a personal union the step need not be long to a constitutional union.

This is all very satisfactory. The nine or ten millions of the combined countries may offer a good stand against the fivefold enemy. But such conjectures are useless. The question that forces itself on us is, what can we do in the matter? One solution, which would appear the most practical of all, would be simply to buy the claim to Western New Guinea. But, unfortunately, Holland is not poor. A few millions to her are of no consequence, and it would rather be an affront to offer to buy lands from a country so prosperous and enjoying such an ample revenue from its wealthy colonies. To ask Holland to cede it in apprehension of its failing into Germany's hands would not be a very delicate allusion. What, then, is to be done? Aye, that is worth thinking over. We will hope, anyhow. The world soon will see that the British lion is being roused from its slumber.

THE ARABS AS FIGHTING MEN.

(From the Pall Mall Gazette, January 22.)

Wars are not made with rose-water, and it is impossible to march troops into that "sepulchre of armies," the Soudan, without exposing them to risk of casualties. Nevertheless, the decimation of the gallant little force with which General Stewart is plunging across the desert to the Nile has produced a very painful impression, which no description of the courage and heroism of our soldiers can entirely remove. This is the second time that a British square has been broken in the Soudan, and although the sterling qualities of our men were more conclusively proved by the way in which they rallied after the Arabs were in their midst than if they had never allowed them to penetrate their ranks, it is not right that British squares should be broken by Africans. The French could not do it at Waterloo, and the Soudanese could not have done it either at Tamasi or at Abu Klea but for some mistake, due probably in both cases to over-eagerness. At Tamasi the front of the advancing square rushed forward too rapidly for its right flank to keep pace with it, and the Arabs, seizing their opportunity, swarmed into the opening in the shoulder of the square. At Abu Klea, Lord Wolseley says that the square broke by sheer weight of numbers. Supposing 10,000 men in all attacked, if 5000 of them concentrated their rush upon the rear face, this would represent a weight of human flesh and blood of nearly 300 tons, a tolerably heavy body to be hurled with a momentum of ten miles an hour upon a thin line of 500 men. But 5000 men do not move together solid, and breech-loaders, to say nothing of the Gardner gun, ought to have kept them off. The real reason is probably that given by the special correspondents. "The onset was so rapid that the skirmishers had scarcely time to reach the square" before the enemy fell in force upon the heavy dragoons, who, instead of standing in line, "had broken forward in the endeavour to fire on the rebels." Whatever may have been the mistake, they paid for it dearly, and retrieved their fault by hardest fighting against the greatest odds. No praise can be too high for the coolness with which the little handful of men maintained the honour of the English name against overwhelming numbers of one of the bravest races in the world. From General Stewart to the humblest private "groom fought like noble, squire like knight, as fearlessly and well," and the fanaticism of the desert was shattered on the solid ranks of those who far off in the Bayuda Desert attested with their blood their allegiance to duty. Nor can any Englishman refuse to pay a tribute of respect and admiration to those brave sons of the desert who charged upon the British square with a heroism recalling the traditional valour of the Saracens in whom our crusading ancestors found foes well worthy of their steel. We need not grudge them the glory of their fate in perishing before the irresistible hail of the breech-loaders of the infidel; but we may venture to hope that such splendid material for a sepoy army will before long be moulded into a force which under our direction will establish an English peace from Dongola and Suakim to the great equatorial lakes.

The discovery that the Mahdi's men fight as bravely on the west side of the Nile as they do on the hills before Suakim is a very unwelcome revelation of the difficulties with which we have to contend. But if General Gordon, with nothing but his own indomitable and resourceful courage to aid him, has succeeded in holding the Mahdi and all his hordes at bay at Khartoum, there ought to be no serious difficulty in making our way with such a force as that which Lord Wolseley commands from one end of the continent to the other. Of course our difficulty is enormously increased by the religious enthusiasm of the Soudanese. A good fighting faith for which you are not afraid to die, and for which all your neighbours are ready to die in heaps, is about the strongest thing in this world, and the nearest equivalent to Vril that the mind can conceive. Before the Mahdi arose to fire these poor creatures with a burning faith in his divine mission, they could be lorded over by the rabble of the delta. Now they shatter English squares, and still stand erect and defiant, daring the thunderbolts of our empire, unconquered and it may be unconquerable.

THE STATISTICAL REGISTER FOR 1883.

III.

It is natural to look to the Statistical Register for reliable information as to the progress of the sugar industry of this colony; yet although we have found plenty of information we feel very little the wiser thereby, indeed we never were in more of a fog about any matter than we are about this. Perhaps the public will not thank us if we lead them also into the fog; but never mind, we will not keep them in it very long. In the report of the Registrar-General, page 16, we read the interesting statement that the quantity of sugar produced in 1883 was more than three times that of 1882. The production for that year having been, it is said, 11,650,688lb., we are driven to examine the figures that show the extraordinary advance in one year from that quantity to 35,220,640lb. Our examination of the figures for 1883 leads us to refer to those for the three previous years, and when we say they are rather startling we but faintly describe them. We take the figures from the "Abstract Return of Agriculture." This return has one column giving the quantity of sugar-cane grown and another giving that of sugar produced therefrom; the produce of the Clarence and Richmond districts being given separately. In 1880 and 1881 about 16 or 17 cwt. of cane yielded one cwt. of sugar, but in 1882 the cane was, it seems, of such extraordinary richness that one cwt. of cane actually yielded more than one cwt. of sugar; and coming to 1883, the Clarence district produced 1,681300cwt. of cane, yielding 174,315cwt. of sugar, whilst the Richmond district produced 119,612cwt. of cane, yielding 130,625cwt. of sugar. After we have duly digested the extraordinary statement which is involved in these figures, viz., that the cane grown on the Richmond was far more than 10 times as rich in saccharine matter as the cane grown on the Clarence, we have then to give in our adhesion to the miracle involved in the production of sugar at the rate of, say, 7lb. from 6lb. of cane. Of course, we take for granted that the figures given are accurate, for if the Richmond district cane only yielded an ordinary and not a miraculous quantity of sugar, then the "sugar produced" would be overstated by 100,000cwt. or more, which would make no slight difference in the "three-fold" increase given for 1883. For 1880 we have separate figures given for each district of the cane grown and the sugar produced therefrom, all given in cwts.; for 1881 the cane is given in tons instead of cwts., and the column for "sugar produced" is left blank, except, strange to say, in the total; for 1882, cwts. are used again, but in each column there are blanks, and the totals as given are remarkable, that of cane being only about 1-38th of that of the previous year. Another and separate table is given of "sugar manufactured in the colony," the figures of which vary from those we have quoted. In this last table particulars of the mills are given. In 1881 there were 60 mills worked by steam, the horse-power being 91,432. The next year the number of mills is increased to 70, and the horse-power reduced to 978. Surely the fog is thick just here!

We have, on page 235, a return showing the rate of exchange on bills on London; the maximum and the minimum rates of each bank are given. If we dare express our opinion we should incline to hint that the distinctions involved in the terms "discount," "par," "premium," are not so well understood in some quarters as they should be. It is evident that the smaller the discount a bank is willing to charge, the higher must be the price paid to the seller of a bill. We have returns from 13 different banks, and we give these of four of them:—

Bank.	Highest purchase rate.	Lowest.
New South Wales	¾ per cent. disc.	1 per cent. disc.
Union	⅝ per cent. disc.	Par.
Mercantile	Par.	⅝ per cent. disc.
Joint Stock	⅛ per cent. disc.	¼ per cent. disc.

It will be observed that the figures of the Union and the Mercantile are the same, but that the position is simply reversed: so that in the case of the Union Bank the highest price is called the lowest, and the lowest price is called the highest.

The Statistical Register contains some strange statistics. Here is one: "Upon every inquisition taken upon view of the body slain, of the goods and chattels of him that is the slayer and murderer, if he have any, 13s. 4d." And here is another "statistic:" "Any person found drunk in any highway, street, road, or public place, liable on conviction to a fine or penalty not exceeding twenty shillings." We are under the impression that we know what is meant by the word "statistics," and we are bound to say that we look upon the sort we have just quoted as, shall we say, stray cattle, that ought forthwith to be taken out of the public highway called the Statistical Register, and impounded, pending the arrival of the real owners. There are no fewer than 88 pages devoted to these so-called statistics. Are they inserted as a kind of literary "padding"? We have an idea that Mr. Giffen, of the British Board of Trade, does not "pad" his reports with such extra interesting "statistics."

We are rather afraid we have lost ourselves in that fog of which we have spoken. Groping our way back we will give a little attention to the returns dealing with tallow. Besides the details of imports and exports, we have a "decennial return" of the quantity of tallow produced in the colony. It will be generally admitted that tallow cannot be exported before it has been made, but the Register is not of the same opinion, thus:—Produced in the colony, 1874 to 1883, 1,043,705cwt.; exported during same period, 1,320,451cwt. By these figures it will be seen that during the ten years New South Wales exported 276,746cwt. of tallow that had never been made. This is a remarkable phenomenon, and we do not feel any the less mystified when we find in another table the information that during the period mentioned there were more than one million cwt. of soap and candles made. We know the soap trade has its secrets, but still it is far from being able to ignore tallow, and must have required a large quantity in the manufacture of so much soap. However, we have more figures yet relating to tallow. During the 10 years we imported 502,670cwt., of which we re-exported, says the Register, only 148,382cwt. What became of the large difference of 354,288cwt.? We have ourselves very little doubt that the great bulk of it was re-exported and described as New South Wales produce, and to a certain extent it clears up the difficulty arising from the previously mentioned fact (?) that more tallow was exported than produced. This being admitted, then we discover that the value of this tallow, probably £500,000 or more, has been credited to New South Wales, instead of being reckoned amongst re-exports. If we now add together the imported and the colonial produced, and deduct both the exports and re-exports, we find only 77,542cwt. remain to be used in the making of more than a million cwt. of soap and candles, which drives us to the conclusion that the table of "colonial made" is too modest in its statements, and that the quantity actually produced has very considerably exceeded that given in the Register.

R. P.

At Paris two brothers named Laroche, belonging to a good family in Hayti, have been charged before the Seine Tribunal with having attempted at Paris to procure forged foreign paper money. The evidence showed that last September the prisoners applied to a Paris firm to have 120,000 pretended cigar-box labels printed according to sample. On this sample being produced it proved to be a bank-note issued under the guarantee of the Republic of Hayti, and having legal currency in that country. The Laroches handed to the printer one of the necessary plates, and two other plates were to be obtained from London. Information was given by the printer to the police, and the trial was the result. For the defence it was shown that General Salamon, President of the Hayti Republic, had issued against the will of the Chamber a quantity of paper money, with the object of obtaining a large loan. The prisoners declared that they had simply acted according to the orders of the Liberal Committees of Hayti, who were aiming at the overthrow of General Salamon. The forged notes were to be signed by the delegates of the revolution as soon as it had triumphed. M. Gerville Reache, the coloured deputy for Martinique, appeared for the prisoners, and made a remarkable speech in their behalf. After a few minutes' deliberation, the jury acquitted the prisoners.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. MR. WILFRID BLUNT ON THE EGYPTIAN DIFFICULTY.

Mr. Wilfrid Blunt was interviewed by a representative of the Daily News, to whom he has conveyed a full expression of his views on the situation in Egypt, interspersed with advice to the Government. He guarded himself at the outset by stating that in what he was going to say he wished to address his remarks not to the Jingoes, who want annexation, but to the Liberal party represented by the Daily News. He then proceeded to discuss the prospects of annexation:—"You say you have no intention of annexing the Soudan; but if you are sincere in this, you must take care what you are about. Remember that Mr. Gladstone was quite sincere in declaring that he did not wish to annex Egypt, yet Egypt is distinctly being annexed. It is all very well to say it is not so; but when you see a man driving on the road to Brighton, and he tells you he is going to York, you know pretty well what to think. Every step that has been taken in Egypt for the last two years has been in the direction of annexation. Mr. Frederic Harrison, in the spring of 1882, very clearly foretold what these steps would be—that was long before the bombardment of Alexandria—and they are being taken one after the other religiously; and his words are being every one of them fulfilled. The milestones on the road to annexation are these: First, you make an engagement with a prince, then you find that his subjects are in a 'military revolt,' and you send troops to support him and restore him to the love of his people. When you have done this you find that the people cannot be made to love him, and, instead of leaving him to carry on his paternal government, you stay to keep him on his legs. Then you find that he takes revenge on the people. Rebellion is checked, but you stay to prevent misgovernment. You put English officials in to make things better, and you stay to keep them in their places. The English officials are unable to do their work, being, as they are, hated by every one generally, including the Prince; this having become a scandal, you grow tired of your failure and annex. The process is one which has nothing new in it; it has been done over and over again in India; you have done it in Egypt, all but the last act."

Questioned next with regard to the Soudan, and what should be the policy of England with regard to it, Mr. Blunt said:—"You ask me whether Lord Wolseley should not establish a native Government to prevent anarchy. You say that he has a certain latitude in this regard in his instructions. I say if you allow him latitude to the extent of 24 hours you will never get him out of the country. To send a military man to make a peaceful settlement on any but a military basis is to expect impossibilities. Military men are fond of their own military way, and Lord Wolseley will be like any other commander. When he has got to Khartoum he will find that town an admirable strategic position, at the confluence of the two Niles, impregnable, and commanding the whole country—far too pretty a position for him to think of abandoning. He would be a poor soldier if he did. But if he is allowed to stay on any pretext of setting up a native Government, what would happen? That native Government must either be the Mahdi's or another's. If the Mahdi's, it is quite unnecessary Lord Wolseley should interfere. He has only to retire, and the Mahdi's Government will assert itself without his help. If, on the other hand, he gets hold of some other chief and makes a puppet of him, he must necessarily stay on to protect him; otherwise the puppet will fall. Therefore, since you have an honest intention of withdrawing from the Soudan, let it be done the very day that General Gordon is secured—supposing always that Lord Wolseley does not arrive too late."

Mr. Blunt has very distinct views on the slave-trade in the Soudan:—"The slave-trade question is a mere pretext of the annexationists. The true way of making an end of slave raids is to encourage the Mahommedans of Egypt and other countries to abandon slavery. I have never considered the Anti-Slavery Association quite honest in this matter. I remember well when I came home from Egypt in the spring of 1882, just after the Nationalists had come into office at Cairo, trying to obtain the sympathy of the anti-slavery men for Arabi by informing them that it was his design to abolish slavery. To my surprise, I found that this information was far from being a recommendation in their eyes. On the contrary, I found them not a little indignant at the idea of a Mahommedan daring to advocate total abolition. Therefore I say Liberals, if they want to withdraw from the Soudan, had better pay no attention whatever to anti-slave trade talk."

"In reply to a question as to whether he would propose to establish a strong Government in any popular form in Egypt, Mr. Blunt said:—"The first thing is to ascertain the facts. Although the Government has several times attempted to make inquiries into the facts in Egypt, no real result has ever been obtained. Before the war I suggested that a Commission should be sent to inquire into Egyptian grievances, and I think that few will deny now that, had such a Commission been set to work, intervention and war and the present insolvency would have been avoided. A second opportunity was offered when Lord Dufferin was sent to Cairo after the war. Any real inquiry then made would have disclosed the fact that it was hopeless to seek the assent of the mass of the Egyptian population to a renewal of Tewfik Pasha's Goverment. I urged Lord Dufferin at the time to see the imprisoned chiefs of the National party and hear what they had to say in defence of the position they had taken up, and as to the real sentiments of the people who had rallied round them in the war; but considerations of etiquette interfered, and Lord Dufferin left Egypt without having had any personal communication with these men. I do not say that Lord Dufferin's report is not a very able document in so far as it treats of questions appertaining to the material condition of Egypt, but in its political and social aspects it is based on false ideas. It did not take into account the one strong motive of the movement which had just been crushed—namely, a revolt of the Arabic-speaking population against the tyranny and corruption of the Turkish official classes. Until this is accepted as the acknowledged starting-point, all talk of establishing a stable or popular Government must be abandoned. I consider that the Government has been wilfully blind to this point, and that if their policy leads to annexation, either by themselves or by the Tories, or by the united intervention of Europe, they have only themselves to blame."

Mr. Blunt says he would not consider it necessary to urge this point if he thought it was already impossible to remedy. "But I do not think the last stage of political exhaustion in Egypt has been yet quite reached, which will necessarily precede political death; and I would strongly urge you and all who, like you, profess to desire a redemption of the Government's promises towards the people of Egypt to lose no more time, but to press it upon Mr. Gladstone to make for the first time a real inquiry into the facts of the past, and into the facts of the present; for the two things have become bound up together. I am in a position to say, and I say this as strongly as it is possible to state anything, that the result of such an inquiry would be to convince Mr. Gladstone that his good faith has been imposed upon in the matter of Tewfik Pasha's character. I understand that Lord Northbrook came back from Egypt equally convinced with the rest of the Khedive's honesty; but I am also informed that the sources from which he derived his information have been precisely those from which her Majesty's Government have all along derived their inspiration. That is to say, the court entourage, the Levantine financial set, the Armenian hangers-on, that official class whose existence is menaced by all real reform, and finally the Khedive himself. Let them, adopting a new course, send even now at the eleventh hour a commission of inquiry, composed of Liberal members of Parliament, to Egypt—men who have no annexationist tendencies—and let them institute on the spot an investigation into the circumstances of the last three years from the Egyptians themselves. I will undertake to supply them with evidence in abundance in support of what I say—namely, that Tewfik Pasha has all along deceived them, and that no kind of settlement based on popular approval is possible which shall include his retention of office."

German Claims on the Fiji Islands.—A new White Book, which bears the title "German Claims to Land in Fiji," was published in Berlin yesterday. It comprises 33 documents, dating from the 31st of October, 1874, to the 16th of September, 1884, and furnishes a record of the endeavours made by German diplomacy during the 10 years covered by the correspondence to obtain a settlement of the claims of German subjects to land in the Fiji Islands. It is pointed out that the papers possess a special interest, because the resistance offered by England to the German claims dealt with in the White Book first induced the Imperial Government to adopt its present active colonial policy. The starting-point of the correspondence is the annexation of the Fiji Islands by England in October, 1874, whereby debts contracted before 1871 were declared not recoverable. The date was subsequently altered to the 10th of October, 1874, and the title deeds of lands acquired in the islands were furthermore referred to a special Commission. The Commission, however, proceeded very slowly with the examination of the documents, and completely contested several of the proofs of ownership laid before it. The complaints and petitions to the Imperial Government of the German claimants whose pretensions were thus disallowed, are printed in the White Book, and form the subject of continued remonstrance on the part of the German Government in London. On the 16th of April, 1883, the German Government proposed the appointment of a mixed Commission to investigate the disputed claims. Lord Granville replied on the 23rd of July, 1883, by communicating the opinion of the Colonial Office that the proposal could not be accepted. The German Government answered this despatch on the 18th of October by a request to be informed of the views of the English Cabinet, and not those of the Colonial Office; and in a note dated the 31st of December, the appointment of a Commission to settle the questions pending was again urged. On the 1st of January, 1884, Lord Granville wrote again that, taking into consideration the recorded opinion of the Colonial Office, her Majesty's Government was not disposed to assent to the proposal of the German Government. Further communications from Lord Granville show that the Colonial Office continued to maintain its objections to the German propositions. Finally, on the 19th of June of the same year (1884), Count Münster, the German Ambassador in London, informed his Government that Lord Granville had agreed to the appointment of a mixed commission, composed of English and German colonial officials. The German Government then announced on the 4th of August that Herr Kranel, the Consul-General, had been appointed to sit on the commission on behalf of Germany, and it further stated its views as to the place of meeting and the labours of the commission. The correspondence closes with a despatch of Lord Granville dated the 16th of September, in which he notifies his general concurrence in those views.

OUR MELBOURNE LETTER.

MELBOURNE, MARCH 4.

There is just now an epidemic of suicides in Melbourne. They are variously drowning themselves, cutting their throats, shooting themselves through the head, taking prussic acid, and getting decapitated on the railway. There is no obvious explanation of this run upon self-murder; it is not the weather. The weather, for the most part, has been pleasant. It is not bad times. Everybody admits that we were never more prosperous. In some cases it is liquor; but then liquor is always at work, and there is no more liquor drunk just now than at other times. Nor can it be that love or matrimonial troubles are in greater excess than usual. We are compelled to fall back upon electricity, and concerning the degree of electric tension now prevailing, I cannot with accuracy speak. I record the fact that a good many people have precipitately gone out of the world during the last few days, and that a number of others have tried to do so, and have failed. Some of the failures have been investigated at the police courts, and the offenders have been cautioned not to experiment upon themselves any more. They looked shockingly miserable when they were brought up, and one could not help wishing they had not failed, out of sheer pity for them.

A very different kind of offender was brought up yesterday at the City Court, and fined £20, for stealing a picture out of one of the books in the Public Library. His name is Henry Kingston, and he is said to be "respectably" connected. I believe it is nearly always "respectable" people who mutilate books in this way. The greasy, sleepy loafer thumbs them, and now and then he will steal a book in order to sell it to get him a drink, but he does not mutilate it. I have myself seen in the Public Library books with dozens of leaves cut out of them, apparently by persons who wanted them for some literary purpose, for they were books which only a man of literary tastes would consult. For my own part, I have always thought it a mistake to allow people access to the Public Library without some sort of ticket. The absence of any condition of admission greatly facilitates the operation of those mean scoundrels who, having neither honour, conscience, nor decency, will lay their polluting hands upon whatever happens to come within their grasp.

Another interesting transaction at the police court—in this case it was before suburban Justices—has been the investigation of the Belvidere Hotel affair. A very unsavoury affair it was, and it has served to fill some columns in the newspapers, one of which, as a matter of course, gave the report a conspicuous position. Also, there have been various comments upon it, and the action of the police has been described as arbitrary, if not illegal. The worst aspect of the case is that it represents only one of many similar kinds of infamy, and as this statement has not been contradicted there is every reason to believe that a great many of the hotels in this city are used for exceedingly improper purposes. And so the old question of the sin of great cities has come up again, and we are asking one another what is best to do, just as we have asked each other many times before. About two years ago the question came up in the shape of a social purity movement, and a very imposing programme was laid down, but it was allowed to lie down, and there it still lies, like a good many other projects in this wicked city. It is certainly not encouraging that with so many organisations for the moral benefit of society, so little improvement is visible. Judging by what one sees in the streets, and reads in the newspapers, we are as bad as ever we were, and if anything growing worse. And withal presbyteries and synods, and church assemblies and conferences and Congregational unions, and other gatherings of holy men, take place from time to time, and yet so far as I can see, nothing comes of them.

Nobody seems quite to know, at this moment, why there should be raised a movement to put up in Melbourne a statue to Daniel O'Connell. As a voluble Irishman, as a successful barrister, and as an adroit gentleman who managed to persuade his countrymen to contribute for several years towards his maintenance, he kept himself well before the public for a long period. He prophesied that before he died he would obtain the repeal of the Union, and meet an Irish Parliament in College Green, and he has been dead these 38 years, and the Union is not repealed, and there is no Parliament on College Green. What on earth, therefore, we want with his statue in this part of the world it is difficult to say. But it was mentioned at the meeting of the Statue Committee the other day that a Jew had sent two guineas to the fund, and this liberal donation seemed to encourage them to resolve that the statue—when they get it—shall not be, as at first was intended, in front of St. Patrick's Cathedral, but in some more conspicuous place, namely, at the junction of Stephen-street and Collins-street. To which proposition I do not think that the City Council will ever agree, for all that the Burke and Wills monument stands at the junction lower down Collins-street. But in that case there was a local reason for the interruption to the roadway, which, however, it has always been considered would be very much better left free, and Burke and Wills removed to Fitzroy or Carlton Gardens.

And touching street interruptions, the City Council have just caused fierce anger in the Irish breast, and in that of the 'orny 'anded sons of toil, by declaring that the procession on St. Patrick's Day, and that other foolish exhibition on the anniversary of the eight hours' victory, as they are pleased to term it, shall no longer be allowed in the busy parts of the city. If they had forbidden them altogether they would have done a still better thing. These processions, besides being ridiculous displays of adult childishness, are a public nuisance, and full of danger by crowding the streets and interrupting traffic in the busiest hours of the day. They are in fact an imported relic of old customs which, being unmeaning in this part of the world, and having no warrant of prescription to justify them, ought never to have been permitted. The decision of the City Council, therefore, has given satisfaction to everybody except the shallow-minded persons whose delight it is to make guys of themselves in variously ill-designed costumes, and carry banners emblematic of their belief, and of their fixed determination to do something or other, or perish wholesale in the attempt.

And concerning the eight hours institution, the Council of the League, or whatever the collective body of eight hour believers call themselves, have just received a well-merited snub, in reply from the Railway Commissioners to a communication addressed to them by the council desiring them to concede to railway employees the eight hours' limitation of work. They have been told, in effect, that the commissioners know their own business, and decline to be dictated to by an irresponsible unconstituted body, whose authority is self-imposed. And this act of theirs is the more to be commended on account of its being in a direction the opposite of what it is the custom to take. Our Governments so constantly doff their caps to these dictators that it is quite a new sensation for them to be told to mind their own business. It is hoped that it is the beginning of a revolt against a grievous tyranny under which we have too long groaned, and the effects of which are seen every day in the complete demoralisation of the class for whose benefit the organisation is understood to exist.

The University council have announced that they want £15,000 for new lecture-rooms, and £10,000 a-year besides, for several future years, for the same purpose. And what is better, they think they will persuade Mr. Service to grant it, all of which is very encouraging, as representing the progress of our chief seat of learning, which is growing at a rate I suppose to be quite unprecedented in the history of Universities. The £10,000 which was obtained for additions to the medical school has all been expended, and the Faculty of Medicine are asking for £3000 more for fittings and furniture to complete the improvements. And in respect of the University buildings, the Wilson Hall, which is not yet finished, is undergoing a process of exfoliation which, at the rate it is at present proceeding, will cause the entire disappearance of the building within the present, or at furthest, the next generation. That horror of architecture, stucco, stares us in the face as the only means of preventing its disintegration, a resource more shocking than the loss of the hall itself. Mr. Newbery thinks the decay can be arrested, for the present at least, by picking out the bad stones and replacing them with better ones. This course, he thinks, will not cost us more than £3000, most of which money will go in scaffolding, but as the scaffolding may remain up many years, until in fact all the stones that are determined to crumble away have crumbled, the first expense will be the most considerable. But it will hardly improve the hall to be encased for the next 30 years with poles and planks and travelling cranes.

THE CIVIL SERVANTS AND THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—My attention having been drawn to the letter of the Hon. Sir Henry Parkes, which appeared in your issue of the 5th instant, having reference to a circular addressed to the officers of a public department, inviting them to subscribe to the Patriotic Fund, and in which he states that "it is only just that the manner in which these subscriptions are obtained should be made public," for myself I can only say I am pleased to find that it has been made public by "A Dissentient Officer."

The circular is as follows:—"The Patriotic Relief Fund for Widows and Orphans of the Australian Contingent for the Soudan campaign. It has been resolved by the gentlemen of the Department of Justice to voluntarily subscribe one day's pay each towards 'The Patriotic Fund for the relief of the Widows and Orphans of the Australian Contingent for the Soudan campaign,' and all officers under the Department are cordially invited to co-operate in this laudable movement. Any subscriptions remitted to the honorary treasurer, Mr. S. G. Baiff, accountant, Department of Justice, will be promptly acknowledged. H. J. CHISHOLM, hon. sec. S. G. BAIFF, hon. treasurer, Department of Justice, 24th February, 1885."

The letter which Sir H. Parkes refers to as having been sent to him reads thus:—"Honoured Sir,—When will this thing stop—the 'gentlemen' of our Department conspiring and 'resolving' that we, the 'officers,' should 'voluntarily subscribe one day's pay to the Patriotic Relief Fund'? I've refused, Sir, because I don't agree with the movement, and don't care to be 'cordially invited' to do things by my superiors. A copy of this has gone to every warder in the country—poor unfortunates! Every starving C.P.S. or other officer is to come 'down' with his cordially invited subscription.—A DISSENTIENT OFFICER." To the first question asked in this letter, i.e., When will this thing stop? all that I can answer is, that I hope and trust it won't stop till a handsome sum has been subscribed. I cannot see how the wording of the circular should have offended the sensitive feelings of "A Dissentient Officer." He states: "The 'gentlemen' of our department are 'conspiring' and 'resolving' that we, the 'officers,' should voluntarily subscribe one day's pay to the Patriotic Relief Fund." I should like to know how the "conspiring" comes in. He further states: "I've refused, Sir, because I don't agree with the movement." Now, if "A Dissentient Officer" had given that reason for refusing to aid the widows and orphans fund, no one could blame him for giving expression to his own opinion and feelings in the matter, but the poor "Dissentient Officer" goes on to say he does not care to be cordially invited to do things by my superiors. Who are his superiors that are asking him? Surely he does not refer to the hon. treasurer or your humble servant, for we are only clerks, and in fact, I can safely say that, instead of superiors asking juniors, it has been the reverse. He states also, a copy of this has gone to every warder in the country I am very thankful to hear this "welcome fact" from "A Dissentient Officer," for it is well known that there are very many warders in Sydney and in various parts of the country who have served in many a military campaign, and when it is known by them that we are asking their assistance, that we shall not only receive their subscriptions, but also a few words of sympathy for the object in view. He also states: "Every starving C. P. S. or other officer is to come down with his cordially-invited subscription." Now, if the "Dissentient Officer" would inform me the name of the "starving C. P. S." perhaps "A Dissentient Officer" might, under the sad circumstances, be disposed to forward his subscription. Mind I do not ask him a day's pay, nor do I cordially invite him; yet, considering his sensitive and humane nature, in all probability he might be disposed to forward a trifle to the starving C. P. S.

It is very strange that we have not only received some subscriptions from the C.P.S.'s, but also such kind expressions accompanied their gift that to our minds made the gift more valuable.

One of the unfortunates referred to by a "A Dissentient Officer," who is in receipt of a small salary, sent a telegram saying, "Deduct half of my salary for this month towards the Patriotic Fund."

Another officer writes thus:—"I gladly avail myself of this opportunity, kindly afforded, to forward my subscription towards the Patriotic Fund for widows and orphans of the Australian Contingent for the Soudan campaign. I send you herewith my cheque on the Bank of New South Wales, of this date, drawn in favour of the hon. treasurer, for the sum of £1, and I beg most heartily to thank you both for your thoughtfulness and courtesy in thus inviting my co-operation."

I trust you will give this short note a space in your columns. I would not have presumed to have answered Sir Henry Parkes' letter if it had not been for the fact that the term "conspiring" had been used. None of the immediate superiors of our Department knew anything about the circular, and it was only yesterday I asked my superior officer if he would subscribe one day's pay to the Patriotic Relief Fund. His answer was "Yes; what is the amount," &c.

Now, I am sure Sir Henry Parkes will acquit those who may have taken this matter up with any idea in the remotest degree of "conspiring" to take one day's pay from our fellow-officers.

Our fellow-officers have only been invited to forward their subscriptions. It is a free country. They can remit the amount or not, just as their feelings prompt them.

I am, &c., H. J. CHISHOLM,
Hon. Secretary to the movement.
6th March, 1885.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It were well, perhaps, if the heads of departments or public offices who may feel desirous of issuing circulars (as some, I believe, have done), enjoining the officers or servants under them to subscribe to the Patriotic Fund, remembered or have in mind that a man does not lose his individuality because he may become a member of the Civil Service or the servant of a public company, but that he has rights and privileges inalienable, and certainly quite independent of his position therein, which it would be an unwarrantable impertinence for any person whomsoever to abridge, interfere with, or to deprive him of. Now, surely one of these privileges must be the perfectly free option as to whether he will or will not give to any public subscription that may be at any time afloat.

I have somewhere read, I think, the injunction that "when thou givest alms to the poor or needy, let not thy right hand know what thy left hand doeth." How much more, then, should it be a matter of secrecy (as far as possible) the precise amount a man may be disposed to give for any general cause, instead of being made known to the whole community in which he moves, without his consent.

It is vanity, and nothing else, which desires it "proclaimed from the housetops," or in the daily papers.

I am, &c.,
A CIVIL SERVANT.

ANOMALIES IN RAILWAY FARES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As attention has been directed to trains travelling along the Southern line, by your sub-leader in to-day's Herald, now may be a good time to refer to another aspect of it.

According to the railway time-table and fares book, an excursion ticket, 1st class, for any distance over 200 miles, say to Albury, is available only from Friday evening till Tuesday, 4 days. If, however, a traveller wishes to stay one week, the fare there and back to Sydney is £6 9s. 6d., for 772 miles.

To Melbourne a return ticket is available for two months, the fare being £6 1s. 6d. for about 1146 miles. Of that amount Victoria, according to mileage, should receive about £2, leaving as New South Wales' share to Albury and return £4 1s. 6d.

This is free trade with a vengeance, but at whose cost?

A WONDERFUL MIRAGE.—The Persian correspondent of the London News writes:—"At a ponert of our route we got a glimpse of the great salt desert—the Dasht-i-Kavir. Let anyone look at the map of Persia, and it will be found that there is a great space in its centre, which is a desert. We have been travelling from Teheran close to its northern border, at times almost touching it, and one morning we got a sight of a large white expanse. This was the salt crust from which the desert is named. If there is much of it as white as the portion we saw, those who have to cross it are not to be envied. Near to it a striking mirage was produced. Whether the salt or the whiteness had any influence my scientific acquirements are unable to determine. There were a few ordinary-looking hills; we passed close to them the day after. These assumed the most fantastic shapes. First their forms raised in the air till they became towers or steeples; then a horizontal elongation took place—this was at the top—and the appearance of a railway viaduct was the result, such as the Britannia Bridge. Every few minutes a change occurred; the horizontal line broke down in parts, and one hill became an ironclad ram, the ram being beautifully defined and a bowsprit above. The ship had also a turret, and while gazing at it a funnel rose up, telescope-like, as men-of-wars' funnels are—and a great hole opened through the hull, as if the enemy's shot had done its work. A few minutes more and the hills resumed their ordinary shapes; the influence then moved to the right, and a more distant range began to change; in this case a number of small peaks rose up, with larger ones among them. Some became towers, while other became columns, and we could easily have fancied that it was the ruins of temples and other important structures, the remains of some ancient city, we were gazing at. I have seen the mirage in the desert often before, but never anything like this. Phantom sheets of water, flat and quivering with reflections, are common, but I never saw before the mirage of a stream running down hill till about a hundred yards distant, and the water seemed to flow down at a rapid speed. The sun was rising behind at the time, and the liquid was bright and glowing, having much the appearance of molten metal as it comes from the furnace.

OUR BRISBANE LETTER.

BRISBANE, MARCH 1.

Ministers are invited to and attend many feasts, but they do not give their entertainers much return in the way of political information. This week the trip was to Stanthorpe, when the usual show was followed by the equally usual lunch. The member for the district, Mr. Loxton, gave broad hints of the assistance he would like to see given to the tin-mining industry. He seemed particularly to desire Government help in discovering lodes of vein tin, though he did not explain why the holders of mineral sections—which we grant as freeholds—should, after making one fortune by the exhaustion of the surface deposits, receive a Government grant to look for another fortune in the bowels of the earth. The Premier did not commit himself to any statement on that delicate subject, but he gave another angry disclaimer of being influenced by "malignity" or motive of that kind towards the sugar-planter. Mr. Griffith supposes himself to be accused of destroying the sugar-planters, to gratify some sentiment of vindictiveness, whereas the accusation is that he adopted a line of policy which was certain to have that effect, and persuaded himself, or persuaded other people, that it would have no such effect. Now that the sugar-planters are shutting up, Mr. Griffith's critics say, "I told you so," and he is very angry. Mr. Miles on the same occasion told his audience that he meant to have the railway connection to the border finished soon. He seems to be at loggerheads with railway contractors generally, and is denouncing them with characteristic vigour. But that particular railway is to be made, if he has to make it by day work. It would be very wrong to do this, Mr. Miles admitted, but he would do it rather than allow the junction to be delayed much longer. The Minister for Works also made another noteworthy declaration. Speaking of the new Land Act, he said that he hoped the income from land would reach £1,000,000 in 10 years. This is a very moderate estimate, because even now it is over £600,000, and a short time ago Mr. Miles hoped to get his million from the squatters alone, and very soon after the passing of the Act.

The new Land Act, by the way, comes into operation to-day. It would, perhaps, be more proper to say that the previous Acts cease, for there is no signs of any activity about the new body. The members of the Land Board have been appointed, and they duly sit in their temporary office. It is understood that they have a list of regulations ready, but they are not yet published; but that seems to be all. They have, it is presumed, "recommended" all sorts of things; but nothing, it is believed, has been done. There is no land ready for proclamation. Now this is more than a negative fault. Our custom, as you know, has been to resume land in large blocks, ahead of requirements, and throw it open to selection. Of land so resumed there are some millions of acres lying vacant in different places. Now it is all shut up. There is to be no more selection under the old law, and the new law is not ready to start. The engineers are busy trying to get up steam; but as yet not even a fizz has made itself audible. Meanwhile it is no longer legal for an intending selector to take up a bit of waste land in any part of Queensland, and nobody knows how long it will be before the interdict is removed.

The new Defence regulations were issued on Thursday last, and though there has as yet been no expression of opinion from those who will have to work under them, they certainly appear to the civil mind well calculated to achieve the objects aimed at. As has been before mentioned, the force will consist mainly of three branches—the permanent force, which is to serve principally as a means of training the other branches of the service, and which will consist only of one garrison battery of artillery, comprising 3 officers and 150 men; to these will be added the volunteer corps and the rifle clubs, in addition to the Naval Brigade now in course of formation, and the Cadet Corps in different parts of the colony, which are sure to be popular with the lads, and to form a good recruiting-ground for the other portions of the force. The officers of the force with the exception of acting lieutenants will have to pass an examination prior to appointment or promotion, and while drill holds a prominent place throughout, the officers of the higher grades will be expected to show proficiency in such subjects as field fortification, erection of stockades, attack and defence of houses, and others certain to be of practical ability in actual service. It is noticeable that the privilege of writing to the papers or of deputationising members of Parliament can only be enjoyed in future at the risk of dismissal in the case of officers and of a £3 fine for privates. The press has not of late been on very good terms with the heads of the Defence Force, and before the regulations were issued it was rumoured that no reporter would be allowed at the Easter encampment. However, wiser counsels appear to have prevailed, and as it can scarcely be regarded as one of the privileges even of an Australian to discuss the conduct of his superior officer in the public prints, no one will complain of the new regulation in this respect. The evident care to secure thorough efficiency on the part of officers as well as men, will meet general approval; and if Colonel French can but realise the difference between volunteer or semi-volunteer forces in this country and the regular troops with whom he has previously had most to do, we may hope ere long to possess a really serviceable body of men. There is a good deal of dissatisfaction at the way in which the police have been turned out of the Victoria Barracks, which have been their home for a good many years past, to make room for the permanent force men. The barracks were, no doubt, designed and built for military purposes; but it is sincerely to be regretted that a well-trained body of men like our police should be obliged to find lodgment wherever they can, in places quite unsuited for them, and separated from one another in a way that makes discipline impossible; and it is unfortunate that their first acquaintance with the Defence Force, with whom they would have to act in case of emergency, should be of so unpleasant a nature. Colonel French, in one of his recent reports complained that the Defence Force of the colony had been obliged to give way to all other departments—that their barracks had been appropriated by the police, their drillshed by the Railway Department, and so on: probably he thinks their turn has come now, and is determined to make the best of it.

A case was tried at the District Court a few days ago which should serve as a wholesome warning to the class of people who seem to think the Immigration Department of this colony has been established to provide a cheap means of travelling from England to the southern colonies. The loss to Queensland from this source has long been known and appreciated, and in the last Immigration Act a clause was inserted making it punishable with fine and imprisonment for any person arriving in the colony as a free or assisted immigrant to leave again within three months. The culprit in the case referred to was found on board a southern-bound steamer, on his way down the river, a day or two after his arrival here, and was promptly arrested and brought back. The evidence showed that not only had he infringed the Act in this respect, but that, having previously been in the colony, he made a false declaration to secure a passage, which is granted only to those going out to the colony for the first time. He was, moreover, an evident invalid, and apparently quite useless as a colonist. The Judge sentenced him to one week's imprisonment, as it was shown that he was in very poor circumstances and had a wife and child dependent upon him. The penalty fixed by law is a fine not exceeding £50, with or without imprisonment not exceeding 12 months. It is the first case of the kind tried in our courts—indeed, when some months ago proceedings of a similar nature were initiated by one of the officers of the Immigration Department, they were quashed by the Colonial Secretary's instructions.

The business (and talk) of the Municipal Council is getting so heavy that one long sitting a fortnight no longer suffices them. This week they sat both on Monday and Tuesday, and some important matters came up for discussion. Prominent among these is what for the sake of brevity we call the abattoir question. At present the slaughtering of meat is carried on by the butchers at private slaughter-houses situated in various parts of the suburbs, and from two to five miles out of town. These places are almost invariably a nuisance wherever there is population in their neighbourhood, and the establishment of public abattoirs has long been talked of. Some weeks ago the members of the Municipal Council went out to look at a place suitable for this purpose about 10 miles from town on the route of the proposed line from Brisbane to Gympie. This was generally approved, but the Mayor, who has his own ideas on the subject, has written to the Minister for Works urging him to procure suitable refrigerating cars, so that the meat might be slaughtered near the stations where it is grown and brought down by rail to the cooling-room which the corporation propose as an adjunct to their new market. This idea received but little support in the council, and a deputation to the Government was agreed upon to ascertain what are their views on abattoirs, and to ask for aid in choosing a suitable site.

The telegraph wire has no doubt informed you that at length definite arrangements have been made for the introduction of British capital to aid in developing the Charters Towers goldfield. The visit of Mr. Charles Oxland to report upon the Disraeli Prospecting Claim has resulted in the formation of a company in London to take the matter up. This mine now shows an 8-feet reef, assaying 2½oz. to the ton, and there is good reason to believe that the company will spare no expense either in procuring the stone or in getting from it the last possible grain of gold. Mr. Oxland's standing in the estimation of mining speculators and capitalists at home is, I believe, calculated to give them implicit confidence in his report; and the fact that he has formed a favourable opinion of Charters Towers is likely to have a very important bearing upon the future of the field. We have unlimited room for the expenditure of money in mining enterprise, not only on Charters Towers, but at Herberton, on the Hodgkinson, the Palmer, and even on our southern goldfields. News has been received that the Great Australian copper mines at Cloncurry have started smelting, but the operation has not yet proved successful. The main lode has recently been struck there, and is found to consist of almost pure copper. It will be remembered that a railway to this field, from the Gulf of Carpentaria, is among the lines voted last session, and there is no doubt a great future before the field, though many difficulties are met in working it at present.

The craze for town and suburban allotments continues here as strong as ever. Last Saturday two estates were put up for sale by auction—both of them several miles from the city boundary—and, according to the auctioneers' reports, 310 allotments were sold, representing £7211, and, indeed, a good deal more, if one reckons the interest that will have to be paid before all the instalments are cleared off. Meanwhile, the value of Queen-street property continues to advance, and a frontage of 21 feet, which was bought shortly before Christmas at £300 per foot, was resold a few days ago at £350.

THE HIGHEST POINT OF MOUNT KOSCIUSKO.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It was my intention not to have taken part in the correspondence which has appeared in your columns under the above heading, nor should I do so now were it not for a letter inserted in your Thursday's issue from Dr. Von Lendenfeld, in which he says: "It seems that some of the Cooma people, who were displeased that any one from Sydney should assert that he knew more about a part of their country than they knew themselves, persuaded Mr. Spencer to put his name under a letter published in your issue of the 18th instant, which he has certainly not written of his own accord, and which he can scarcely have written at all." To my mind this is an attempt on the part of Dr. Von Lendenfeld to cast a reflection on the people of this district, to whom I am in a position to assert, myself not being one of them, Dr. Von Lendenfeld is greatly indebted for any good that may have resulted from his visit to the mountains.

With regard to Mr. Spencer's letter, which has so evidently disturbed Dr. Lendenfeld's equilibrium, I may say that a few days subsequent to his sending his letter, Mr. Spencer came to me, and knowing that I had some knowledge of the mountains spoken of the correspondence which had appeared upon the matter, and of his own letter, which Dr. Lendenfeld has seen fit to stigmatise "as a concoction of some of the Cooma people." His statement to me then was substantially the same as that which I afterwards read in print, and the emphatic and earnest manner in which he said that he repeatedly told Dr. Von Lendenfeld of others who had ascended the hill before him, strengthened by my own knowledge of others who had made the ascent (myself amongst the number) years before, convinced me that he was telling the truth, which Dr. Von Lendenfeld for some reason chose to ignore. To those who know the country about Kosciusko—and there are many people now both in this colony and Victoria who know it intimately—Dr. Von Lendenfeld's telegram from Cooma, published in the Herald, must have been highly amusing, for of the higher peak which he then so sensationally described, afterwards in one of his letters he says "I could drive my buggy from Sydney to the top of it." That it is possible to drive a buggy from Sydney to the foot of the mountain I am not prepared to admit, but having arrived at the foot, it would be quite practicable to drive it to the top. The mountain itself, which has been properly described as a rounded dome, is noted for the sweetness of its pasture, and it is quite a common occurrence in summer for cattle and wild horses to feed over the top of it. These horses and cattle, upon the first indication of rough weather, make in, or are driven in, to the lower ground; and heaps of bones in different places, in some cases representing 18 or 20 animals, testify to the fact of some who have remained too long, and huddling together have perished in the snow. Dr. Von Lendenfeld, in one of his letters, claims to have discovered this country, which he further describes as being perfectly free from snow for eight months of the year. By reference to the occupation branch of the Lands Department he could be made aware of the fact that the run "Excelsior," upon which Mount Kosciusko stands, has been held and occupied by three different Crown lessees, viz., Messrs. Spencer, Wallace, and Ramsay, for terms of five years each, and in each case it has been abandoned at the end of the term, on account of the severity of the climate. So much for his discovery. With regard to his statement, viz., that it is free from snow for eight months of the year, I will refer to another of his letters, in which he says, describing a water hole:—"Notwithstanding the fact that this water is frozen for eight months of the year, I found it full of animal life." Dr. Von Lendenfeld was singularly fortunate in having good weather for his trip; but I think the Surveyor-General's experience will bear me out when I say that you cannot depend upon being free from snow there at any time of the year for one day. I think it is unnecessary for me to quote further from Dr. Von Lendenfeld's letters, as I believe I have abundantly shown that his illustration of the "broken pot" is more applicable to his own inconsistent statements than to those to which he has applied them.

I will conclude by saying that I have been on the top of the "higher peak" upon three different occasions. First, in company with Mr. T. H. Bell, who has contributed to this correspondence through the Melbourne papers, in February, 1882, when, although neither of us had ever been within 30 miles of the mountain before, we found our way out and back entirely without a guide. Again, in March, 1883, with Mr. Stock-inspector Hudson; and again in January last, when I accompanied Mr. Meyrick, of the King's School, Parramatta, a well-known scientist, when we saw the cairn which had been erected a few days previously by Dr. Von Lendenfeld's party. I may say that before ascending the hill with Mr. Meyrick, I pointed it out to him as the one I had ascended before, and also as that which I, in common with others, believed to be the highest point on the range, although at that time I did not know that it was the one referred to by Dr. Von Lendenfeld in his memorable telegram. THE BISHOP OF RIVERINA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I beg permission to call the attention of all members of the Church of England to the announcement already made of the services of welcome to the Bishop of Riverina, at the Cathedral, in the morning and afternoon of Sunday next; and the reception to be held at the Church Society's Rooms, at 4 p.m., on Monday. Uncertainty as to the exact time of the Bishop's arrival has prevented our giving longer notice, and I therefore trespass on your kindness in order to enable the attendance of both churchmen and churchwomen at the services and the reception. I am most anxious that the deep interest which we all feel in the establishment of the new See should be openly expressed in a hearty welcome to the Bishop, who comes to undertake so important and so arduous a work.

I am, &c., ALFRED SYDNEY.

SLEEPLESSNESS.—Sleep is a perfectly natural function. It is not a negative act, but a positive process. Herein lies the difference between real sleep and the poison-induced torpor which mimics the state of physiological rest. We ought to be able to sleep at will. Napoleon and many busy men—the late Mr. Wakley, for example—developed the power of self-induced sleep to such an extent as to be able to rest whenever and wherever they pleased, for longer or shorter periods, as the conditions admitted. We have been led to believe that Mr. Gladstone at one time possessed this faculty. If that be so, his recent insomnia must be assumed to have been the result of such intense brain-worry as inhibited the control of the will; or there may, of course, be physical causes which render the apparatus of the cerebral blood-supply less manageable by the nerve centres. In any case, it is much to be deplored that, in the study and treatment of insomnia, the profession generally does not more clearly and constantly keep in memory that what we call sleeplessness is really wakefulness, and that before it is justifiable to resort to the use of stupefying drugs the precise cause of disturbance should be clearly made out. This, of course, takes time, and involves a scientific testing of the relative excitabilities of the sense-organs, central or radial and peripheral. The discovery of the cause, however, affords ample recompense for the trouble of searching for it. With the sphygmograph and a few test appliances, such as Galton's whistle, an optometer, and other instruments, the recognition of the form and cause of sleeplessness can be made in a brief space, and then, and then only we protest, it can be scientifically—i.e. physiologically—treated.—Lancet.

SCOTT'S Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, for Rickets, Marasmus, and all wasting disorders of children, is very remarkable in its results. The rapidity with which children gain flesh and strength upon it is very wonderful.—[ADVT.]

THE EXPLORATION OF NEW GUINEA.

A meeting of the administrative council of the Geographical Society of Australasia was held at the rooms of the society, 142, Phillip-street, on Monday afternoon, the 2nd instant, Sir Edward Strickland in the chair. A letter was read from the Principal Under-Secretary, enclosing and referring to a copy of a letter from the Premier of Victoria, in which it was stated that the £1000 voted by the Parliament of Victoria towards the expenses of the exploration of New Guinea could be paid over to the New South Wales Treasury when deemed necessary. A letter from the hon. secretary of the Victorian branch of the society was also read, reporting and detailing an interview between some of the leading members of that branch and Major-General Scratchley, and conveying suggestions made by the Victorian branch to the effect that this society should assist Mr. Forbes in his proposed exploration of the Owen Stanley range of mountains. A cablegram was put before the council from Mr. Forbes, in which that gentleman offered to join an expedition under either Mr. Lawes or Mr. Chalmers; and asking, if neither of those gentlemen was able to go, whether the society would co-operate with him. The Rev. W. G. Lawes, who had been present at the interview in Melbourne with Major-General Scratchley, attended the meeting in response to an invitation. He stated that he could not himself undertake exploratory work, not being strong enough, but that Mr. Chalmers was eminently fitted to lead any expedition by reason of his great powers of endurance, though he was not likely to be free to undertake anything this year. Mr. Lawes warned the council against using natives as carriers, they being so superstitious that they might desert at any moment. The Hon. P. G. King having written a letter expressing disapproval of funds subscribed in the colonies being used to support an expedition sent out by the English Geographical Society, Mr. Lawes stated that Mr. Forbes was not sent out by that society, but that they had merely helped him by a small grant. The chairman thought that Mr. Forbes made a speciality of botany, and that if he went alone he might give undue preference to that branch of science. Mr. Brodribb expressed his dissent from several of the opinions of the Victorian branch in reference to high-land exploration. Dr. Belgrave suggested that the society should support Mr. Forbes by a grant, and also appoint several competent observers to accompany him. The following resolutions were ultimately agreed to:—"(1.) That this society select two gentlemen to join Mr. Forbes in the exploration for geographical purposes generally of the Owen Stanley Range. (2.) That out of the funds at the disposal of the society, say, £500 be contributed towards the general expenses of such exploration, the services of the gentlemen selected by this society being paid for entirely out of the funds at its disposal. (3.) That the information gleaned by the several members of the expedition, together with the natural history, botanical and other specimens collected, be made available to and be distributed equally between Mr. Forbes and the societies represented by him of the one part and this society of the other part. 4. That if Mr. Forbes agrees to the foregoing conditions, he and the gentlemen appointed by this society decide the question of leadership between themselves. 5. That the exploratory committee be requested to consider the details of a riparian exploration in the South of New Guinea, preparatory to an expedition next year into the interior of the island." The meeting then adjourned.

On Thursday a deputation consisting of Sir Edward Strickland, Hon. W. A. Brodribb, M.L.C., Mr. Harrie Wood, and Dr. Belgrave, met Major-General Scratchley by appointment, at the Colonial Secretary's Office, with reference to the exploration of New Guinea. Sir Edward Strickland said the council of the New South Wales branch agreed in the main with the suggestion of the Victorian branch, and informed General Scratchley of the resolutions that had been agreed to. Sir Edward also said that the Geographical Society was extremely anxious to commence operations at once. Major-General Scratchley replied, expressing his approval of the arrangements now laid before him, and remarked that it was his wish to do his utmost to promote the objects of the society.

The Victorian council having been advised by telegram that important proposals had been sent by mail, met on Thursday night, and yesterday telegraphed their general concurrence. Consequently a cablegram has already been despatched to inform Mr. Forbes that the society will co-operate with him in the exploration of the Owen Stanley Range, that details will be mailed to Batavia, and asking to be informed of his movements.

A meeting of the exploratory committee of the society was held on Thursday, Mr. Harrie Wood in the chair. Some correspondence was read and discussed. The chairman referred to the arrangements at present being made by the administrative council, which would be put before the exploratory committee very soon. Both the administrative council and the exploratory committee will meet early next week, when it is expected that the initial steps will be taken in the arrangements needful for an expedition to explore the Aird or some other river on the south coast of New Guinea.

THE RUSSIAN PLEDGE AS TO THE AFGHAN FRONTIER.

A correspondent writes to the Times:—It will be recollected that Sir Peter Lumsden made, with those members of his staff who accompanied him from Europe, a preliminary visit to the country around Sarakhs, pending the arrival of the escort from India; and that he found a considerable Russian force encamped at Pul-i-Khatun, about 60 miles south of that place, and situated on the banks of the Heri Rud. He at once informed the Foreign Office of the fact, and our Government in due course instructed the English Ambassador at St. Petersburg to request that these troops should be withdrawn from a place which was included within the limits of the proposed delimitation. The important fact to be borne in mind by those who desire to appreciate the justice of the request which Lord Edmund Fitzmaurice stated had recently been made at St. Petersburg is that, by the admission of the Russian authorities themselves, the task of the joint Commission is to delimit the frontier of Afghanistan from Khojah Saleh, on the Oxus, to Sarakhs. How is it possible to delimit the frontier in the specified manner if Pul-i-Khatun is violently appropriated by the Czar's officers? The presence of Russian troops at a place 60 miles of south Sarakhs is obviously an infraction of both the spirit and the letter of the agreement, which was intended to strengthen the amicable relations of the two Governments.

The following passages taken from the last published collection of official correspondence relating to Central Asia (No. 1, 1884) afford the basis on which our demands have been formulated, and deserves being prominently recorded for future reference. In Lord Granville's despatch of February 22, 1882, it is stated:—

"Prince Lobanoff has now received the reply of his Government. They acknowledged the continued validity of the agreement formerly entered into by Prince Gortschakoff, by which Afghanistan was admitted to be beyond the sphere of Russian influence. That agreement was, however, as I had said, incomplete; and they were ready to supplement it by a settlement of the frontier of Afghanistan from the point where it had been left undefined as far as Sarakhs."

Again, Sir Edward Thornton, our late representative in the Russian capital, wrote in his despatch of April 29, 1882 (in which it was said that M. de Giers had asserted that "Russia had no intention whatever at present of advancing towards Sarakhs or Merv, or of occupying with her forces any territory in that region beyond what was already in her possession," although within one year of that declaration Merv was occupied and a position opposite to Sarakhs placed in the possession of a Russian garrison) on the subject of the delimitation of the Afghan frontier as follows:—"M. de Giers added that with a view to preventing disturbances on the borders of Afghanistan he considered it to be of great importance that the boundary of that country from Khojah Saleh to the Persian frontier in the neighbourhood of Sarakhs should be formally and definitely laid down, and that he had instructed Prince Lobanoff to endeavour to induce her Majesty's Government to agree to the adoption of measures for this purpose."

This is the most important passage in the whole of the correspondence, and it shows that the Russian Government took the principal part in the initiation of a commission, as well as in defining the scope of its operations, which were to be the delimitation of "the boundary of Afghanistan from Khojah Saleh to the Persian frontier in the neighbourhood of Sarakhs."

TEACHERS AND THE CIVIL SERVICE ACT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The Minister of Public Instruction misunderstands the voice of the large and thoroughly representative meeting of Public school teachers, held at the Temperance Hall in January last, whose mouthpiece in the shape of a deputation of seven waited on him last Saturday. If those seven gentlemen in the course of their remarks led him to infer that the teachers were complaining of their salaries, they committed an error. But I am more inclined to the view that the Minister has been led to form his opinion from letters which have from time to time appeared in the daily papers, written by the few who, under any system, will be found to consider themselves underpaid; and that he looked upon the deputation as on the same platform as the writers in question.

The concluding sentence, however, of your sub-leader of the 3rd instant so clearly and tersely put the teachers' case that I cannot do better than quote it: "If teachers are compelled to pay into the fund, with less chance than others of getting any benefit from it, their case so far demands reconsideration." The teaching body, as a whole, will, I am sure, bear me out when I say that their contention is, that they are compelled to pay into the fund with less chance than others of getting any benefit from it. I am, &c., 5th March, 1885. QUANTUM SUFFICIT.

The Vienna Politische hears from Alexandria of a remarkable incident which has occurred in connection with the pending action against the Egyptian Government. It appears that Sir Evelyn Baring heard by some means that Borelli Bey, counsel for the Egyptian Government, intended to plead in defence of the Khedive's Government that they acted under the irresistible pressure of the English Cabinet, which, therefore, should alone be made responsible; whereupon Sir Evelyn induced the Egyptian Government to take the defence out of the hands of Borelli Bey, who has accordingly delivered up the papers connected with the lawsuit. The Vienna papers generally disbelieve the report that Slatin Bey, along with some of Gordon's men, fell victims to a trap laid by the Mahdi. Slatin is a born Austrian, and was former Governor of Darfur. He was captured long since by the Mahdi, and taken to El Obeid, whence he wrote to his mother and sister in Vienna, and nothing has been heard of his escape to Khartoum.

RUSSIA IN CENTRAL ASIA.

(From the London Daily Telegraph)

Although attention is just now directed naturally towards the Upper Nile and South Africa, the coasts of China, and the islands in the South Pacific, it would be unwise to ignore the effect of persistent Russian encroachment in Central Asia upon the future of British India. The startling new fact—new we mean during the last twelve months—is that the Russian troops are in such positions as would enable them to seize on Herat at any moment which might be deemed expedient. The situation of to-day was foretold with striking accuracy many years ago; but the men who had carefully studied the question and were able to indicate the consequences of Russian policy in Central Asia were reviled or treated with pitying contempt. The holders of power and accredited guides of public opinion seem to have lacked not merely the higher quality of imagination, but the more ordinary power of reduction. If they did not come within either description they acted as if they did, at least after Lord Clarendon passed away, except, during a lucid interval when the Government of the day was induced to draw what we have often called the Granville and Gladstone Afghan frontier line—a sort of "thus far and no farther" on paper. Sixteen years ago the drift and aim of Russian policy was as evident as it is now, an offensive movement towards India made in the hope that it would limit or paralyse the action of England from the Dardanelles to the Persian Gulf. The entire design, begun in 1853, and carried on unfalteringly after 1860, was manifest enough to all who thoroughly studied the question from a sane point of view. These "alarmists," as they were called, were met by ridicule and denunciation, by hollow lofty phrases falling from the lips or pens of "superior persons"; and those who were thus contemned, as well as disregarded, can find no consolation in the indubitable results which have amply justified their foresight. The Black Vulture, as Vambery styled the symbol of Russia, flew from Tashkent to Samarcand, from the capital of Timour to Khiva, from Krasnovodsk to Askabad, and thence to Merve, Sarrakhs, and Pul-i-Khatun. At every stage warning voices were uplifted, and were met sometimes by scoffs, and again by solemn words which passed for "arguments," and were as shallow as they were confident. Russia naturally fell in with the prevailing vein, and by plausibilities, protestations, and even pledges, supplied her British auxiliaries with rotten foundation for their imposing fabric. There was no intention of approaching India; there were burning sands, arid rocks, lofty and impassable mountain chains; no end was sought save the suppression of slavery, the punishment of bad neighbours, the extension of commerce, and—but that was omitted—the enforcement of an almost prohibitive tariff on every new stretch of frontier. Thus the Khanates were absorbed, the Turkomans mastered, and Afghanistan, as well Khorassan, threatened with a like fate. What has happened during the last sixteen years, including the construction of a railway from the Caspian shore, was all predicted; yet at each successive stage those who were supposed to know, and did not; those whom it was presumed could see, yet who could not; those who were responsible, but were unable or unwilling to fulfil their trust, jeered at or denounced the prophets of coming evils, which have now come.

Have we any solid assurance that the situation now is understood, that the lessons read by the past have borne fruit, that the magnitude of the problem is sufficiently recognised? There is nothing to show that the Government is fully alive to the actual position beyond the fact that an Afghan Frontier Commission is encamped near Maimenah, awaiting the arrival of Russian colleagues, Russian troops are seizing on strategic points nearer to Herat. Russia, it seems, intends to mark out her borders first, acting on the maxim that possession is nine points of the law, and compel us to accept them, or, what would suit her best, leave the whole subject open. She is the champion of nationalities in Central Asia, and will be content only with the entire territory to which the Turkoman tribes lay claim. There is not much hope, therefore, that the boundary marks will be put down further back from Herat than preliminary usurpation can carry them, and this increases the danger, now absolutely demonstrable, that the forces she can wield will enable Russia, if she chooses, to lay hands, not only on Herat, but on Maimenah and Balk. The appointment of Mr. Lessar—who surveyed the country for a railway and reduced to a line of sand-hills the "impassable mountains"—to a confidential post in the Trans-Caspian regions, is alone sufficient to indicate the real aim of Russian endeavour. Even if we put down a line of boundary stones, more or less to our own satisfaction, the peril to Herat will not thereby be conjured away. The Caucasus and the Trans-Caucasian provinces are full of troops as far as Kars; a railway unites the now fortified port of Batoum with Tiflis, and Tiflis with Baku, and both armies are available for employment east of the Caspian; while no one can say how many battalions, squadrons, and batteries are already in Turkestan and the new Trans-Caspian conquest. As was long ago foreseen, Russia has secured her end—the acquisition of such points of vantage as give her the option of choosing her own time for a stroke at Herat, and bringing a pressure to bear on the Court of Teheran which will compel Persia to place the resources of Khorassan at her disposal. The Government have for some time been in possession of authentic information and specific logical proof showing exactly what is possible and feasible, and the precise nature of eventualities which, alike in India and Central Asia, they or their successors may have to encounter. Heavy will be their responsibility should they contemn or ignor the clear demonstration laid before them, as in former times the sagacious forecasts of Sir Henry Rawlinson, now accomplished facts, were derided and disdained. "By their fruits ye shall know them," it has been said; but hitherto the maxim has not been allowed to hold good in the case of Russia, and accomplished statesmen, quitting the ground of common sense, have based their action on fantastic conjectures and sentimental dreams. Yet they all knew and know what a formidable shake to the very bases of our rule in India would be given by the conquest of Herat by a great European Power. So far, after years of emphatic warning, we have done nothing to parry or arrest the coming peril except occupy Quetta, begin a railway thither—denounced as wicked by party spirit when first proposed—bridge the Indus at Attock, subsidise the Ameer of Cabul, and send a commission, which the Russians are treating with scant courtesy, to define the Western Afghan frontier.

Within the borders of India itself little—we might almost say, nothing—has been done by way of direct preparation. Lord Mayo, Lord Northbrook, Lord Lytton, were more or less paralysed by foregone conclusions and party exigencies bred at home, while Lord Ripon had neither the temperament nor the capacity when the occasion demanded; and thus a heavy burden is laid upon the shoulders of Lord Dufferin, who will also be subject to the influences bred in the changing atmosphere of Westminster. The war of classes and races initiated by the retiring Viceroy was not calculated to strengthen the roots of power. The extension of railways is the only overt and indirect kind of work done towards meeting obviously possible events. For the rest, none of the projects recommended after the military mutiny have been carried out. It is a startling fact that, although India has ceased to be "an island" in its relation to the Great Powers, and although the French are advancing through Tonkin and even Siam, on one side, while Russia is within striking distance of both Herat and Cabul, we have fewer armed men in the Empire than we had before the mutiny. The Native Army was reduced by nearly one-half its strength, and, if the British forces were increased, the standard then set up has not been maintained, and is now below what it was even a few years ago. Nothing has been done to make use of the troops raised by the Native Princes, some of which are good, others bad, with the exception of those belonging to States whose lot is plainly bound up with our own. No new fortifications have been built, and no means of protection, near the great cities, have been constructed. At this very moment, when a dark cloud is above the horizon, the Indian Government, if it were imperilled by bold aggression beyond the present North-Western frontier, would find it most difficult to collect a force of all arms of more than respectable pretensions to the style and title of an army. If it were at all certain that the Government, taking a sound view of the new situation, were making, or were prepared to make, needful efforts for the purpose of supplying what is needed, we might be silent. There is no such certainty; and hence there is no sense in burking the facts and keeping them obscured from the public eye. We have not enough troops of any arm in India under the novel conditions which neglect of warnings and party conflicts have allowed to come into being. There are two broad schools who deal with this question of defence. One would meet a Russian invasion on the Indus, the other would encounter the enemy above the passes. The first would collect an army in the Punjab and Scinde, the second would carry it into Afghanistan. Without expressing an opinion adverse or favourable to either school, we declare advisedly that, on the conditions prescribed in each case, India has not the military means of satisfying its exigencies. But it is said, soldiers, guns, stores, could be rapidly sent from home. We should like the candid opinion of the War Office on that proposition. The troops would have to be made, or the United Kingdom left bare. It is not a pleasant outlook, and of course it is "alarmist," but it displays the truth about India, and the sooner we set about acting up to its teaching, and supply ourselves with what used to be our proudest possession, a real and ample Navy, the base of all, the better chance we shall have of keeping India untouched, and retaining other things which fanciful politics may fling away.

According to the Shanghai correspondent of the Standard, Japan appears determined to create trouble respecting the Corea. Notwithstanding the reported conciliatory attitude of China, it is doubtful whether order will be established without producing international complications. The Japanese Government has protested against the conveyance of the King to Shanghai at the instance of the Chinese Government. Quan, the Chinese Commissioner, recommends that his Majesty should be sent back to Corea. Meanwhile, Herr Paula, the German Consul, has left Tientsin, with the intention, it is said, of accompanying the Corean King.

THE agonising itching and burning of eczema or salt rheum instantly relieved by a warm bath with Cuticura Soap and a single application of Cuticura, the great skin cure. This, repeated daily, with two or three doses of Cuticura Resolvent, the new blood purifier, to keep the blood cool, the perspiration pure and unirritating, the bowels open, the liver and kidneys active, will speedily cure eczema, tetter, ringworm, psoriasis, lichen, pruritus, scall-head, dandruff, and every species of itching, scaly and pimply humours of the scalp and skin, when the best physicians and all known remedies fail.—[ADVT.]

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY, MARCH 6.

Jury Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice FAUCETT and a jury of four.)

MURRAY V. M'NEILL AND OTHERS (PART HEARD).

Mr. Salomons, Q.C., and Mr. Pilcher, instructed by Mr. F. R. Burcher, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Rogers and Mr. M'Culloch, instructed by Mr. A. H. M'Culloch, jun., for the defendants. The evidence for the plaintiff, who claimed damages for illegal distress and conversion of goods, was closed on Thursday, and evidence was called on behalf of defendants. The defence set up was that at the time of the alleged distress or trespass, the goods referred to were the property of defendants, Charles Sweetland, Thomas Brooks, Charles Frederick Stokes and William Laing, all residents of Newcastle, under a bill of sale signed by W. B. Christie and Sarah Theresa, and that they were in the possession and use of the latter with the consent of the defendants. The bill of sale in question was originally made by W. B. Christie and his wife in favour of one W. H. Wesley, and transferred by him to the four defendants mentioned, with the full consent and knowledge of the Christies. In August, 1884, the defendant Blunsum was instructed by Messrs. M'Culloch and Pope, solicitors to the assignees of the bill of sale, to take possession of the furniture contained in such bill of sale, and a bailiff was thereupon put into Christie's house, but was subsequently withdrawn upon a promise by the Christies to pay £50 on the bill of sale by a certain date. Plaintiff knew of the bill of sale and assignment, but notwithstanding this knowledge he caused the furniture to be removed to his residence in Rushcutter Bay, and on the 20th September, 1884, the bailiffs were put in and removed all the furniture from plaintiff's house which they could identify by the bill of sale, leaving a large amount of furniture and effects. The furniture seized was afterwards sold by auction, and realised less than the amount of the bill of sale. As to the statement made by Mr. Christie that Sweetland, Brooks, Stokes, and Laing agreed to take a transfer of his interest in a certain mineral conditional purchase at Molonglo, then considered very valuable, and to relieve Mrs. Christie's liability under the bill of sale to Westley, it was totally untrue, as they took an assignment of the bill of sale only at the earnest solicitation of Mr. Christie, and upon a promise that £50 would be paid off by a certain date. The transaction in reference to the mineral conditional purchase was, as alleged by defendants, quite a distinct one, and had nothing to do with the transaction in regard to the bill of sale. Evidence having been called in reply, Mr. Rogers addressed the jury on behalf of defendants, and Mr. Salomons was replying when the Court adjourned.

Banco Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice WINDEYER and a jury of four.)

WATSON V. COMMISSIONER FOR RAILWAYS (PART HEARD).

Mr. Lingen and Dr. Donovan, instructed by Mr. R. B. Smith, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. M. H. Stephen, Q.C., Mr. Salomons, Q.C., and Mr. C. B. Stephen, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, for the defendant.

In this action, which was one to recover compensation for injuries received in a collision on the Great Western Railway, owing to the alleged negligence of defendant, the evidence for plaintiff was concluded yesterday, and evidence was to-day called on behalf of defendant in reply. Sir Alfred Roberts, medical adviser to the Railway Department, gave evidence that the injuries sustained by the plaintiff were not of such a character as to affect him permanently.

William P. Read, traffic manager of the Government railways, gave evidence to the effect that his order for the use of the screw coupling only was brought about by a report from Mr. Middleton, who was then acting locomotive engineer; that owing to the use of the centre chain several accidents had happened in consequence of the breaking of the draw hooks or bar upon which the chain had a bearing-down action; the breakages referred to had occurred from the strain upon the draw hooks and bars, and not from the breakage of the chains themselves, which were strong enough; no screw coupling had broken up to that time; it was not intended to apply to engines where the screw couplings were used; it was upon the report of Mr. Middleton, and from his own special observation, that he issued the order for the disuse of the centre chains with the screw coupling on goods and stock trains; he thought it would be better if they used only one centre chain, and supposing a screw coupling to be in good order, he was of opinion that it would be sufficient; the screw coupling which was alleged to have been broken in the accident had not been found. Thomas Middleton, locomotive overseer, gave evidence that in 1882 he wrote a minute in regard to the method of coupling stock trucks; he considered either a screw coupling, with the two side chains, or a centre coupling chain with the side chains, safer than two centre coupling chains; in England they used either a centre chain or a screw coupling, and he never saw two used until he came to this colony; the effect of having two centre chains was to cause the breaking of the shackle; he thought it would be much better to revert to the old system of having only one coupling. George Cowdrey, engineer for existing lines, stated that for goods trains a single coupling was in his opinion the best, because it took an even strain, whereas double couplings were likely to cause breakages; he had never seen a screw coupling and chain used together; where screw couplings were used they did not use the centre chains; he considered a single coupling safer than two couplings. John Cobb, locomotive foreman, gave evidence that he had never seen two couplings used on the railway lines; in some cases the double coupling might be the best, and in others the single coupling might be safer; he never saw the screw coupling and centre link used together in England. William Scott, locomotive engineer, gave similar evidence, and this concluded the case for the defendant.

Counsel having addressed the Court,

His HONOR summed up, pointing out that at common law a master was not liable for any injury to any servant in his employ caused by the negligence of a fellow-workman. An Act had been passed extending the liability of a master under certain circumstances, but the present case was not one which in any way came under that Act. The plaintiff complained that he was injured in consequence of an order issued by the defendant, and which order was improper, negligent, and dangerous, and that defendant knew that it was so. Unless the jury found that in issuing this order of the 23rd April the defendant knew it to be dangerous, the plaintiff could not recover, however much they might sympathise with him. It was impossible to help sympathising with any man who had sustained the injuries which plaintiff said he had suffered; but at the same time they had to try to do justice between the plaintiff and the defendant, who represented the public; and it was not because it was a very sad thing for the plaintiff that he had received these injuries, that he was entitled to a verdict, unless he made out his case. It was not necessary to decide here absolutely whether the order which was issued by Mr. Reid, the traffic manager, was an order issued by a fellow-servant of plaintiff's. Whatever his opinion might be upon the matter, he thought it better that the jury should find on the facts of the case, and leave the other matter to be decided by the Full Court. His impression was that Mr Read was a fellow-servant with the plaintiff in the employ of the Commissioner for Railways. The House of Lords, the highest tribunal in England, had held that it did not matter what might be the relative positions of persons in the employ of another, and that they might still be fellow-servants within the meaning of the law; and one marked difference in rank was the captain of a ship and the humblest cabin-boy or sailor on board; and it was quite clear that if a sailor of a ship was injured by a want of prudence or foresight, or by negligence of a fellow-servant, the sailor injured had no action against the employer. He did not know that any stronger illustration than that could be given. It appeared to him that the traffic manager with reference to the Commissioner who employed him was just as much a servant of him as the plaintiff, and therefore the plaintiff could not recover, even supposing that it was shown beyond all doubt that the order issued by Mr. Read was an improper and dangerous order, and known to be so when Mr. Read issued it. That, however, was a matter to be decided by the Full Court, and he gave no direction in regard to it. If he did so he should direct the jury to nonsuit the plaintiff. His Honor then placed the facts of the case before the jury. He asked them to answer the following questions:—(1) Was the order to disuse the centre chain coupling in connection with the screw coupling improper and dangerous? (2) Did Mr. Read know that such order was improper and dangerous?

The jury, after about 20 minutes' consideration, answered the questions in the negative.

The verdict was therefore for the defendant.

HOLMES V. DIGHT.

Mr. Heydon, instructed by Messrs. Lawrence and Rich, appeared for the defendant, but as the plaintiff did not appear, a nonsuit was recorded.

In Chambers.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice WINDEYER.)

BLAKENY V. PEGUS AND WIFE.

Mr. Fitzhardinge, instructed by Mr. Newell (agent for Messrs. R. and L. Jenkins), moved on behalf of defendants for a rule nisi in the above matter. The action, which was tried at Maclean District Court, Clarence River, was brought by plaintiff to recover damages owing to the missending of a telegram by Mrs. Pegus, telegraph stationmistress at Yamba, Clarence Heads. At the close of the plaintiff's case a nonsuit was moved for by Mr. Fitzhardinge, but refused by Mr. District Court Judge Murray, and a verdict was given for plaintiff. A rule nisi was now moved for, either to nonsuit or to enter a verdict for defendants, on the grounds that the action was not maintainable in law, that the wrong persons were sued, and that certain evidence was wrongly admitted.

The rule was granted, returnable on the first day of next term; proceedings to be stayed in the meantime.

In Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction.—(Before his Honor the PRIMARY JUDGE.)

IN RE MARTHA CREASE'S WILL.

On Thursday week, Mr. Knox moved for probate in the will of the late Martha Crease, the property being sworn under £671. In her will the testatrix described herself as a widow, but it appeared that her husband, from whom she had been living apart for many years, was still living. The land had been conveyed to her as a married woman for her separate use for life. She had mortgaged the property for £200, the greater part of which was paid into a banking account in her own name, and remained so at her death. By her will she gave two legacies of £10 each, and devised the real property which was subject to her power of appointment without reference to the power, and appointed executors. Probate was asked for on the ground that the will was not one of realty only, and that the devise was a good execution of the power.

His HONOR intimated to-day that he would grant probate.

DIVORCE COURT.—FRIDAY.

(Before his Honor Mr. Justice WINDEYER.)

BRETNALL V. BRETNALL.

Mr. Hanbury Davies, instructed by Mr. Ashton Shorter, moved that the decree nisi, granted on May 20, for the dissolution of the marriage of Elizabeth Bretnall (petitioner) and William Parrett Bretnall (respondent) be made absolute.

The motion was granted, and the decree nisi made absolute.

INSOLVENCY COURT.—FRIDAY.

(Before the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.)

In the matters of A. W. Mills, H. E. Mills and E. J. Mills, A. F. Forbes, A. A. Wood and Jabez Brown. Second meetings were held and terminated.

In the matter of W. M. Coward. The second meeting was adjourned to the 13th proximo.

In the matter of Joseph O'Neill. A special meeting for proof of debt was taken, and terminated.

In the matters of R. B. Phillips, John Canna, and F. Weekes. Single meetings were held and terminated.

In the matters of Chas. Warren (deceased), T. C. Neaves, and John Emerson. Special meetings for proof of debt were held and terminated.

(Before the REGISTRAR.)

In the matters of J. P. Stephenson, J. W. G. Cox, and J. Raymond. First meetings were held and terminated.

To recover £43, for goods sold and delivered. Verdict for the plaintiff.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.—FRIDAY.

(Before his Honor Mr. Justice INNES.)

Mr. Foster and Mr. Gibson prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

THE WYADRA MURDER.

Charles Watson, an elderly man, was arraigned upon a charge of having, on the 26th July, 1884, at Wyadra, feloniously murdered one William Matthews. Mr. O'Ryan, instructed by Mr. Fitzgerald, appeared for the prisoner.

The facts of this case were published in Friday's issue, the evidence having been completed on Thursday.

Mr. O'Ryan commenced to address the jury at 10 o'clock, and concluded his remarks shortly after 12 o'clock. He reviewed the whole of the evidence, and in his opening remarks characterised the case as one of the most extraordinary cases that had ever been heard. He contended that the prisoner's statement as to how he became possessed of the waggonette and horses, identified as Matthews' property, was a reasonable statement. He dwelt at some length upon the extraordinary facts elicited with regard to the identification of the body of the murdered man, and urged that the prisoner should be acquitted, as the police had failed to produce the Frenchman, Dubourg, whose absence was quite sufficient to cause a very great doubt in the minds of the jurymen. He contended that the evidence of some of the witnesses with regard to the identification of some of the articles alleged to have been the property of William Matthews, was of such a character that it should be accepted with caution by the jury. He stated that the fact that the prisoner had remained in the district a short distance from where the murder was supposed to have taken place was in itself evidence that he (prisoner) knew nothing about the crime. In conclusion, he asked the jury to give the case their earnest consideration, and to give the prisoner the benefit of any reasonable doubt which might exist in their minds.

The Crown Prosecutor (Mr. Foster) briefly replied, drawing attention to the salient points of the evidence which pointed to the prisoner's guilt.

His HONOR summed up at some length, reviewing the whole of the evidence. He explained the rules laid down for the direction of juries in cases of circumstantial evidence, and referred to the points of similarity which apparently existed in the appearance of the two men, Matthews and Dubourg, and read portions of the evidence, which clearly established the identification of the murdered man.

The jury then retired to consider their verdict, and after an hour's deliberation found the prisoner guilty.

In reply to the usual question as to whether he had anything to say why the sentence of the Court should not be passed upon him, the prisoner passed up a written statement to the Judge, in which he asserted his innocence and prayed the mercy of the Court.

His HONOR, addressing the prisoner, said: "Charles Watson, you have been found guilty of the crime of murder. Notwithstanding your assertion in the letter which has been handed up to me, and which shows that you anticipated the verdict of the jury, I am bound to say the evidence to my mind has been simply irresistible. Your statement to my mind is simply incredible. There was in your case, as in the case of other murders, no human eye-witness of your crime, and you took great pains to try to conceal the crime of which I feel no doubt you are guilty. Your crime has been brought home to you in a conclusive manner; you committed a cruel and cowardly murder, and I suppose it was greed for the chattels of your unfortunate victim that caused you to take away the life of this unfortunate man, who was your companion, and, as far as we can learn, your friend, and probably your benefactor. I cannot see one single circumstance of palliation for the crime, nor yet one single circumstance to justify a single doubt in the case. It is utterly in vain for you to delude yourself with any mistaken idea, for I have to tell you at once that in this world no mercy can be extended to you. It is necessary for the wellbeing of society that your life must pay the penalty of your crime, and I earnestly entreat you to make preparation during your few remaining days." His Honor then passed sentence of death upon the prisoner in the prescribed form, and he was removed from the dock.

INDECENT ASSAULT.

John Fowler was arraigned upon the charge of having indecently assaulted a child named Henrietta Elizabeth Wheeler at Hornsby, on 5th February. Mr. Edmunds, instructed by Mr. Bowden, appeared for the accused. The case for the Crown was opened, but it was found that the child, who was only four years and seven months old, was too young to give evidence, and the case had to be abandoned. The jury, by the direction of his Honor, acquitted the prisoner, and he was discharged.

The Court then adjourned until 10 o'clock on Monday morning.

LAW NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT—SATURDAY, MARCH 7.

Prothonotary's Office.—Christian v. Woods, 10.30.

Master's Office.—At 10.30 a.m.: Calder v. Calder, to settle minutes: Godfrey v. Poole and another, to tax costs.

CORONER'S INQUESTS.

The adjourned inquest on the body of William King, a waterman who plied between Balmain and Glebe Point, which was found floating in the waters of Johnston's Bay, on Monday last, was resumed by the City Coroner, at the South Sydney Morgue, yesterday morning. It will be remembered that the body bore marks of violence on it when it was discovered by the police. After hearing evidence, the following verdict was returned:—"We find that William King was found dead in the waters of Johnston's Bay on the 2nd instant, with certain marks of violence appearing on his body; and we further find that his death was caused by suffocation from drowning, but how, or by what means, he came to be drowned, or how he received the injuries, there is not sufficient evidence to enable us to say; and, considering all the circumstances of the case, we incline to the opinion that the deceased came to his death by foul means."

A verdict of "died from natural causes" was returned by a jury yesterday, at the coronial inquiry held by Mr. H. Shiell, J.P., at the South Sydney Morgue, on the body of Thomas Reynolds, who died suddenly at his residence, Terry-street, Surry Hills, on the 4th instant.

EVERY Englishwoman will remember how useful Hudson's Extract of Soap was in the old country for washing, cleaning, and scouring everything. You can obtain a 1/2lb. packet from every storekeeper in the colony. Ask for it, and see that the Trade Mark "Arm and Dolly" is on every packet.—[ADVT.]

POLICE.

At the CENTRAL POLICE COURT, yesterday, Mr. Abbott, S.M., presided in the Charge Division. Richard Thompson was fined £5, in default three months' imprisonment, for using indecent language in Campbell-street. Peter Byrnes, who was fined for drunkenness, was also fined £5 for using indecent language in Campbell-street; on the third charge, assaulting the arresting constable he was sent to gaol for three months. Thomas Grant, who was fined £5 for using indecent language, was charged with having a watch illegally in his possession. The prisoner was arrested in the act of pawning the watch, and was unable to give any satisfactory account of it. The watch was subsequently identified as the property of a man named O'Shea, who stated that he lost it in December last. The prisoner was sentenced to three months' imprisonment. James M'Ivor was charged with a similar offence. The accused was seen in company with a drunken man at Five Dock, and shortly afterwards was caught with a silver watch, which he was examining. He failed to explain how it came into his possession, and was sent to gaol for three months. Mr. Clarke, S.M., presided in the Summons Division. Edward Parker, landlord of the City View Hotel, Elizabeth-street, and Samuel Garratt, landlord of the Fosterville Hotel, Campbell-street, were each fined £3 for Sunday trading; and Michael Dunn, landlord of the Napoleon Inn, Kensington-street, was fined £4 for delaying the police when they demanded admission.

At the WATER POLICE COURT, yesterday, Mr. Johnson S.M., presided in the Charge Division. A lad named John Hogan was ordered to be imprisoned for six hours for stealing a silk handkerchief, value 5s., the property of Cecilia Andrews. A little boy named Thomas Barrett, who was detected stealing three copies of the Herald after they had been delivered at residences in Begg-street, was similarly dealt with. Michael Donnelly was fined 40s., in default 14 days' imprisonment for trespassing on the land of Frederick Hardy. Ferdinand Laurent was charged with stealing a portmanteau, a suit of clothes, and other articles, value £20, the property of Alfred Young; also a silk handkerchief and 10s. in money, the property of William Lane; also a suit of clothes, a silver medal, and a clasp, the property of George Bolton. According to the evidence, the prisoner was in the habit of going to boarding-houses, removing property, and then pawning it. He was arrested for the first-mentioned robbery, and a number of pawn-tickets for various items of the missing property were found in the lining of his hat. The medal and clasp were pawned with Joseph Solomons. In the case of Mr. Young's property, the prisoner was seen leaving the house with a portmanteau in his possession. He was committed for trial to the Quarter Sessions on the three charges. Philip M'Bride pleaded not guilty to the charge of indecently assaulting a little girl named Florence Hume, aged 8 years. Mr. Roberts appeared for the defence. Evidence was called to show that the accused bore an excellent moral character; but the bench decided that a primâ facie case had been made out, and committed the accused to take his trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions. Mr. Addison, S.M., presided in the Summons Division. Henry Sheehy was bound over to keep the peace towards George Turner for a period of six months, in his own surety of £10 and another surety in a like amount. Albert W. Aspinall was ordered to pay £1 per week towards the support of his wife, he having been charged with wife desertion. Inspector Seymour proceeded against a number of offenders against the corporation by-laws. Nine persons were fined for trotting across walk-over crossings, and two for allowing their premises to be in a filthy condition, the fines being respectively £6 and £2. Eight persons were also fined in amounts ranging from £1 up to £5 for loitering on the footways. A large number of citizens were summoned for allowing their premises to be in a filthy condition, but with the exception of those above-mentioned no fines were inflicted, presumably on account of the defendants having cleaned their premises.

At the REDFERN POLICE COURT, yesterday, before Mr. W. D. Meares, D.S.M., Christian Neilson, 18, was charged with stealing 5s. and 2s. 6d. the property of James Thompson. Mary Thompson stated that she lived with her husband James Thompson, who kept a shop in Ivy-street, Darlington; prisoner had recently been working for them, but was now working for a bottle gatherer next door; on Wednesday morning last she saw him in her husband's shop; he was leaning over the counter with his hand in the till; she called out and he ran away; witness put her baby down and followed him into the next yard; on returning to the shop she found the till open and 7s. 6d. missing; prisoner denied all knowledge of it; she then gave him into custody. He was sentenced to one month's imprisonment with hard labour.

MILITARY ITEMS.

The men who enrolled themselves for service in the Soudan contingent who were not required to proceed to Africa, owing to the large number of persons that applied to be sent on active service, have been provisionally discharged. Should any vacancies occur in the force which has left our shores it is more than probable that those who have been enrolled will be selected to keep up the strength of the battalion.

A very good class of recruits is now offering for enrolment in the Permanent Artillery, and the Acting Colonial Secretary has authorised the raising of the force in the colony to a total strength of 200 men, in addition to those who have proceeded with the Soudan contingent, and the enlistment of men for the purpose of supplying any vacancies which may take place in the contingent is now under the consideration of the Government.

Telegrams were forwarded by Mr. P. B. Walker, superintendent of telegraphs, up to 11 a.m. yesterday, in order that they might be in time to catch the troopships at Backstairs Passage, it being anticipated that the vessels would arrive at that place at about 4 p.m.

By direction of the Acting Colonial Secretary, the wives and families of the men who are proceeding to Africa are now receiving relief according to the scale approved of by the Government. It may be as well to remind those who are entitled to such relief that they should apply for it at the Brigade Office, O'Connell-street.

It has been suggested by Colonel Roberts that all country residents who are entitled to relief should receive the same through the medium of the police magistrates of the different districts. This course of action will be adopted.

The following ladies and gentlemen assisted in providing and making the mosquito nets with which the troops were furnished:—Mesdames Whitton, Mordaunt Clarke, A. Morris, Kingscote, G. Mann, Macafee, Stevens, Mitchelmore, Boydell, Lady Manning, and the Misses Bullard and Mann. Mrs. Colonel Roberts, who initiated the movement, also rendered valuable assistance. Messrs. M'Arthur and Co. contributed a number of nets, and the chief part of the netting. Farmer and Co., and Mr. Franklin (of Thompson and Giles), also helped forward the movement. In all 850 mosquito nets were distributed pro rata on the troopships.

The usual course of continuous training for the volunteers will be commenced at Easter.

The horses which were found to be unsuitable for service in the field were sold on Thursday. Some of them realised very fair prices.

CHURCH HOME.

The opening ceremony in connection with the Home established under the auspices of the Church of England Temperance Society at 242, Forbes-street, Darlinghurst, was performed by the Bishop of Sydney, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a number of ladies and gentlemen immediately interested in the movement. There were present—the Revs. T. B. Tress (hon. secretary), Canon Rich, J. D. Langley, C. F. Garnsey, T. Holme, E. C. Cranswick, F. R. Trivett, and Dr. Corlette, Messrs. E. Deas Thompson, E. J. H. Knapp, and T. B. Trebeck. The proceedings were commenced with devotional exercises. The Rev. T. B. Tress then reported what steps had been taken in connection with the establishment of the home. He stated that at the outset it was decided, by a committee, that the institution should be established under the auspices of the Church of England Temperance Society. A provisional committee was appointed, out of which an executive was formed. A sum of money was collected, the building was secured, and the services of a matron were obtained. The Home was formally opened on the 21st January, and since that time several inmates had been accommodated. The institution had accommodation for 20 inmates, and at the present time there were 14 in the home. Arrangements had been made by which the inmates could be provided with employment, such as laundry and needlework. Two of the inmates had obtained employment as domestic servants, and were doing well. Dr. Barry delivered a brief address, in the course of which he referred to the importance of rescue work, and stated that he thoroughly approved of the effort which had been made to reach the fallen. He contended that it was necessary to establish a home in order to do successful rescue work. He expressed pleasure at the institution being established as a "home," also as a Christian home, and as a home in connection with the Church, and devoted his address chiefly to those three points. The proceedings then terminated, and the premises were inspected by the visitors present. The home is at present confined to the premises in Forbes-street; but it is contemplated to establish, if possible, a country home into which the more promising cases can be drafted, leaving the city home to be used as a temporary refuge.

According to the proposed changes in the German customs tariff, the following will be the duties charged on the various articles specified:—Cotton twist, 48 to 120 marks per 100 kilogrammes; wheat, 3 marks; maize, 60 pfennige; jute twist and Manilla hemp, uncoloured and unpressed, 5 to 10 marks; ditto, coloured and pressed, 12 to 20 marks; dressed yarn and sewing thread, 70 marks; cords and ropes, 10 marks; salted fish in barrels, 3 marks; fish otherwise prepared, 12 marks; fish prepared, in hermetically sealed cans, 60 marks; oil in casks, 4 marks; palm and coconut oil, 2 marks; hogs' lard and fatty substances of the nature of lard, 10 marks; steric acid, 10 marks; fish fat and train oil, 3 marks; other animal fat, 2 marks; precious stones, also imitation stones, 60 marks; other stones, 6 marks, or if in connection with other materials, 24 marks; mats and floorcloth made of bass, straw, or grass, 3 marks. Oil and precious metals, unless expressly subjected to duty, asbestos skins, and hides for tanning, are to be exempt from duty. The duty on candles is raised from 15 to 18 marks.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Yesterday morning the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of New South Wales met, pursuant to adjournment, in St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street. The sederunt was constituted with reading of Scripture and prayer.

THE "PRESBYTERIAN."

The discussion on the petition from the directors of the Presbyterian Newspaper Company, Limited, was resumed by

The Rev. JAMES BENVIE, who supported the views expressed by the Rev. Dr. Geekie, and contended at some length that the paper, instead of helping the Church, had tended to sow discord.

The Rev. Dr. STEEL moved the following as a further amendment:—"Receive the petition, thank the petitioners for bringing the weekly paper under the notice of the Assembly; and appoint a committee to confer with the petitioners and to bring up some practical suggestions at a future diet of this Assembly." He regretted the tone of the paper, but did not agree with Dr. Geekie that the Church ought to be without a paper. If it were conducted in a manner directed by wisdom and restrained by love of the Church, it would be a benefit to the Church. They could not expect the secular press to give publicity to everything connected with their Church which they would like to see published; therefore it was well that they should have a paper of their own to convey congregational information to the adherents of their Church. He did not blame the paper for being too churchy; it was not churchy enough, and he should like to see fuller reports of church matters and well-written articles on church polity and matters of general church interest, so as to enlist the Presbyterian people throughout the colony in their general church work. He should like to see a federal paper, to which all the colonies should contribute. He advised the Assembly not to accept the original motion, nor to accept the amendment; but rather to appoint a committee to confer with the directors of the paper, who were the petitioners, and possibly to suggest to them a new departure.

The Rev. JAMES ADAM, M.A., contended that there was much about the paper which he admired. In its suggestions for the benefit of the Church there was much he admired, although he was quite ready to admit that there was much about the paper which would be better altered; but the same might be said of members of that Assembly.

The Rev. A. M. TAIT supported Dr. Steel's amendment.

The Rev. WILLIAM BAIN said he had been active in recommending the paper to members of the Church, and asked, if they let this paper go, where would they get another? He suggested that, if possible, the petition and motion should be withdrawn and Dr. Steel's motion be accepted.

The Rev. JAMES LAMONT submitted that the paper ought to be left to fight its own way.

The Rev. JAMES S. LAING supported the amendment of the Rev. Dr. Steel.

Mr. JAMES H. GOODLET, speaking as a layman, said that the ministers had had all their own way. The Presbyterian was doing well, and had largely increased the number of its subscribers. The paper was appreciated throughout the colony, and furnished good Sunday reading. The paper referred to inefficient ministers, and he maintained that there were inefficient ministers, not because of want of ability, but from other causes, and he advised everyone to examine himself.

Mr. ALDCORN said that, whilst he had every respect for their ministers, he thought it right that laymen should be allowed to speak about them. He thought the Assembly would do well to adopt the amendment by Dr. Steel.

The Rev. JAMES CAMERON, M.A., thought great credit was due to the directors for having continued the paper so long, and was of opinion that it had done much good for the Church in many directions. If the Assembly agreed to do away with the paper they ought to be prepared with something better, for the Church ought to have an organ.

The Rev. Dr. FULLERTON, by consent of the Assembly, withdrew his motion in favour of Dr. Steel's amendment.

The Rev. Dr. GEEKIE, having also withdrawn his amendment, Dr. Steel's amendment, which now became a substantive motion, was agreed to, and a committee appointed to confer with the directors.

APPLICATION FOR ADMISSION TO THE MINISTRY.

The Assembly resolved itself into committee of the whole to consider the application of the Rev. A. S. C. James, late a Primitive Methodist minister at Crookwell, to be received as a minister of the Presbyterian Church. The committee deliberated with closed doors, and ultimately

The Rev. G. MACINNES, moved the following deliverance:—"Receive the petition, and order the same to lie on the table till next meeting of Assembly. Instruct the petitioner to pursue his studies in theology under the theological tutors, during the three college terms of this present year and to present himself at the close of the year to the board of examiners for examination. Authorise the church extension committee to make such arrangements as may be practicable for the utilising of the services of the petitioner in preaching and missionary work as far as his time will permit whilst pursuing his theological studies. And instruct the theological tutors, the board of examiners, and the church extension committee to report fully and specially to the next assembly."

The Rev. JAMES COSH, M.A., seconded the motion, which was carried.

The assembly resumed, the resolution was reported to the assembly, and the report was unanimously adopted.

The sederunt then closed.

EVENING SESSION.

The assembly met at the usual hour in the evening, when the sederunt was constituted with the reading of Scripture and prayer.

REPORT ON SABBATH SCHOOLS AND RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

The Rev. ANDREW GARDINER, M.A., read the following report of the committee on Sabbath schools and religious instruction:—"Your committee have given diligent attention to the important department of Christian work committed to their care. As will be seen by reference to the columns of statistics, the number of Sabbath schools and of teachers and scholars has largely increased. The annual gathering of Sabbath school children at the time of the General Assembly was one of the most successful ever held. St. Stephen's Church was filled to overflowing. Suitable addresses were given by the Rev. T. E. Coulston, B.A., Penrith; Rev. J. H. Craig, M.A., Blayney; and the Rev. J. Burgess, M.A., Rocky Mouth. The presence of a number of the natives of the New Hebrides greatly interested the young people. The musical part of the meeting was under the able direction of Mr. A. Bowen and Mr. James Anderson. The arrangement under which the Sabbath school association was discontinued and its work taken over by the Sabbath school committee has not led to much practical result. The superintendents of schools, with one or two exceptions, did not respond to the invitation of the convener to associate themselves with the committee. In the month of September, however, a very interesting and well-attended conference of Sydney and suburban teachers (which had formerly been arranged for by Mr. Sutherland Sinclair, the secretary of the association) was held in the church at Liverpool-road, Ashfield. Such gatherings are very helpful and encouraging to teachers, and should be more frequently held than hitherto. The Congregationalists have quarterly reunions of this kind, which have done much to advance the interests of their Sunday schools and to increase the efficiency of their teachers. The annual examinations, held in August, were again attended with much success. Over 500 candidates presented themselves, and competitions were held in 35 centres throughout the colony. The papers sent in were on the whole better done than in any former year. The thanks of of the assembly are due to the Rev. Robert Collie, F.L.S., the Rev. James Paton, the Rev. A. Osborne, M.A., and the Rev. Henry Macready, who acted as examiners. About 70 essays were sent in on 'Why I am a Presbyterian' and the 'Life of John the Baptist;' and the thanks of the assembly are due to the Rev. Roger M'Kinnon, who acted as adjudicator on the former, and Mr. James Anderson, sen., who adjudicated on the latter. This whole scheme of examination, which has so deeply interested our young people all over the Church, owes much of its success to the publicity and the kindly aid given by the editor of the Presbyterian. The committee would direct the attention of the assembly to the syllabus for 1885 now laid on the table, and they would entreat ministers and elders, as well as parents, superintendents, and teachers, to bring this scheme frequently under the notice of the young under their care, so that the competition of 1885 may be more widely successful than that of any former year. Several of the schools in Sydney and suburbs, and a few in the country, have been visited during the year by members of the committee. Mr. W. Duncan, a member of the Lay Preachers' Association, at the request of the convenor, has also visited ten of the schools in and near Sydney. He has furnished the convener with a full and suggestive report of these visits, accompanied by hints from different superintendents, which will be useful in the management of the future general examinations. The thanks of the committee are due to Mr. Duncan for his services. Your committee are pleased to note that our admirable little periodical, the Children's Messenger, is now circulated in nearly all the schools. This year again the committee has printed a specially prepared scheme of lessons. As indicating the growth of our Sabbath-schools it is encouraging to note that this year 8000 copies have been disposed of, as against 6000 for 1884. The attention of ministers, superintendents, and teachers was directed to the day appointed for special united prayer for Sunday schools in October. It is gratifying to be able to report that the recommendation was very generally observed throughout the Church. In conclusion, while it is encouraging to note indications of progress and general activity in this very important part of the Church's work, let it not be forgotten that much more remains to be done. There are many children, both in town and country, who might be brought into our Sunday schools. The efficiency as well as the number of our schools might be improved in many cases. With a little effort to make the Bible classes more interesting, large numbers of young people might be induced to enter on higher Scriptural studies. Often too, teachers would be encouraged in their work if a little more interest was shown by the members of the Church in general and office-bearers in particular. Further it is a truth to be uttered again and again with emphasis that Sabbath-school teaching, however good, cannot make up for the want of religious influence and instructions in the home. The teacher may supplement the sacred work of the parent, but cannot take his responsibility. If fathers and mothers throughout the land would faithfully discharge their duty there would be less need for Sunday-school effort, and the larrikinism which is so rampant in many quarters would soon be effectually checked. God give us all, office-bearers, teachers, and parents, grace and wisdom to do what we can for the religious instruction and training of the young under our care. (Signed) ANDREW GARDINER, Convener." He was glad to say that they were making progress, both as regards the number of schools and scholars. The committee which had arranged the examinations had been very successful in their efforts. The work entailed a great deal of labour on all concerned, but it was labour well spent. He felt that this was one of the most important agencies of the Church, and he thought that ministers, superintendents, and teachers should endeavour to induce the children to go in for the general examination. He also thought it would be a very good thing for a day to be set apart every year for sermons to parents, or to young men. There was one thing he regretted having omitted from the report—namely, to thank the ladies and gentlemen who had readily subscribed towards the Sunday schools. He concluded by moving the following deliverance:—"Receive and adopt the report. Thank the committee for their diligence. Rejoice in the indications of progress in Sabbath-school work. Enjoin superintendents, teachers, and parents to encourage the young under their care to take part in the annual general examination."

The Rev. ALEX. OSBORNE, M.A., in seconding the motion, said he thought they ought to have some association in every congregation for inducing the lads who should be leaving Sunday school to pass into the minister's Bible class, and thence they would probably enter church membership.

The Rev. JAMES COSH, M.A., expressed his gratification at the satisfactory nature of the report, referring with particular pleasure to the Sunday-school examinations, which were inducing a love for Scripture studies in the minds of the children.

The Rev. JOHN AULD, M.A., regretted very much that Mr. Gardiner had resigned the position of convener, and suggested that the Assembly should associate another with Mr. Gardiner to assist him in the work. He moved to that effect.

The Rev. A. GARDINER, M.A., asked that his resignation should be accepted, as he was sure the work would be more prosperous under Mr. Osborne, and his own duties had become too heavy to permit of him filling the position.

After some discussion on this point,

The Rev. Dr. STEEL thought they ought to afford Sunday-school teachers an opportunity of instruction, and he thought it would be well if a class were formed from the ranks of Sunday-school teachers for the study of the history of the Presbyterian Church in Christendom.

The deliverance was amended by the addition of the words, "and direct the committee to arrange for an annual 'Children's Day,' when at all the services special attention shall be directed to Sabbath schools, and the religious well-being and instruction of the young." It was then agreed to.

The Rev. J. COSH, M.A., moved,—"In accepting the resignation of the Rev. A. Gardiner of the convenership of the Sunday-school committee, the Assembly would express its very high appreciation of the zeal and wisdom and abundant success with which Mr. Gardiner has discharged the onerous duties connected with this department of the church's work, and request the Moderator to convey to Mr. Gardiner the special thanks of the Assembly for his valuable services."

The Rev. JOHN AULD, M.A., seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The MODERATOR conveyed the resolution to Mr. Gardiner, who, in thanking the Assembly, said that he regretted having been compelled to take the step he had done, but was glad he was still on the committee, and assured them he would do all in his power to assist Mr. Osborne in his work.

COMMITTEE ON RELIGION AND MORALS.

The Rev. T. J. CURTIS read the following report of the committee on religion and morals:—"The operations of the committee during the past year have been well nigh exclusively confined to the making and carrying out of the arrangements necessary in the prosecution of the evangelistic missions which, on the recommendation of this committee, the General Assembly decided at its last session should be held in the presbyteries of the Hunter and Bathurst. With the consent of the presbyteries concerned, it was decided that of the four evangelistic deputies chosen by the Assembly the Revs. T. E. Clouston and A. Gardiner should visit the presbytery of the Hunter, and Revs. David Allan and J. Walker the presbytery of Bathurst during the months of September and October. From a week to a fortnight was devoted by the deputies to each charge visited, and services were held by them, assisted by the ministers of the respective charges, in the following places:—Newcastle, Hamilton, Lambton, Wallsend, Minmi, East and West Maitland, Singleton, Muswellbrook, Scone, Rouchel, Aberdeen, Eskbank, Bowenfels, Wallerawang, Mount Lambie, Bathurst, Blayney, Brown's Creek, Carcoar, Grubbenbong Creek, No. 1 Swamp, Trunkey, Wellington, Dubbo, Merrigoen, Binnaway, Coonabarabran, Belar, Bogildi, Ulundah, Westalabah, Oakey Creek, Gulgong, and Mudgee. A supplementary mission was held by the Rev. T. E. Clouston in Hinton, Largs, Seaham, Hamilton, and Lambton during the month of February. In furtherance of the missions, circulars, leaflets, and tracts were issued by the committee and largely distributed. The columns of the Presbyterian were also frequently availed of by the convener for the publication of progress reports and the advocacy of the movement, which was greatly helped thereby. It is not too much to affirm that this special evangelistic effort has been one of the most important, successful, and blessed works in which our Church has engaged. There is good reason for believing that in every place where a mission was conducted, our ministers' hands were strengthened; our people were refreshed, encouraged, and quickened into newness of life and activity; the careless were aroused, and sinners were converted. From many localities earnest requests have come that the special services be repeated. God has been with us and eminently favoured us in the work. We gratefully acknowledge His hand. The cordial thanks of the Church are due to the deputies. Their labours, involving so great a strain on mind and body in well-nigh continuous travelling and preaching during the progress of the missions, were arduous in the extreme; but well and faithfully did they prosecute the work to the end. Their hands were upheld by many prayers and much sympathy throughout the Church, and such hearty responses were made to appeals for contributions to the deputies expenses fund that with an expenditure of £88 2s. 9d., covered, the treasurer of the fund, J. S. Adam, Esq., has £23 17s. 2d. in hand as a balance for future use. The committee requested the deputies to furnish to the convener upon their return brief reports of their evangelistic work. Hereto are appended the reports of the Revs. T. E. Clouston, A. Gardiner, and D. Allan. Unhappily, subsequent to his return, the health of the Rev. J. Walker so failed him that he has been compelled to seek rest and change by a visit to Europe, and he was unable to prepare a report, but in a verbal communication to the convener he stated that his efforts had been eminently blessed to the furtherance of the ends sought; that he would most earnestly advocate the continuance of evangelistic missions; that Sankey's hymns and hearty singing had proved to be a great aid; that more time should be given to each place visited; that greater centralisation should characterise the work; that ample scope existed for the labours of a stated evangelist in addition to those of deputies. The committee, in view of the favourable issue of the evangelistic effort already made, recommend that the Assembly provide for similar missions during this year. The question of the appointment of a stated evangelist having been considered by the committee, it was agreed to submit to the Assembly for consideration, without prejudice. In compliance with the Assembly's instructions, the committee herewith furnish a report of the proceedings of the Young Men's Sabbath Morning Fellowship Union for the past year. It is gratifying to note that three additional associations have been established in connection with the Union, and that it is, to so large an extent, fulfilling the objects for which it exists. The report was received and adopted by the members of the Union at their annual meeting.—(Signed) T. J. CURTIS, convener." He also read the reports of the evangelistic deputies, &c., attached to the committee's report, and moved the following deliverance:—"Receive and approve the report; thank the evangelistic deputies for their faithful labours; adopt the recommendation of the committee to provide for special evangelistic services this year; approve the report of the Young Men's Sabbath Morning Fellowship Union, and thank the honorary secretary of the union for his diligence."

The Rev. JAMES BENVIE seconded the motion. He thought it would be a becoming procedure if they set apart a day for considering the great question of the progress of the work of the Church; and that they should also have a conference to ascertain and consider the hindrances to Christian work.

The Rev. T. E. CLOUSTON, B.A., in speaking to the resolution, expressed the opinion that more ministers should be despatched on evangelistic work, and that fresh ministers should be sent year by year. That, he thought, would prove beneficial both to the ministers and their congregations.

The Rev. JOHN AYLING spoke of the beneficial work done in his district by these evangelistic services, and trusted that the principle would be adhered to.

The Rev. A. C. GEEKIE, D.D., also commended the system of evangelistic work.

The Rev. A. GARDINER, M.A., as one of the deputies, spoke in favour of extending this movement by appointing at least four men, and thought that a committee should be appointed to arrange matters.

The Rev. DAVID ALLAN, one of the deputies, also spoke of the work, which he described as "breaking up the fallow ground," and if no immediate success were visible, their efforts must not be characterised as unfruitful.

Mr. JAMES ANDERSON testified to the admirable manner in which the services which he had seen were conducted, and hoped they would be continued for another year.

Mr. CHARLES S. BOAG spoke in favour of extending the missions where deemed desirable.

The motion was put to the Assembly, and carried unanimously.

The sederunt was then closed, the Assembly adjourning until Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock.

DEPUTATION.

THE TIMBER REGULATIONS.

Yesterday afternoon a deputation, consisting of Mr. W. T. Dangar and Mr. James Allen, waited on the hon. Minister for Mines, to whom they were introduced by Mr. R. B. Smith, M.L.A., in reference to the new timber regulations. The deputation complained that for the timber that was cut previous to the first of January this year they were asked to pay the timber licenses imposed by the regulations passed in this year, which, in the case of cedar, would mean £10 instead of £4. They also complained that the royalties under the new regulations were excessive, and would be ruinous to the timber trade.

Mr. ABBOTT promised that he would give instructions that the licenses under the new regulations were in no cases to be imposed in respect to timber cut under the old regulations, that is, prior to the commencement of this year; and that the old license fees were to be imposed in regard to all such timber of which, according to the statements of the deputation, there are large quantities felled several years ago, lying in the creeks waiting for a flood to convey them to the port of shipment. With regard to the royalties, Mr. Abbott pointed out that they only applied to such lands as were State forests or timber reserves in Class A. The royalties did not apply to timber cut on Crown lands, and the power to impose these royalties existed in reference to timber reserves exempted under the old regulations. He stated that it was not his intention to proclaim any more State forests or timber reserves until he had had the opportunity of considering all the objections to which his attention had been drawn. He would take care not to do anything which would be injurious to the timber trade, or place those engaged in it at a disadvantage as compared with persons importing timber. His only object was to prevent the wholesale destruction of timber which had been going on for so long in this colony. He assured the deputation that the old license fees would be continued for at least three months.

HOW RAILWAYS USED TO BE MADE.—Concerning the construction of the Otepopo tunnel, the Oamaru Mail tells a little story that deserves reproduction. The engineer of the work had committed a grave error in his calculations. Piercing had been carried on to a very considerable extent at both ends, when it was suddenly discovered by a more capable or expert engineer that if the work were completed as originally planned the holes at both ends would not meet. The mistake was rectified on paper, and tenders were invited for the completion of the work in the revised form. The contractor, evidently knowing better than the Government what he was about, tendered at a figure that would leave him a handsome margin of profit. There were other tenders lower than his, the lowest of which was about to be accepted. Then came the tug of war. The contractor gave the Government to understand that they could do what they liked, but he meant to go on with his original contract which would have ended in two blind holes in the hill. This threat had the effect which the wily contractor desired, and his contract was accepted. The result of this bit of stratagem on his part was that, instead of losing a large sum of money, as he could not have avoided doing on the original contract, he was, on the completion of the work, in possession of sufficient funds to purchase 3000 acres of land in the Ashburton district, on which, we are told, he has resided ever since. This story accounts for the crookedness of the tunnel.

PASTORAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Chief Inspector of Stock has this week received the following weather and stock reports for the districts named:—

ALBURY.—15 points fell on February 28, making 5 inches since the beginning of the year.

BARRINGTON.—Weather of late has been very warm. A great volume of water is coming down the Warrego, and Thena Creek is a banker. Fifteen months have elapsed since the last flood in this district. Grass and water are abundant, and the stock are rapidly improving in condition. Stock movements—40 horses passed on February 26 for Owenyouan, Messrs. Morgan and Watkins, owners.

BRAIDWOOD.—Splendid steady rain commenced to fall on February 28. Threshing is in full swing, many paddocks averaging between 25 and 30 bushels of wheat to the acre. The farmers complain of the low prices ruling—viz., 3s. 4d. per bushel, much wheat being used for horse-fodder, maize here being much dearer.

BREWARRINA.—Fifty-three points of rain fell on March 1. About 40 points of rain fell on the 3rd instant, but there was a heavier fall in various places throughout the district. Stock movements:—500 store cattle leaving Talawanta for Orange; 5000 ewes purchased for Charlton, and 9000 mixed ewes and wethers for Quantambone, are nearing their destinations; 12,000 wethers are leaving Bundabulla for Melbourne.

COONAMBLE.—Weather is fine and warm. Rain fell generally in this district on February 23, with the following results:—Warrina, 2 inches; Barradine, 2 inches; Buggil, 1 inch; Merri Merri, 1 inch. At On Dit there was a heavy fall; and at Euroka, near Walgett, 30 points were registered. On February 25 115 points of rain fell here, and 118 points fell at Walgett. Stock movements:—150 head of fat cattle travelling from Coonamble to Sydney, via Dubbo, Messrs. Morgan Brothers owners, passed; 140 head of fat cattle, from Billeroy for Sydney, via Mudgee, Mr. G. D. Lane owner; 2000 fat wethers, from Wingadee to Sydney, Messrs. Tobin and Sons owners. 5000 wethers from Warren; 4000 wethers from Kialgara, Mr. M'Killop owner; 3600 wethers from Nebo to Jerillie, Messrs. Goyder and Sons owners.

DENILIQUIN.—Weather very hot and sultry. In many places the grass is springing nicely, but more rain is wanted at once to strengthen the growth of herbage. Stock movements:—3750 sheep passed here, Mr. Kiddle owner, returning from Victoria to Steam Plains station.

GLEN INNES.—Stock movements here are 56 horses from Oban and Glen Innes to Toowoomba, Mr. James Wypi owner.

GUNDAGAI.—Stock movements:—9500 sheep, en route to Mossgale, on the Lachlan, Messrs. Pearson Brothers owners. 10,000 ewes from the racecourse, Gundagai, en route for Goree, Messrs. D. and D. S. Robertson, owners.

HAY.—Weather cloudy, and rain threatens. Grass is reported to be luxuriant in every part of the district. The river is 3 feet above summer level, and falling.

TAMBO (Q.).—Stock movements:—25 horses, from Toowoomba to Windorah; 14 horses, bound westward; 90 horses, from New South Wales to Blackall; 29 horses, from Tamworth to Diamantina; 200 cattle (mixed), from Tambo to Mr. Playfair—Mr. F. Biddulph, owner. The weather is cloudy and showery, though very warm.

WAGGA WAGGA.—Stock movements: 1100 ewes from Wagengonbernbia to Wagga, Mr. P. Hann, owner; 7600 mixed sheep from Billabong to Oura, Mr. G. Mulholland owner; 1600 maiden ewes, from Tootal to Wagga Wagga, Mr. P. Hann owner; 9000 ewes, Messrs. Rudd Bros. owners, from Tumut to Howlong, via Wagga Wagga, Narrandera, and Carrathool, at Currajong on February 26: 1100 four-tooth wethers, Mr. H. J. C. Terry's, from Humula to Rudd's Point, via Wagga, approaching; 11,333 mixed sheep, Mr. Hann's, start en route for Cunnamulla; 9900 merino ewes, from Ruthven to Queensland, Messrs. Armstrong and Urquhart, owners; 6960 mixed sheep, from Hanging Rock to Woolengough, Mr. J. King, owner; approaching, 1500 ewes from Benambra to Sunnyside, Mr. G. Armstrong, owner; 4500 wethers from Clifton to Wherne, Mr. Charles Bardwell, owner; 214 wethers from Brucedale to Maude, via Hay, Mr. R. Prendergast, owner; 5008 ewes and rams from Mylong, South Australia, to Banken's Springs, Mr. C. M'Farlane, owner. The following stock were trucked:—At the Wagga Wagga railway station during the month of February: 496 sheep, from Mr. Spiller to Messrs. G. and D. Harrison, Homebush; 20 bullocks, from Mr. A. T. Bolton, to Messrs. Dransfield Brothers; 303 sheep, from Messrs. Fosbery and Co., to Mr. F. L. Barker; 220 sheep, from Mr. A. T. Bolton, to Mr. S. M'Caughey, Jerilderie; 469 sheep, from Messrs. Fosbery and Co., to Mr. Barker, Homebush; 500 sheep, from Molong, to Messrs. Wilkinson, Graves, and Lavender. The following are the Old Junee stock passings:—3000 sheep, Mr. Heffernan, owner; 4000 sheep, Mr. Medcalfe, owner; 3300 sheep, Mr. Smith, owner. Weather has been cool during the last few days. There is a splendid supply of grass and water in the district. Some rabbits have been seen recently near the boundary line between Butherwa and Brookong stations, but they are not rapidly increasing, owing to the measures for suppression which have been adopted.

WISEMAN'S FERRY.—The following are the local stock crossings:—125 fat cattle, from the Hunter River for Homebush, Mr. T. Hewett owner; 202 fat bullocks, from Bulga for Riverstone, Mr. B. Richards owner. 122 fat cattle from Broke for Homebush, Mr. E. Borne owner. From Muswellbrook for Homebush, 118 mixed fat cattle, Mr. John Lynch owner.

(BY TELEGRAPH.)
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

CONDOBOLIN, FRIDAY.

The weather here is cool; 43 points of rain fell here on Monday.

The local stock movements are as under:—6000 mixed weaners, Mr. Gatenby's, from Lake Cowal to Burra Burra; 10,000 ewes, Mr. Hellmann's, from Groongal to Coonamble.

TAMBO (Q.), FRIDAY.

Since Monday last 177 points of rain fell here, and the weather is still cloudy, but fine.

BLACKALL (Q.), THURSDAY.

Consequent on the late rains grass is plentiful, and all stock routes are available.

The local stock movements are as follows:—11,000 ewes from Lansdowne station to Evesham crossed the reserve yesterday.

There is a good demand here for breeding ewes, and better prices are asked.

BOURKE, THURSDAY.

The country all round here is looking well again. Good feed and water are abundant. Several mobs of horses are passing through for sale.

HAY, THURSDAY.

The weather is fine and warm. The stock crossings at Cudgellico are 7000 store sheep, Messrs. Donelly Brothers owners, purchased off Wooyer station, travelling to Cobham Lake; 5000 store sheep, Mr. P. Hanna owner, for Wilcannia.

FRIDAY.

The following are the local stock crossings:—1000 store sheep from Pevensey to Cowl-cowl. Truckings: March 2, 5137 sheep from Cuicairn, consigned by Messrs. Reid and Shaw to Messrs. Wilkinson, Graves, and Lavender; March 5, 3700 sheep from Messrs. Reid and Shaw to Messrs. Wilkinson, Graves, and Lavender.

NYNGAN, THURSDAY.

On Wednesday night 163 points of rain fell here, and the weather is fine and cool to-day. The river has been a banker during the last few days. Grass is growing luxuriantly throughout the district, and the stock routes are all available with plenty of grass and water. The banks of the Upper Bogan are like green wheat-fields. The local stock movements are as under:—12,000 sheep in splendid condition, the property of Mr. Thomas M'Farlane, recently purchased from Messrs. Wright, Heaton, and Co., crossed the bridge to-day, going from Forbes to Wilcannia.

WALGETT, FRIDAY.

The stock movements in this district are as under:—14,000 stores, leaving Gnomery, to Messrs. Armstrong and Urquhart's Queensland station; 12,000 wethers, leaving Bundabulla, for Mr. Walter Douglas's station, Wagga Wagga; 7000 stores, leaving Bogewong station, for Milroy.

Since Sunday 1.62 inches of rain have fallen, but the weather is now clear and fine. The stock routes have fair feed and are improving, and the country generally is much improved from the recent showery weather. The stations report plenty of grass, but it is not general, and water is plentiful. At least four inches of rain is required to secure the district for feed and water for the winter.

CARCOAR, FRIDAY.

The local stock movements are as follows:—470 wethers, Mr. Alex. McKenzie owner, from Tuena Junction to Binda; 347 mixed wethers, Mr. Jas. Herne owner, to Goulburn, for sale, from Wren's Nest; 652 wethers, Mr. R. M. Reynolds owner, Meglo Station, en route to Goulburn; 1300 store wethers have changed hands from Mr. A. M'Donald, of Keverston, to Messrs. M'Guiness Brothers, at 7s. each.

The police have discovered an Anarchist plot at Lyons. The conspirators had arranged to sack the depôt known as the Stand, and situated in the Brotteau quarter, just outside the gates of Lyons. It is there that the members of the Rifle Club keep their arms and ammunition, and the Anarchists had planned to break into it during the night, and to return to Lyons to commence executing the decisions taken by their executive committee. What those decisions were is not stated, but can be easily imagined. The leaders of this conspiracy are, it seems, well known, but the police have not yet succeeded in capturing them.

A strange Japanese custom has, according to the Japan Mail, been brought to light by the working of the conscription law. The head of a certain family was instructed that the time had come for his son, whose name was on the census list, to undergo medical examination prior to the actual enlistment. The father lost no time in informing the authorities that the individual referred to, though bearing a male name, was his daughter. He explained that having lost two daughters, both about one year old, he had been driven to this expedient to keep the third alive. It appears, further, that in many districts in Japan people still resort, in their anxiety to prolong the lives of their children, to the custom of bestowing upon their offspring names ordinarily given to infants of the opposite sex, whenever death has made frequent visits to their households. The present case occurred in the capital.

Mechanical Drawing.—Two years' course, first year's examination.—Grade 2: Walter Fell, Charles Fortune, John Kane, Benjamin Middlecrook, William Williams, William Wilson.

Naval Architecture.—One year's course, examination for class certificate.—Grade 1: William Drake. Grade 2: Jeremiah Lutta.

Metal Plate Working.—One year's course, examination for class certificate.—Grade 2: Thomas Dodd, George Leer, Robert Leonard, William Swan.

Architecture.—Three years' course, first year's examination—Historical, grade 1 (honours): Clarence Wilkinson. Grade 1: Joseph Barron, Ernest Beattie, James Campbell, Walter Durie, Harry Palmer, James Saddington. Grade 2: James Box, George Burrows, James Day, John Hawley, Frank Lee, Patrick Lynch, Richard Moore, Frederick Penfold.

Construction.—Grade 2: Joseph Barron, Ernest Beattie, James Box, James Day, Conrad Dornbusch, Walter Durie, John Hawley, Frank See, Edward Lockley, George Macintosh, Richard Moore, Harry Palmer, Frederick Penfold, James Saddington, Clarence Wilkinson.

Drawing.—Grade 1 (honours): Joseph Barron, Ernest Beattie, James Campbell, Frank Lee, C. J. Marshall, Clarence Wilkinson. Grade 1: R. Bell, James Day, Harry Palmer, James Saddington. Grade 2: James Box, Conrad Dornbusch, Walter Durie, John Hawley, Edward Lockley, George Macintosh, Frederick Penfold, Perdriau.

Chemistry.—Two years' course: first year's examination—Grade 2: John Campbell, William Doherty, Edward Henry. Second year's examination for class certificate having attended class in 1883—Grade 1 (honours): Joseph Carne, Archibald Fletcher. Grade 1: Alfred Taylor. Analytical: First year's examination.—Grade 1: J. Hollis, John Howard.

Writing from Dictation.—One year's course.—Grade 1 (honours): Harriet Collins, John Endicott, Herbert Hattersleff, Henry Kelly, Walter Maddock, Thomas Maher, Hugh M'Kinnon, William Manning, Herbert O'Connor, William Rothwell, Susan Stanley. Grade 1: Daniel Bulger, Henry Cooke, Arthur Hallam, Norman M'Clintock, Arthur M'William, Ewen Schneider, George Sinclair, Alfred Sharpe, Albert Sparks, Alfred Vaughan, Edward Wilson. Grade 2: Robert J. Atkinson, Henry J. Atkins, Thomas Buckingham, Harold H. Bradley, William J. Chapman, Arthur J. Cropley, Frederick A. Clancy, Walter G. Costin, George E. Dickman, David T. Grant, Amy G. Gotts, Arthur A. Huntley, Alexander M'Conaghy, Samuel Pickering, Charles Parsons, Arthur Rush, Robert Robinson, James Riley, Alfred Taylor.

Bookkeeping.—One year's course.—Grade 2: Fred. H. Clancy, G. C. Gladen, H. E. Kelly, Hugh M'Kinnon, A. E. Vaughan.

Arithmetic.—One year's course.—Grade 1: Robert Atkinson, Thomas Maher, Alexander M'Conaghy, Herbert O'Connor. Grade 2: Lawrence Brady, Thomas Buckingham, Harold Bradley, William Chapman, Arthur Cropley, Amy Gotts, George Gladen, Henry Kelly, William Manning, Albert Sharpe, William Rothwell, Walter Maddock, Albert Sparks, Alfred Vaughan.

Phonography.—One year's course, examinations for class certificate.—Grade 1: James Mouldon. Grade 2: Henry Atkins, Albert Cropley, Joseph Price.

German.—Two years' course, first year's examination.—Grade 1: Lucy Artlett, Elizabeth Findlater, Frederic Scrivener, Alfred Stephens, Jessie Way, Sarah Way. Grade 2: Adolph Albirz.

French.—Two years' course, first year's examination.—Grade 1: Alfred Stephens. Grade 2: Fanny Cooke, Frances de Courcy, Percy Marks.

Latin.—Two years' course, first year's examination.—Grade 1: Alfred Cooper, Edward Cooper, Arthur M'Nicol, Leslie Robertson. Grade 2: Herbert Mahon, Albert M'Coy, Richard Penfold, John Stewart.

Domestic Economy.—Two years' course, first year's examination.—Grade 1: Elizabeth Betts, Emily Russell, Annie Skarratt, Magdalene Story, Mary Stafford. Grade 2: Mary Kemmis, Grace Landers, Sarah Lloyd, Priscilla Russell.

Cookery.—Two years' course, first year's examination.—Grade 2: Elizabeth Betts, Emily Russell, Fanny Story, Mary Stafford.

Geology.—One year's course, examination for class certificate.—Grade 1: Guiseppe Turri. Grade 2: Uriah Dudley, George Stonier.

Mineralogy.—One year's course, examination for class certificate.—Grade 2: Guiseppe Turri.

Algebra.—One year's course.—Grade 1: John Connolly, John Farrell. Grade 2: Frederick Hobbs, William Williamson.

Geometry.—One year's course.—Grade 1: John Farrell. Grade 2: John Connolly, John M'Phie.

Trigonometry.—One year's course.—Grade 2: John Connolly, John Farrell.

Mensuration.—One year's course.—Grade 2: John Connolly, John Farrell.

Actuarial Science.—One year's course.—Grade 1: Walter Grace. Grade 2: Edward Connolly, Arthur Duckworth, Walter Fisher.

Music.—Two years' course, first year's examination.—Grade 2: Edwin West.

Plumbing.—One year's course, examination for class certificate.—Grade 2: John Irwin, Matthew Lang, Albert Smith.

Elocution.—One year's course, examination for class certificate.—Grade 1: Hugh M'Kinnon. Grade 2: G. E. Boesser, William Fryde, Andrew Duncan, Algernon E. Moore, J. T. M'Cann.

Pharmacy.—Two years' course, first year's examination.—Grade 2: John Dudgeon, Leonard A. Gray, Richard Holmes, John Howard, Edward Wright. Examination second year for class certificate.—Grade 1: John H. Clifton, Joseph H. Burnett.

Anatomy.—One year's course, examination for class certificate.—Grade 1: (honours) Elizabeth MacTaggart.

Physics.—Two years' course, first year's examination.—Grade 1: Uriah Dudley, Edwin J. Hilder, Hermann Mendel, George A. Stonier, Hugh Wright. Grade 2: Edward Wright.

Electricity (Practical).—One year's course, examination for class certificate.—Grade 1: John Harker. Grade 2: Lawrence Hartley, William King, Herbert J. Rumsey.

Telegraphy.—One year's course, examination for class certificate.—Grade 1 (honours): Edwin D. Thomson. Grade 1: Lillie F. Norton, J. H. Pleace, Thomas Simpson. Grade 2: Jane Haslam, Charles Hopkins, Frederick Stephens, William Waters.

THE GROWTH IN THE USE OF PULLMAN CARS.—There has been a rapid advance in the use of Pullman cars. It appears that in August, 1877, the Pullman Palace Car Company had only contracts with six railways, covering a mileage of 5000 miles, and the gross earnings for the first year of the company's existence, ending July 31, 1868, were 258,000 dollars. On July 31, 1883, the company had contracts with no fewer than 64 railways, covering 62,270 miles, and on July 31 of the present year it held 72 contracts, embracing 69,144 miles of road. The gross earnings last year were 3,424,279 dollars, and the surplus, being excess of revenue over ordinary disbursements, was 1,192,604 dollars. The shops and plant at Pullman were valued at 6,434,828 dollars, the cars and equipment at 11,326,337 dollars, and the office building in Chicago at 649,252 dollars. The total assets are 26,169,382 dollars.

THE PROSPECT OF CLASS STRIFE IN AMERICA.

(From St. James's Gazette, January 23.)

Time was when the world looked to the United States as a haven of happiness for the people of all countries. There the man who was ready to work could be sure of attaining competence and even luxury, as well as his full share in the control of the destiny of the nation. Consequently, whatever might happen to Europe, with its decaying institutions and worn-out political systems, the United States could stand aside on the firm ground of popular rights, and view undismayed the tossings of other and less happy communities in the storms of social revolution. This is still a common opinion among Englishmen of all classes, and especially among Liberals and Radicals. Of late years, however, grave doubts have arisen in the minds of Americans themselves whether all this is really for the best in their vast and wealthy country. One after another men of high repute have denounced the corruption that prevails in the law courts and the Legislatures, and the unscrupulous methods resorted to by politicians and capitalists for increasing their wealth and their power. It is, indeed, almost impossible nowadays to take up any American review or newspaper without finding some more or less severe strictures on the scandalous abuses that exist, and seem to be increasing. The result of the last Presidential election was to a large extent determined by the votes of men who were disgusted by the systematic chicanery of the managers of the party which had been in power for over 20 years; and perhaps even more, by the eager way in which these discredited politicians were supported by certain plutocrats.

These nevertheless are but the symptoms of more serious trouble below the surface; and, after all, it is not unlikely that the United States will be the scene of the first organised revolt of labour against capital on a large scale. To many of our fellow-countrymen this will seem an absurd surmise. The majority of those who travel in America take but a very superficial survey of the country and the people. They are "put through" by men of the merchant or literary class, and rarely make close acquaintance with the working population; still less do they examine into the relations of employers and employed. They understand that Mr. Jay Gould bears rather a bad name; that the power of the great railway companies is often used most harmfully to the public interest; that certain close corporations have obtained control of interests which give them a monopoly unknown in the worst days of the Stuarts, and so forth. But the possibility that the American working classes are discontented, and likely to manifest their discontent, has been rarely heard of in this country. Nevertheless, it is quite within the bounds of possibility that before very long there may be some serious outbreaks in the great cities and along the main lines of railroads in America. Some of the clearest-sighted men in the United States are of this opinion, and it needs but to consider a few facts to see that they have some grounds for their opinion.

In the first place there is the general truth that the American workers have never been accustomed, as the English workers have, to low wages and bad times. Until of late years wages have on the whole been good—not so good, regard being had to the cost of living, as has been often stated, but still higher than those to be obtained for similar work in Europe. The great West afforded a constant outlet for those who were ready to rough it more and take a greater risk than their fellows who remained in the Eastern cities. Consequently, the American workers are more independent than Englishmen; and they won't "put up with" what European workmen take small account of. On the other hand, capitalists in America spring up very rapidly; their fortunes are seen to grow by the men they employ, and with whom but yesterday they were hail-fellow well-met. And when they have become wealthy they are often very rough and ready in enforcing their rights. The same with the great companies and their managers. It is entirely a question of money-getting, with little or no pretence of pleasant relations between employers and employed. Now, at the present time, the pressure is getting more and more severe each day; while wages are in many districts relatively lower than they are in England. Miners' wages in Pennsylvania and Ohio, for instance, the ordinary wages of ironworkers alike in the eastern and middle states, the remuneration even of mill-hands in Massachusetts and Connecticut, have been gradually falling to a level which, when rents and general cost of living are considered and slack time is taken into account, is lower than that of our people. At the same time the numbers of the unemployed are growing more rapidly than they are here; men are being discharged daily from the great works and factories in all the centres of industry as well as from the railways, and meetings of workmen are constantly being held to take into consideration what is to be done. And while this is the state of things East and West—in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, and Baltimore, as well as in Pittsburg, Cleveland, St. Louis, and Chicago, and even as far as San Francisco and the Pacific Slope generally—working-man combinations are becoming more formidable. The Knights of Labour, many of whose branches have become virtually secret societies, are developing in the Socialist direction; and Socialism itself gains ground, especially in New York, Chicago, and St. Louis, where there is a strong German element.

At the same time, that invariable evidence of a bad period, the increase of tramps, is more marked than ever. Legions of tramps now pervade the whole of the Eastern and Middle States, and they are often treated by the farmers—themselves nowadays none too well off—with great cruelty. Their numbers at the last great industrial crisis, according to the official statistics, might be reckoned by millions, and this time they are not likely to be fewer. The growth of the great factory farms, which employ several hundred men in the summer and only perhaps 20 or 30 in the winter, tends to the development of this nomadic class, as well as the shifting of mining and other enterprises over this great territory. These tramps, many of them respectable hard-working men, are of course embittered by their poverty. Besides, the system of letting out convict labour at low rates has lately gained ground, and depresses the rate of wages for the labourers outside; in addition to which there has also grown up a system of importing foreign labour from Europe under contract, which has occasioned a most angry feeling. Poor Hungarians, Slavs, Italians, and others are brought in by emigration agents. Ignorant of the language, and of quite different habits and ways of life from the Americans, they undersell the "free and enlightened citizens" who labour, and several riots have already occurred on this account. Here is another cause of deep discontent, the rather that no steps have yet been taken to stop the importation. And so it is with many men in the great cities: much poverty, great discontent, and not too much patience. Nor can it be said that the tone of the press is such as would tend towards a reasonable temper.

Under all the circumstances, therefore, it seems not improbable that the first absolute struggle between capital and labour will be witnessed in that land of perfect democracy and freedom for all—the United States.

MAN'S DUMB AUXILIARIES IN WARFARE.

(From the Army and Navy Gazette.)

A half-cynical remark of Carlyle's has lately been quoted to the effect that "the common people love a war, because it gives them a chance of being shot at." If this stands good, the opening of war contractors' offices—our modern temples of Janus—should be a joy to dumb creation, did they but know the destruction in store for them. In the needs of later civilisation and scientific warfare, a score of carcases of animals—battle horses and beasts of burden—strew the field and line of march for every man who meet his death before the enemy. The track of a British army, if traceable, as has been said, 20 years afterwards by broken beer-bottles, is more distinctly still marked out by the skeletons of its baggage animals. It is curious to reflect how much man—the warring creature—has in his wars been indebted through all time to his dumb auxiliaries. Hannibal, with his armour-clad death-dealing elephants, broke the ranks of the bravest, sternest infantry the world has ever seen—soldiery whose doom, for anything short of victory, was death at their comrades' hands. The horse, chiefest of animals so employed by man, has in his time played many parts in war. First he appeared in the war chariot, an open two-wheeled cart, with two, three, or four horses harnessed abreast. The charioteer urged the rude vehicle at topmost speed into the masses of the foe. The warrior standing behind him launched his store of arrows and javelins, and scythes attached to the axles of the chariot tore red gaps through the enemy's ranks. The half-myths of Centaur and Amazon indicate a remote period when the horse and his rider first came on the battle-scene. The Romans had their Equites, the equestrian body; but it was rather an order of dignity than an offensive arm. Each Roman legion had a few score of mounted men attached to it, divided into turmæ troops, or rather groups, of ten riders under a leader. But the cavalry charge was not known to them, and we do not read of these horsemen taking prominent part in the legionary battle. Armed, indeed, with the short Roman sword, and stirrupless as they were, it is difficult to imagine them formidable on horseback. Their equipment and organisation both indicate the employments to which they were limited as those of scouts and foragers; and they probably used their horses as mere means of locomotion, dismounting when they had occasion to fight. It is strange that the Romans should have remained so long ignorant of what seems now so simple an invention—the use of the stirrup. The barbaric invaders of their Empire, the lancers of the Eastern nations, the Parthian mounted bowmen, brought the stirrup to Europe; and brought, too, the idea of using cavalry offensively in masses. Then came the men-at-arms, the mail-clad horsemen, with armour made more and more ponderous, until the knight had to mount before he donned his mail; and, if unhorsed, could not rise from the ground without help. Gunpowder stripped the horseman of his armour; and, generally adopting the firearm, he became a dragoon, equipped as an infantry soldier, and dismounting to fire. Not 20 years ago, the French dragoon so armed might be seen on sentry, dismounted, pacing his post with a fixed bayonet. But the disappearance of armour lightened the horse's load, giving to cavalry such powers of manœuvre and means of swift attack, that the dragoon with his short-ranged, slow-firing musket could not withstand. Now came the golden days of cavalry and the "arme blanche"—the poetry of war. Hurled at the gallop in great masses on the flanks of the enemy, the horsemen decided the issue of many a hard-fought battle. But modern science, coming to the aid of gunpowder, has now given to the firearm a range and rapidity of action which some think may ultimately drive the "set squadron" out of the field. Henceforth the duties of the cavalryman must be, if not more limited, more and more prosaic, and his horse, a charger no longer, is becoming to him as in ancient days, little more than a means of locomotion. Of other animals pressed by man into the service of his wars, our army of India presents by far the greatest variety. There our siege-trains are drawn by elephants or by the peaceful ox. Mules carry our light artillery for mountain warfare. All these, with the ass, the burthen-bullock, and the camel, are seen in the long string of baggage-train following our Indian columns. The camel is of all animals probably the one first and most anciently subdued by man to the uses of a beast of burthen. Its endurance, its marvellous capacity of stomach enabling it to carry a load 100 miles without water, its elevated stature placing the rider high above the radiations from the desert sands, heated by a sun so hot that a man cannot press his hand for any length of time on the naked back of his horse, the droop of its head while journeying freeing its rider from the offensive odour of its breath. All these mark the admirable adaptation of the "ship of the desert" to its uses in the arid plains that are its habitat. Considered as Darwinian developments, these peculiarities of structure must have taken a considerable time to become so perfected. But the camel, taken from its native desert and level ground, is not so useful. From its length of limb, over rough ground it is an unsafe mover. On wet soil, the smooth, broad pads arming its feet are apt to slip; and a camel that slips with a load is apt to break one of its legs if not split itself up then and there. In temper the camel is uncertain; patient, but morose; subject to sudden fits of savagery, and using its formidable teeth, sometimes most treacherously. It shows little attachment to its owner, and is seldom a willing slave to man, always grumbling at and resenting at first being loaded for a journey. To ride on a camel is not without its fatigues, for the long stretch of its gait throws the rider forward at every step in the position of continually bowing. The unwieldy, shambling pace of the beast needs that he should have plenty of rope; and marching in a string, as they usually do, camels are seldom less than four feet "from nose to croupe." The animal itself takes up some 10 feet in length. Giving, therefore, 12 feet from camel to camel, 450 of them in file would stretch to just a mile. In the East the camel is used, in peace and war, in various ways other than the direct bearing of burthens. In Persia the takht-i-rawaud, or palanquin strung on poles between two camels, is used for the conveyance of ladies of value, and other precious and fragile articles of merchandise. In the countries bordering on Northern India, a musketoon, or light field-piece, on a swivel, is fixed to the camel's saddle-pommel, and the animal is employed as a kind of flying artillery. During the Indian Mutiny a fairly successful experiment with the camel as a war-animal was made by Ross's Camel Corps and the Flying Columns in Central India. But in these cases there were native camel-drivers, and the British soldier had nothing to do but stick on behind them. To place the latter in sole charge of his camel, and to use "camelry" unsupported in large masses for flying columns, as apparently is being done with success in Egypt now, are distinctly new departures in warfare never before attempted with European troops. That they may be fully and completely successful is the hope of all English hearts at this moment. But they are experiments so far; and, with the possibilities, as yet unexperienced, of an attack by desperately valiant fanatic swordsmen upon a column of straggling camelry, the leader of these must have anxious thoughts. It is no wonder that they turn all their ingenuity to shortening the tails and increasing the fronts of their camel columns.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S IDEAS ABOUT PROPERTY.

Mr. Chamberlain, in a recent speech at Birmingham, has given expression to some ideas about property, of which Mr. Henry George highly approves, though in other quarters they have been denounced as levelling and mischievous. He is of opinion that society must pay a "ransom" to the men who would "make short work of private ownership if they were left alone," and that it "owes to these men something more than mere toleration in return for the restriction which it places upon their liberty of action." While the Economist remarks upon this sentence that the philosophy of Robin Hood or even Jack Sheppard has rarely been more neatly formulated, Mr. Henry George describes it as about as clear a declaration of true principles with regard to the land as a Liberal politician and Cabinet Minister could just now be expected to make, and which will much strengthen Mr. Chamberlain's position with the new forces which are soon to revolutionise English politics. Translated into plain English, Mr. George takes it to be that the land belongs of natural right to the whole people, but that as it would be impossible to equally divide land, it should be left in form to private owners, while the people take the rent. In a subsequent speech at Ipswich, Mr. Chamberlain reiterated some of the doctrines in question. The comments of the Times, the Pall Mall, and the Economist upon Mr. Chamberlain's economic theories are noteworthy. The last-named, which had only the Birmingham speech before it said:—"Mr. Chamberlain, of course, knows perfectly well the value of the institution of private property, and he is not going to commit political suicide by joining the movement for the nationalisation of the land, which will, sooner or later, incorporate among its aims the nationalisation of capital. So far as we know, he has never even associated himself with any attempt to better the condition of the working classes by securing them the chance of a larger share of the produce of their industry. All this clap-trap about 'natural rights,' this wistful looking-back to a golden age, when society placed no 'restriction on the liberty of action' of people who coveted their neighbours' property, these hints at the possibility of legislation which will 'replace' the labourers on the land, and at the same time protect the town artisan from competition, mean absolutely nothing. They are the common places of the lower kind of demagogic oratory. Why then, does Mr. Chamberlain resort to them? We can suggest only two possible answers to this question, neither of which is creditable to him. It may be that he has such a contempt for the taste and the judgment of the classes whom he has shown himself so eager to enfranchise that he imagines the best way to their sympathies to be by covert appeals to their cupidity, conveyed in the jargon of a bad philosophy. Or it may be that by these vague and equivocal echoes of the teaching of Mr. George he hopes to sweep into the party net the land nationalisers, who, in Scotland, at any rate, promise to give some trouble at the next general election. But whatever may be Mr. Chamberlain's motive, it is obvious that language such as he used on Monday, coming from the lips of a Cabinet Minister, is calculated to raise wild hopes, to discourage sober political action, and to lower the whole standard of public life."

The Pall Mall Gazette treated Mr. Chamberlain on this occasion as a politician appearing in the rôle of "the highest bidder," and this, it remarked, vitiated and degraded the whole speech:—

"Mr. Chamberlain went beyond the old lines when he declared for the application of the principles of the Irish Land Act to England. If he persists on that tack he will split his party from top to bottom, and all for what? Mr. George has now hardly any reason to 'translate Mr. Chamberlain into plain English' after this. Between the Restitution Bill now adopted by Mr. Chamberlain and the Land Restoration League founded by Mr. George, there is only a difference of degree. Between the founders of the rival schools of Confiscatory Restoration the difference seems to be that Mr. George sees where he is going and Mr. Chamberlain does not."

The Times reminds Mr. Chamberlain that "the doctrine of 'natural rights' has passed away, with that of the 'social contract,' into the limbo of obsolete theories, as Mr. Chamberlain might discover if he would condescend to discuss the question with some members of his own party—Mr. John Morley, for instance, or Mr. Bryce—who have studied, we will not say 'the language of the schools,' so scornfully dismissed by Mr. Chamberlain, but the elements of political science and jurisprudence. 'The right to live' is a rhetorical statement of a moral fact recognised in every civilised community and defensible on the plainest grounds of expediency, which, we need hardly say, we should never dream of contesting. But this does not carry Mr. Chamberlain far towards the establishment of 'natural rights,' which he does not attempt to define, as the basis of constitutional government. Even if Mr. Chamberlain's doctrine were not unsound and unscientific—and it is as absurd to censure us for asserting this as to gibe at the 'cruelty' of political economy—the impossibility of applying it in practice must be apparent to the humblest intelligence. Who is to define the 'natural rights' by which all legislation and all institutions are to be measured? Every man may have his own conception of what they ought to be, and the confusion would be used to cover not only iniquitous spoliation, but action paralysing the vital energies of modern society. It looks as if Mr. Chamberlain had been stirred to something like emulation by the recent proofs of Mr. Parnell's success as leader of the Irish masses. That success has been achieved by very simple and old-fashioned methods, such as a Cleon or a Clodius might employ, by offering the needy majority of the population direct and immediate material boons at the expense of the owners of property. Mr. Chamberlain has not yet sufficiently disclosed his plans to produce any great effect on the minds of the English labouring classes, but in vague and highly-coloured language he endeavours to raise hopes which we venture to think can only end in disappointment. As Mr. Chamberlain describes the condition of the labourers in former days, when each man had his apportioned place in the world and his clearly defined rights in the State, we are reminded of Mr. Froude's lament over the failure of the Tudors to keep English society in the ancient mould, but we should hardly expect to find the complaint echoed by the preacher of latterday Radicalism. These blessings have, according to Mr. Chamberlain, 'been bartered away for a mess of pottage,' by which can only be meant the vast industrial and commercial expansion of modern England. While that development, lately described in our columns by Mr. Giffen, is going on—as it is, in spite of temporary checks—it is idle to talk of reproducing a social system in which the agricultural labourers would become yeomen, content to live in their 'apportioned places' in a country parcelled out into small holdings. Mr. Chamberlain dismisses emigration as a remedy for distress almost disdainfully as Mr. Parnell does. When, however, he comes to explain how the dispensation is to be brought in he fails to convey a very clear idea of his policy. He will not, indeed, be content with any measures of land law reform, however drastic, and he speaks with approval, though not with confidence, of Mr. Collings's Restitution Bill, which, in defiance of the principle of prescription heretofore adopted by all sane politicians, will, he says, have 'an ominous sound for owners of ill-gotten property.' The prospect of an inquiry into titles to property, personal as well as real, unveiled in this suggestion, will not commend Mr. Chamberlain's policy to practical men. He is, we apprehend, somewhat surprised at the stir made by his demand that property should pay a ransom for its security against lawless greed, and he now avers that he meant only to talk of 'paying insurance.' But do not property-owners as such, and all other individual citizens, 'pay insurance' already, in virtue of the fact that they combine to form a civilized Government? If more than this is to be demanded, capital will cease to be accumulated, and within a few years the last state of the working men will be worse, not than their first state, but than anything they now conceive to be possible in the most trying times."

A PROTEST AGAINST CLOTHES.

Wherewithal shall they be clothed? I mean (says a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette) those poor natives of New Guinea, to whom General Scratchley is bearing what are commonly called the blessings of civilisation. In a recent article on the Anglo-Australian empire you say concerning the Commissioner, "It is doubtful whether, even in New Guinea itself, he will have the power of life and death." But there is a sense in which he and the colonists and the missionaries who will soon be spreading over that country will surely hold and exercise the power of life and death. If they seriously alter the habits of the people, especially in the matter of clothing, they will kill them, just as the aborigines of Tasmania have been killed, till not one of them is left. It used to be said that the dark races must disappear before the white, or that they naturally perish before these; but that fallacy has been exploded in India. It is now generally supposed when an aboriginal race declines or a tribe disappears that it was caused by the white man's diseases, especially his worst disease—alcohol. But no tribe was ever exterminated by measles or smallpox, or other disease of that kind, nor by drink. Personal visits to various lands have enabled me to study the condition of aborigines in every stage and phase, between flourishing under fortunate conditions and being civilised off the face of the earth, and I am certain that it is mainly a question of clothes. The Tasmanians survived all manner of massacres and deprivation of their land, but were killed by Christian philanthropy in the form of English clothing. There is little doubt of this. Several writers in Tasmania have sought to explain the phenomenon by saying that the poor creatures did not use their clothes and blankets, that they put them on for show during the day and slept naked at night, and so caught violent colds and consumptions. It was, indeed, mainly of this class of diseases that they perished so swiftly; but no explanation can bring them to life again now, when the island would find aboriginal labour so desirable. The inhabitants there entice as many English people to follow them as they can, but the reports returned by immigrants are not encouraging, and it is a slow process. The North American aborigines were less civilisable than the Tasmanians; they refused the white man's agriculture, arts, and religion, but took greedily to his whisky; they have been the victims of such massacres and oppressions as have been told in that remarkable book "A Century of Dishonour;" yet the red men of America are still pertinaciously disappointing the prayerful predictions of their speedy disappearance. Their natural garb has not been interfered with. This is a matter in which nature cannot be safely tampered with. Whether tribes are found clothed only with a loin cloth, or only with paint, it is the result of a long evolution, an adaptation to environment, and no foreigners should go among such peoples who cannot adapt themselves mentally and morally to customs representing that environment. In the little comedy of "My Milliner's Bill," the distressed lady, reflecting on the consequences of Eve's fall, exclaims, "My word for it, that serpent was a milliner!" Many a poor dusky sister has reason to agree with her, and to find a new interpretation of the death that followed the eaten fruit. In the day that these natives of New Guinea begin to clothe themselves beyond what has sufficed for their health, they will "surely die." The exact reason for this has not been satisfactorily shown, though I have been told in several countries that clothing checks some delicate secretions of the dark skin in warm countries. Even in Ceylon, where the native costume was slightly modified by the Dutch, it has been observed (by Hackel, for instance) that the finest people physically are the Rodyers, who by some ancient law are forbidden to wear so much clothing as other Cingalese. The latter appear to me less vigorous than the naked Samoans, with whom they correspond on the other side of the world.

The longings of English people to hide aboriginal nudity are partly provincial, partly moral, and also, I suspect, somewhat commercial. The average missionary cannot, like Livingstone (who praised the shapely forms of his Africans in a way that surprised some of his co-religionists), appreciate the innocence of primitive man, naked and not ashamed. It should be a part of missionary training to study the passage in "Faust," written by Goethe after the Pope had ordered some antique statues to be clothed, in which Mephistopheles declares that he finds Helen and Paris, and other classic forms which he has evoked, too scantily clothed for his sense of propriety. The missionary too often shares the prudery of Mephistopheles, and rarely realises that, among simple races, the adoption of European clothing is usually still the sign of a fall. The germs of European vices are carried apparently with European clothes. It is a fact significant of more than female conservatism, to which Mr. Herbert Spencer attributes it that generally the women of a nude tribe are the last to adopt the fashion of putting on clothes. They are always reluctant, and sometimes show such shame in their first dress as a European would feel without clothing. In many parts of India there is a profound suspicion of the irreligiousness of clothing. The fakir is distressed even by the regulation rag upon which the Government modestly insists, and a fully dressed fakir would be scouted. The late Brahma Minister, Keshub Chunder Sen, expressed the belief that India would never accept a Christ in hat and boots. The missionary should remember that clothes morality is climatic, and that if a certain degree of covering of the body has gradually become, in the north-west, associated with morality and piety, the traditions of tropical countries may have equally connected elaborate dress rather with the sensualities of Solomon in his glory than with the purity of the lily as clothed by nature.

But it is to be feared that the colonial mind feels in aboriginal nudity an affront to English commerce, and unconsciously, no doubt, is more interested in trade than in morality or chastity when it clothes the naked islanders. Australia, for instance, is engaged in turning wool into gold, and it can hardly realise that for a Maori or a New Guinean its golden fleece becomes as a shirt of Nessus, consuming him with fever. However, the Australasian colonies have had much experience in this matter, and some of them, compelled to import islanders to make up for their lost tribes, may deal more wisely with the natives of their new possession. Already in Queensland the most successful squatters allow their black labourers to use as little clothing as they like. (Any lady or gentleman who has resided in tropical countries knows how speedily English eyes, however shocked at first, become accustomed to the dark skins, which at length appear as a natural clothing.) If the wool-grower at the antipodes can only realise that the consumption of his precious stuffs by the dusky islanders means the consumption also of his coolie there may be hope that the New Guinean will not follow the Tasmanian into extinction. Let there be no more Dorcas societies sewing flannel garments for these children of the sun. And if English settlers in her Majesty's new possession must exchange their home products for the land of the New Guineans, it were even to be hoped that they will follow the discredited plan of giving glass beads for acres, rather than supply the substantial stuff needful in our northern climate. In regions where what little dress is used grows from the desire for ornament, that artistic instinct may well be cultivated. Whatever additional costume may gradually grow out of the love of beauty will be refining and healthy. Unfortunately, there is no society for the protection of aborigines from compulsory clothes, so I send you my small protest and plea for these helpless new subjects of the Queen. According to the accounts of New Guinea, its natives have many engaging and serviceable qualities, and are a race capable of culture. If in the development of the country some of them have to be killed we must, I suppose, look upon it as a necessary incident in the process of "Christianisation;" but at least we need not fatally identify clothes with Christ (who "laid them aside" to wash the feet of his followers), and destroy these simple tribes with garments more deadly than guns.

The analytical table of the book issues in London of the year 1884 shows an increase of 228 on 1883, or, if we simply take the new books and exclude the new editions, the increase is exactly 100. This, although not equal to the rise in number in 1883 as compared with 1882, is at least sufficient to show that there has been no backward movement during the 12 months. Of the total issues of new books theology stands at the head with 724 volumes, more than one-sixth; juvenile works and tales stand second with 603, about one-eighth; educational, classical, and philological books 543, about one-ninth; history, biography, &c., 490, more than one-tenth; books on the arts and sciences and illustrated works, 432, one-eleventh; novels, tales, and other fiction, 408, more than one-eleventh; year-books and volumes of serials 323, one-fifteenth; voyages, travels, and geographical works, 236, one-twentieth; pamphlets, sermons, and miscellaneous works, 208, one twenty-third; and then with less than 200 volumes come poetry and the drama, 179; law, jurisprudence, &c., 163; medicine, surgery, &c., 160; and belles lettres, essays, &c., also 160. Comparing the new works of 1884 with those of 1883, the greatest increase is in books on the arts and sciences—a rise of 78; next stand history and biography with a rise of 76; then come novels, tales, and other fiction with an increase of 59; poetry and the drama with a growth of 34; voyages and travels with a rise of 26. The increase, on the whole, is counterbalanced by a falling off of 138 in the issues of juvenile works and tales, and of 96 in belles lettres; the only other classes in which there is a reduction being the educational, classical, and philological works, which show a small reduction of 13, and the medical works with a diminution of 3. In the new editions the issues of 1884 show an increase of 128 on those of 1883, including a rise of 69 in novels, 32 in law and jurisprudence, 22 in arts and sciences, 35 in poetry and the drama, and 31 in belles lettres; but there was a reduction of 44 in juvenile works, and several other slight alterations.—Publishers' Circular.

ACTORS AND "SOCIAL STATUS."

(From the Saturday Review.)

Anxiety about one's "social status" may be said to correspond in the order of the moral sentiments to valetudinarianism in that of the physical functions. The one is more, or more often, the cause than the effect of non-acceptance in the coveted circle, just as the other is more, or more often, the cause than the effect of ill-health. Both mean uneasiness of mind and body where the first condition of the attainment of the desired object is mental and bodily repose. The constant and nervous appeal to the judgment of others in a matter in which the deliverances of subjective sensation should be final is characteristic of both. The social, like the physical, valetudinarian is, so to speak, continually putting out his tongue, and trying to find out whether, in the opinion of his neighbours, he is really looking well. He needs to be told by some sensible friend that the surest way in which a man can acquire or confirm an unfitness for the society in which he finds himself is to be perpetually inviting other people to declare him fit for it. And perhaps there has never been a class of persons who stood more in need of such friendly counsel at this moment than actors and actresses. The endless discussion of their "social status" has become a weariness to the flesh. Are actors gentlemen? Are actresses ladies? And, if yes, are they gentlemen and ladies quâ actors and actresses or not? Does a man acquire the status of a gentleman and a woman that of a lady by adopting the theatrical profession? If not, do they lose that status by so doing? Such are the questions with which this agitated guild of artists are nowadays continually soliciting the public ear—comically unconscious meanwhile that the mere repetition of such inquiries is in itself suggestive of unfavourable answers. For what it would appear to indicate is, that an unusually large number of actors and actresses have in these days made their way into a social circle to which they feel so doubtful of their right to be admitted that they treat their qualification as something to be demonstrated, instead of assumed.

In the outspoken but not unkindly article which Mr. Burnand has contributed on this subject to the Fortnightly Review, he contends, we observe, that the appearances above noted are misleading. He denies, and founds part of his argument on the denial, that there are relatively any larger number of actors and actresses received into the "best society" in these days than there were formerly. The number of West End theatres, he argues, is three times as large as it was 30 years ago; and therefore, "if five actors were received by society then, there should be 15 received now. If there are not" (the argument seems here to require the addition of the word "more") "the stage of to-day is socially on the same level with the stage of 30 years ago, and has not advanced a step; if the number of presentable actors is nowadays less, then the stage has retrograded," and Mr. Burnand's own impression is that there are, in fact, no more actors received than formerly. We are inclined, however, for our own part, to suspect an ambiguity in one of the terms of this argument. "Society," or what claims to be such in these days, is very much larger than the circle which a generation ago monopolised that title, and which still figures but little enlarged, comparatively speaking, as "the best society" of Mr. Burnand's foregoing description; and, though the number of "received" actors may very likely have not more than trebled itself in the smaller coterie, yet if we were to extend our purview to the larger one, we should probably find that it has increased in considerably more than this ratio. It is surely impossible to deny that actors and actresses—though it is more conspicuously true of the former than of the latter—are to be found in the company of refined and cultivated persons in far more than thrice the number of instances of such association 30 years ago. Nor is the reason of this to be sought in any particular change of public feeling on the matter. The same thing has happened to the practitioners of all the other non-professional callings; and without any actual enhancement of the antecedent social claims of those who practise them. It is not so much, that is say, that these callings attract to them a somewhat larger number of persons of a higher social position to begin with (though this doubtless counts for something) as that a more general diffusion of refinement has polished, and rendered presentable, a very much larger number of their ordinary undistinguished members. In other words, it is not so much that Belgravia has stooped to Bohemia as that Bohemia has largely qualified itself for admission to Belgravia. This, of course, is very much to Bohemia's credit; and the players, as among the oldest inhabitants of that pleasant land, might well be content with the achievement. Like graver people, however, the desire of magnifying their office is too strong for them; and so it comes to pass that Mr. Burnand finds himself compelled, not only to point out to actors and actresses that they succeed socially, where they do succeed, in spite of their calling and its drawbacks, but actually to combat the extravagant proposition that an amateur who goes on the stage obtains a positive rise in social status, in the same way as he would by entering one of the learned professions, or obtaining her Majesty's commission as a military or naval officer. Such, at least, is the thesis which Mr. Burnand in his article opposes; though we must say that we have not often in our experience met with any one bent on upholding it. The utmost which we have ever heard claimed for the actor's vocation is that it does not nowadays, as it once did, raise any primâ facie presumption against the good manners and decent morals of those of whom nothing else is known except that they follow it. And even this proposition can hardly be admitted in the precise form in which we have just stated it. Rather it would be true to say that this primâ facie presumption does still exist, and probably will always continue to exist so long as the acknowledged conditions and surroundings of the stage (which, moreover, are not materially alterable) endure; but that it has now been so frequently and in such well-known cases rebutted that its force as against any individual actor selected at random is very considerably weakened.

That the theatre, however, does not afford even yet the best of "openings for a young man" of good manners, education, and social rank, and that acting is not an eligible, scarcely even a tolerable, occupation for a young woman of the same advantages, are points which, if Mr. Burnand had not devoted careful arguments to establishing them, we might have hardly thought worth labouring. If, however, any anxious mammas are really contemplating the coulisses for their daughters, and looking out for a manageress who will not only provide them with instruction in their art, but supply the watchful guardianship of a mother, while surrounding them with "all the comforts of a refined home," the maternal eyes will undoubtedly be opened by the article on which we are commenting. To the male sex, however—to the masculine aspirant to histrionic fame, Mr. Burnand's insistence on the actor's social inferiority even to merely nominal members of the learned professions may seem a hard saying. Why, he may ask, should admission to Orders, or a call to the Bar, or a medical qualification, exert such a magical effect as this upon the status of a man who may have never preached a sermon, nor held a brief, nor written a prescription in his life? Nor is he, perhaps, likely to think any answer satisfactory, though, as a matter of fact, two answers can be given him, and one of the two distinctions of the learned professions upon which these answers are founded need not remain a distinction unshared with them by actors for a day longer than the actors themselves choose to let it remain so. The former of these peculiarities is the simple and commonplace one of artificial limitation. It matters comparatively little what the prescribed qualifications of a calling are, so long as they are prescribed by some recognised external authority, and not determined by the sweet will of individuals. Any man is an actor, or for that matter an artist of any sort, who chooses to call himself so. Any man is not a clergyman, barrister, or medical man who chooses to adopt one of those titles, and in the last of the three cases he can be criminally indicted for assuming it without legal sanction. This, in itself, is an intelligible reason why the professions should create status while arts do not. But there is another peculiarity of the professions in which artists in general, and actors in particular, might imitate them if they chose. The professions possess an etiquette—an unwritten code of conventions, designed, though no doubt imperfectly, and at times even irrationally, but still designed, to maintain a high standard of professional conduct, and to preserve them as fit employments for honourable men. And one of these conventions happens to be prohibitory of precisely that species of professional competition to which some well-known actors of the present day are so deplorably addicted. Touting and self-advertisement, the too-eager pursuit of the profits of their calling by irregular appeals of any kind to public patronage, are as sternly discountenanced at the Bar, and have until lately been so in medicine, as they are actively followed on the stage. In the two professions they are felt to be practices derogatory to the dignity of the calling and of those who follow it. Among actors apparently it is not so; but then they can hardly wonder that an occupation that has less dignity to be respected should have also less dignity to confer.

THE ANTIQUITY OF THE SAW.—The saw was, it is said, invented by Dædalus, according to Pliny, but Apollodorus says the inventor was Talus. It is stated that the latter having found the jawbone of a snake, employed it to cut through a piece of wood, and then formed an instrument of iron like it. Becher says sawmills were invented in the seventeenth century; but this is not so, it appears, for they were erected in Madeira in 1420, at Breslaugh in 1427. Norway had the first sawmill in 1530. The Bishop of Ely, ambassador from Mary of England to the Court of Rome, describes a sawmill there in 1555. In England, sawmills had at first the same fate with printing in Turkey, the crane in Strasburg, &c.—the attempts to introduce them were violently opposed; and one erected by a Dutchman in 1663 was forced to be abandoned.

Wholesale forgeries are reported to have been detected at Neutra, in Hungary. In consequence of information given to the police by the Neutra Savings Bank, a person named Von Birly, hitherto enjoying an excellent reputation, was arrested. He is charged (says a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph) with having negotiated forged bills of exchange for the following amounts: Through the Neutra Savings Bank, 30,000 florins to 40,000 florins; through the People's Bank, 30,000 florins to 35,000 florins; through the Credit Bank, 20,000 florins to 25,000 florins; through the Industrial Bank, about 20,000 florins; through the Commercial and Credit Institution, 1600 florins. Among the names forged are those of Princes Julius and Arthur Odescalchi, Count Stephen Esterhazy, and Louis von Birly, a brother of the man under arrest.

TO CURE SKIN DISEASES.—Sulpholine Lotion will completely remove all eruptions, pimples, redness, blotches, scurf, eczema, psoriasis, &c., in a few days. Sulpholine attacks old skin disorders, and totally destroys them. It is a peculiar, agreeable, harmless fluid, producing a clear skin. Sulpholine Lotion is sold by all chemists. 2s 9d.—[ADVT.]

The steamer Barrabool cleared Port Phillip Heads at 5 p.m. on the 5th instant, and arrived at the company's wharf at 6.10 p.m. on the 6th. Experienced moderate S.W. winds to Wilson's Promontory, thence light variable winds and calms to Gabo Island, thence to arrival light winds from N.E. with smooth sea.

The steamer Rockton left Melbourne at 2.15 p.m. on the 4th instant, cleared Port Phillip Heads at 7.10 p.m. and entered Sydney Heads at 4 p.m. on the 6th instant. She had light variable winds and fine weather throughout the passage.

The Orient Co.'s R.M.S. Potosi, from London via ports, arrived at Melbourne at 9 a.m. yesterday.

The Anglo-Australasian steamship Port Darwin left Adelaide yesterday, for Melbourne.

The steamer Coraki crossed the Macleay bar at 11 a.m. on the 5th instant and arrived in port at 2 p.m. on the 6th. Cargo: 40,000 feet timber, and sundries.

The China Navigation Company's steamer Taiwan left Hongkong on the 4th instant for Singapore, Port Darwin, Thursday Island, Queensland ports, Sydney, and Melbourne.

The steamer You Yangs, from Belfast and Warrnambool, left the latter port at 6.30 p.m. on the 3rd instant, and arrived here yesterday afternoon, having experienced moderate weather throughout the passage.

The barque Star of Devon and schooner Eudora, both with coal and general cargo, for New Britain, and the ship General Picton, for Adelaide, in ballast, cleared at the Customs yesterday. They are to leave port this morning.

The Mission barque John Williams was yesterday towed from the stream to a berth at Alger's wharf.

The ship Abergeldie, bound to London, was towed to sea yesterday afternoon.

The ship Zuleika, for Adelaide, via Newcastle, left for the latter port yesterday evening in tow of the Phœbe.

The steamer Lismore crossed the Richmond bar at 10.30 p.m. on the 4th instant, and entered the Heads at 3.45 a.m. on the 6th. She experienced northerly wind to South Solitary, thence to arrival fresh southerly wind, with head sea. Cargo: 73 logs assorted timber, 47 hides, 5 cases sewing-machines, 1 ice-chest, 3 bags oysters, 2 cases eggs, 2 coops fowls, 9 pigs, 4 kegs butter, and 53 packages sundries.

The steamer Leura cleared Cape Moreton at 3.5 p.m. on the 4th instant, and entered the Heads at 4.45 a.m. on the 6th. Experienced light northerly winds to South Solitary, thence to arrival strong southerly winds.

The steamer Rosedale crossed the Manning bar at 12 noon on the 5th instant, and entered the Heads at 5.30 a.m. on the 6th. Experienced variable southerly wind throughout the passage. The steamer Hesketh left Rockhampton on the 28th ultimo, Bundaberg at 8 p.m. on the 2nd instant, and entered the Heads at 11.45 p.m. on the 6th. She had fresh south-easterly winds with rain to Point Lockart, thence to South Solitary light N.N.W. wind, thence to Point Stephen strong S.S.W. winds, thence to arrival light variable wind.

The Ranger is the name of a new craft which has just been built by Messrs. Allan and Ward, of Long Nose Point, Balmain, for Messrs. Gibbons, Buckle, and Paul. She is about 25 tons register.

A collision took place last night in Sydney Cove between the Port Jackson Company's steamer Port Jackson and an iron punt belonging to the Orient Steam Navigation Company, and the latter had one of her plates knocked in. The Port Jackson left the company's jetty, Circular Quay at half-past 7 for Manly, with a considerable number of passengers, and when off Fort Macquarie she came into collision with the punt, which was being towed by the steam launch Little Austral into the cove, striking her on the starboard quarter, and doing the damage stated. It is alleged that neither the Little Austral nor the punt had lights exhibited at the time of the collision. The Port Jackson, which was uninjured, continued her passage to Manly, and the punt was taken alongside of the Chimborazo.

The appearance of the P. and O. Co.'s fine steamer Shannon yesterday was second only to that which she presented on the ever-memorable 3rd. There was a very numerous list of passengers and their friends assembled in strong force to bid them good-bye, so that the vessel's decks presented an interesting and animated picture for a considerable time before she started on her voyage for London. The cargo consisted of wool, copper, tin, &c., which, as well as the passenger-list, will receive substantial additions at Melbourne and Adelaide. The Shannon was in admirable order, both inside and out, and her machinery looked as if just from the workshop. She cleared the Heads soon after 1 p.m.

ARRIVAL OF THE R. M. S. PARRAMATTA.

The P. and O. Co.'s R. M. S. Parramatta, from London, via the usual ports, entered the Heads at about 1 p.m., and after being granted pratique, came up to the berth at the Company's Wharf, Circular Quay. The Parramatta as usual brings a large number of passengers, who have had a most enjoyable time on board, the reputation of the ship having in every way been maintained during the present voyage. There were altogether 112 in the saloon when the vessel arrived at Melbourne, the large majority being for this port. The command of the Parramatta now devolves upon Captain W. D. Anderson, who has with him as deck officers Mr. Gadd, Mr. Bingham, and Mr. Saunders, as chief, second, and third officers respectively. Mr. Graham has succeeded Mr. Fletcher as chief engineer, and Mr. A. H. Harvey is again in his old position as purser. The mails brought by the Parramatta consisted of 323 bags. It is almost needless to say that the vessel arrives in the best of order. The Parramatta left London on January 15, and had a fine run until January 19, when a gale from E.S.E. to S.E. set in off the Burlings light, and continued until passing Cape Roca. Strong winds and rough weather were afterwards fallen in with between Cape Finisterre and Gibraltar. After leaving Malta on January 25, the Parramatta found herself in the midst of a gale from S.E. and E.S.E., but she steamed out of it in 12 hours. Port Said was reached on January 28, and the canal was entered next day. A departure was taken from Suez on January 29. Light winds and fine weather marked the passage to Colombo, whence the Parramatta sailed on the 12th ultimo at half-past 7 p.m. She steamed into the S.E. trades on the 18th ultimo, and had strong winds with a heavy troubled sea and rough squally weather until the 24th ultimo. Cape Leuwin was sighted and passed at 20 minutes past 8 p.m. on that date, and the steamer arrived at Albany at a quarter to 1 p.m. on the 25th ultimo. The passage was resumed same date, with light southerly winds and a high S.W. swell. Next day the wind freshened from S.S.W., and continued strong from that quarter until arrival at Glenelg at 20 minutes past 8 a.m. on the 1st instant. After landing mails and passengers for South Australia, the Parramatta continued her voyage at five minutes past 3 p.m. same date, and had moderate to light winds till arrival at Melbourne at 10.20 a.m. on the 3rd instant. Mails, passengers, and cargo having been landed, the Parramatta resumed her voyage to Sydney at 3 p.m. on the 4th instant, and experienced moderate to fresh winds to Wilson's Promontory, and light winds and fine weather thence to port. The popularity of the Parramatta as a passenger ship is indicated by the fact that nearly the whole of her passenger accommodation for the return voyage has been taken up.

The Import markets to-day were characterised by a fair amount of activity. A number of country buyers were in town, but they operated with great caution, and were careful not to procure more than would meet actual requirements. The list of applications for monthly renewals continues large, but assistance is more cheerfully rendered in the face of the brighter prospects which the rainfall throughout the country opens up. Storekeepers cannot be expected to recover all at once from the depression into which they have been cast by the long drought; but the seasonable rainfall may reasonably be expected at no distant date to place the commercial relations of squatters, storekeepers, wholesale merchants, and importers in a healthier condition than they have occupied for some time past. The quotations given last week have suffered but a very trifling change. Nothing of note transpired in the breadstuffs market, which is well supplied. The ruling rates are as follows:—Flour, Adelaide, £9 to £9 5s.; South Australian country brands, £8 to £8 10s.; Victorian, £8 to £8 10s.; New South Wales, £8 10s. to £9; special brands from 5s. to 10s. extra. Wheat remains at from 3s. 6d. to 3s. 9d., according to quality. A fair amount of business was done in tea, especially in boxes, of which a goodly number changed hands at current rates. Boxes are getting somewhat scarce, and half-chests are in moderately good demand. Tea of low qualities is firmer. There is a slight improvement in the demand for coffee, which is now quoted at 8d. to 8½d. for No. 1 Ceylon Plantation; chicory brings 2½d. Epps' cocoa is worth 1s. 5½d.; other makes, 1s. 3½d. to 1s. 3¾d. In sugars, a sale of Queensland greys to arrive is reported as having been effected at £20, and ration sorts are quoted as saleable at as high as £19. White sugars are still scarce, and holders look for £25 to £26. There is no scarcity of sago and tapioca, which are quoted at 1½d. to 1¾d. Black pepper fetches 9½d. to 10d., and white 1s. 2d. to 1s. 2½d. In dried fruits, currants are quoted at 4½d. to 5d.; elemes, 5½d. to 6d. In fish, tinned salmon is worth from 6s. to 6s. 3d. for best samples; bulk, 3½d. to 4d.; sardines, 5s. for quarters, 8s. for halves; fresh herrings, 5s. to 5s. 3d.; kippered, 7s. 6d. to 8s. 6d.; ling, 5½d. to 6d. The salt market is dull, 62s. 6d. to 70s. quoted for Liverpool coarse; fine, 80s. to 90s.; rock, scarcely obtainable, it is being sold at 77s. 6d. to arrive. In oilmen's stores, pickles are moving off at the following prices:—Whybrow's London, 7s. 10½d.; Eagle, 7s.; and Popular, 6s. Whybrow's half-pint salad oil, 5s. 3d., pints, 9s. 3d., and quarts, 17s. 3d. Keen's Durham mustard, 5s. 3d. and 9s. 3d. for half-pounds and pounds respectively. Candles are worth from 8¼d. to 8½d., with ample stocks. A good line of paraffine changed hands at the latter figure. There is nothing fresh to note with regard to brewers' goods. A few sales of Nelson (N.Z.) hops have been effected at 8d. Other quotations are—Malt, 8s.; English hops, 1s. 4d. to 1s. 8d.; colonial, 1s. to 1s. 1d. Island tobacco is worth 12½d. In liquors, several fairly large transactions took place, including Saurin's brandy in bulk, at agents' rates; Foucauld's at current rates; and a small line of C.B.P. at 7s. A shipment of rum, to arrive, was sold at 3s 7½d. to 3s. 8d. Sales of geneva, key brand, have been effected at market rates; and sales are reported in medium ports and sherries, and also in Walker's whisky. Champagne was also in demand, and sales took place of Roederer's quarts and pints at 102s. and 108s. respectively, and of Krug's at market rates. A parcel of Pig stout changed hands at 9s. 10½d. for quarts, and 6s. 10½d. for pints. A sale of a large line of Dagger stout for Queensland was negotiated at full rates. Melvin's ale (quarts) sold at 8s. 6d., and Guinness' stout at 9s. 6d. Other quotations are:—Hennessy's brandy, 34s. 6d. for single-star, and 46s. 6d. for three-star. Lowndes' rum, 3s. 8d.; Red Heart, 22s. Geneva very dull of sale at 13s. Burnett's Old Tom, 12s. Whisky (Ostto's) quoted at 22s. In metals, there is but little doing in galvanised iron, and quotations cannot be given at more than £19 10s. to £21 15s., the latter for Gospel Oak. Up to 90s. asked for pig iron; 85s. being the quotation "to arrive." Sheet lead is nominally quoted at £15. The demand for fencing wire is very limited. It may be quoted at £11 5s. to £11 10s. for No. 6, £11 15s. to £12, for No. 8, and £12 15s. to £18 for No. 10. I.C. Coke tin plates are worth about 20s., though to-arrive shipments have been taken up at 18s. 3d. to 18s. 6d. For spot lots of wire nails 15s. 6d. paid, but 3d. to 4d. less is accepted for forward delivery. Muntz metal is mentioned at 6¾d. to 7d. Kerosene oil is now obtainable readily at from 1s. 6d. to 1s. 11d., according to test. In oils a good business was done at the following prices:—Raw and boiled (scarce) in wood, 3s.; drums at 3s. 2d.; China, 3s. 3d.; castor, 3s. Cement is moving slowly. Cornsacks are worth 6s. 3d.; small lots sell at 6s. 6d. A few sales of woolpacks (11¼lb.) are reported at 2s. (d.p.) to arrive. The trade in drugs is very quiet. Quotations are:—Cream of tartar, 1s. 4½d. in kegs; tartaric acid, 1s. 10d. in bulk, 1s. 10½d. to 1s. 11d. in jars; soda crystals, £6 5s. Slates continue scarce, but for forward delivery are worth £10 10s. for 20-10's.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Letters and communications intended for insertion in the news columns should be addressed to The Editor.

Attention is respectfully directed to the following rules:—We cannot undertake to return rejected communications. No notice can be taken of anonymous communications. Whatever is intended for insertion in this journal must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

BUSINESS.

It is requested that all communications respecting the business of this journal be addressed to John Fairfax and Sons only, so that any unnecessary delay may be avoided.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

We beg to inform our advertising friends that, to secure insertion and proper classification in Saturday's paper, it is necessary that their advertisements should reach this office not later than 9 o'clock on Friday night.

Advertisements for Monday's paper are received at this Office as late as 9 o'clock on Saturday night. With the exception of announcements of an important or urgent nature, advertisements brought to the Printing Department after that hour cannot be guaranteed insertion.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, MARCH 7, 1885.

A perfectly clear understanding as to the purposes to which the Patriotic Fund will be applied should crush the petty opposition with which collectors or advocates are occasionally met, and this understanding may be gained by a glance at the subscription-lists which the managers of the Fund are now circulating. They are headed by this resolution:—"That the Patriotic Fund be for the benefit of the widows, children, and dependents of those who may fall in the war, or who may return disabled." Is it possible to conceive of an appeal more direct and general? It calls for no endorsement of the Ministerial policy, for no sanction of the despatch of the expedition, no acquiescence in the right of war; but for relief to be supplied to those who in the ordinary course of events must shortly be in distress. It is a cause in which the most conscientious member of the Society of Friends could join with the most exalted Jingo in the assurance that, without any advocacy of this or any war, he was aiding to mitigate war's horrors, and to bind up the wounds which will most certainly be caused. There is no reason to complain of the progress the Fund has already made. The amount even now subscribed is creditable to the colony, and in proportion to the population is larger perhaps than any voluntary fund that ever grew in any country out of any previous war; but we are conscious that it is but at its beginning. It is the work of a few, who catching the first influence of the outburst of patriotism which in a few weeks overflowed the country, were prompt with their offers of assistance. It is necessary that it should become the work of the many, that it should be taken up by the colony from harbour gate to remotest inland bounds, that every man should recognise his duty in the matter, and give his mite, even though he deplored the cause which rendered his giving necessary.

It is not, however, to be supposed that there will be any general objection to the Fund by reason of its connection with the war. The demonstration of Tuesday last came from the very great majority of the people of the colony, and a direct appeal may now be made to that great majority to advance another step in the work which has been so well begun. It will probably be a new and remarkable and altogether exceptional step, but it will be strictly in accord with the steps which have already been taken. Our soldiers are sent out better paid, equipped, and provided than any army that ever marched to any war, and we desire to provide for the legacies they may bequeath to the State as no State ever provided before. We desire, in fact, to act up to the full measure of the capacity of our unprecedented prosperity. Because the carpenter, the mason, the miner, the labourer, are better paid in New South Wales to-day than in any other country of the world, because the traders of the city are as a body doing better than in any other city, it is proper that the soldiers also should be paid better, and that better provision should be made for soldiers' wives and children, or widows and orphans. There has throughout the world's history been something disproportionate in the labours the soldier has performed, the suffering he has endured, the risks he has run, and the reward he has received. Governors and Governments have traded upon the military sentiment, have seduced or compelled men to fight their battles, and made very scant provision for them or for their orphaned charges when the fighting has been over. It is possible that we from the very beginning of our warfare may be free of this cause of reproach and shame,—that no matter how many may die in the field, there shall be no widows and children suffering cruelly and helplessly at home,—that the colony, having recognised, will fully perform its broad and costly duty. To do this, however, exceptional effort must be made, and perfect method employed. The burden, to be easily carried, must be properly distributed, and in the distribution both discretion and zeal must be shown.

The first great exemplary contribution was that of the Railway Department, and yet it is possible that it will be most lightly felt by those who have raised it. It is one day's pay per man—one three-hundredth part of the year's earnings. There is no man in the colony who could not afford to contribute one day's pay to this cause; there is no man who could not, under constraint of necessity, contribute the pay of a week or a month, or, indeed, if, instructed by the experience of other nations, we might go much further and say the earnings of a month, or a tenth, or a fourth, of actual income. The war taxes of France after the disastrous war of 1870 took more than a fifth of the actual revenues of all producers in the country, and through tariff rates fairly tithed the earnings of all artisans and professional men. Yet it was considered, and it may be said proved, that France could have borne a far heavier strain, and the prosperity or resources of France could not be said to equal or approximate ours. We are not, however, required to make any extraordinary sacrifices. One days' earnings of all the brain and manual power, the capital, the stock, and general resources of the colony would probably be sufficient, certainly one week's earnings would be ample, and our effort should be to obtain these amounts as cheerful gifts, and without any suspicion of compulsion. There were murmurs of ill-advised procedure in connection with the contributions of the Railway Department; objections petulant or jealous rather than sound were taken to the circular distributed. It was urged that the appeal from the heads of departments was tantamount to a demand, or that the refusal to comply would put black marks in the record of any employee. Those most familiar with the rules and methods of the service will be first to laugh at those charges perhaps, but in order that the mischief or discouragement which may arise from their repetition should be avoided, it would be well that there should be nothing official about any further attempts. It will be enough for any employer of labour, if the impulse seems lacking amongst his hands, to call them together, to put the object of the Fund clearly before them, to express his willingness to receive their contributions, and to leave the process of collection entirely in their own hands. It would be well if every employer would take this course, and it would be better if every head of every household in the land would follow in the same way. The cause is one to commend itself to the little child as the millionaire, one to be brought down to the feeblest understanding as to be taken into the most exalted conceptions of patriotic duty, and happily is so stripped of all extraneous circumstance and political significance as to be free of offence to all who recognise the claims of Christian or human duty.

The last quarrel between England and Russia was occasioned by the embassy of Russia to the Afghan capital; the quarrel which is now threatened is the result of her encroachments on the Afghan frontier. By the two countries a frontier of some kind was agreed upon in 1873; but the line that was sufficient twelve years ago is not found to be sufficient now. Russia has managed to get very much nearer to Afghanistan during the last few years, and it has been thought that there ought to be, if not a more equitable frontier line, one which all parties are more likely to observe. A short time ago it was decided that a commission consisting of Englishmen and Russians should be entrusted with the settlement of the frontier question, the head of the Russian commission to be General Zelenoi, that of the English commission to be Sir Peter Lumsden. The latter left England in the autumn of last year, and performed an arduous journey to the Afghan frontier, expecting no doubt that when he got to his journey's end he would find his Russian colleague. In this he was disappointed. General Zelenoi, instead of keeping his engagement with the English Commissioner, appears to have betaken himself to his country-house at Tiflis. At the Afghan frontier it would seem the winter was too cold for General Zelenoi; the General would wait till the spring. In some inhospitable region in Afghanistan the British General has been waiting some four or five months, and there is reason to fear that he may have to wait a few months longer. It is even doubtful whether the Russian Commissioner will put in an appearance at all. A few days ago it was stated that the Russians have been complaining of the strength of Sir Peter Lumsden's escort. The western boundary of Afghanistan is a wild country, so wild that when Sir Peter Lumsden was starting for his journey, the Ameer intimated that he could not undertake to be answerable for his safety. With a view of being ready for any contingency, the British Commissioner took an escort of 1400 men. The Russians are of opinion that no such protection is necessary for the purposes of a frontier line, and unless General Lumsden consents to part with his escort, the probability is that they will refuse to meet him at all.

Up to the present, at least, the frontier question has not been touched, and there is good ground for the suspicion that the Russians do not want to touch it. They are not anxious to be bound by agreements which they might find it inconvenient to observe. If there must be a frontier, they prefer to make one on their own account, and to this task the Russian troops on the Afghan border are devoting themselves. A few weeks ago they occupied Puli Khatun, and now it is reported that they are within two miles of Panjdeh. Both of these places are said to be indisputably Afghan territory. This the Russians would deny; but whatever the merits of the border disputes between the Afghans and the Russians, the latter claim to be the judges of them. They are undertaking to decide where the frontier should be; and if the line that is to divide the two countries is to be drawn by the Russian soldiers, there can be nothing left for a mixed commission. Any line which a commission might draw would be of doubtful value. It is one thing to fix a frontier line in a civilised country, and another to fix one in a semi-barbarous country. Whether Russia moves farther east or not will depend partly on her own aggressive instincts and partly on the ability of the Ameer to keep order on his western boundaries. It is almost needless to say that the Ameer's control over some of the tribes in that region is a most imperfect one, and that the quarrels which Russia has been having with the Turcomans are almost sure to extend to the Afghans. No diplomatic settlements are likely to check the Russian advance. If the Russians are held in check, it will have to be by English bayonets. Slowly but surely the Czar is extending his dominions, and, if we may judge from the past, the strong man armed will go forward till he meets a stronger than himself.

There is also a special reason why Russia should maintain a menacing attitude on the borders of Afghanistan. Russians know very well that quarrelling with Afghanistan means quarrelling with England, and while at so great a distance from their centre of operations they will hesitate to hasten a quarrel, they will not hesitate to hold themselves in readiness for one. Russia and England have few interests in common. What the one would possess it does not suit the other to grant. The present difficulty may be overcome. We are told that there is a prospect of an amicable settlement of the present differences, and that we are prepared to believe. Russia is too shrewd to make a great danger of a small boundary dispute, but though she may call a halt she has refused to beat a retreat. She will remain at Puli Khatun, and before very long she will station herself at the gates of Herat. It is not that she is particularly anxious to annex Afghanistan, or that her chief ambition is to become the ruler of India. Russia would not know what to do with India if she got it, and it may be doubted whether she has any very ardent desire to add the great British dependency to the list of her possessions. Russias' desire is not so much to annex India as to be a danger to it. What she covets is a position in which she can embarrass and menace Great Britain. Englishmen wonder why this should be the case, and they accustom themselves to regard the fact as a proof that everything that Russia does is unnatural and diabolic. Attacks upon England like the one that was made by General Soboleff the other day are regarded with wonder; but nobody wonders at the Russophobia which has so long characterised a large section of the English press. Englishmen bring the Indian troops to Malta, and then deem it strange that Russia should send an embassy to Cabul. We smite the Muscovite on the right cheek, and think it wonderful that he refuses to offer us the left. The nation that has stood in the way of Russia's ambition, that has persistently thwarted her plans, is, not Germany or France, but Great Britain. But for England, Russia might now have been at Constantinople. This Russians knew as well as we do; the English have been their enemies, and of course they do not love them. If Russia wants India it is only as a means to an end. "We do not want India for its own sake," said General Soboleff, "but what we want and intend to have is the Bosphorus." The heart of Russia is set on Constantinople, and if she seeks to occupy Herat, it will be because she believes that that is the shortest road to the Bosphorus. "We already occupy a threatening position on the confines of Afghanistan. We are strong there, and should have the determination to recognise the fact. The English are a practical people, and when they understand that we are not going to play the coward, and are not afraid of their threats being put into execution, they will soon talk in another strain and come to terms. The possibility of an invasion of India is a source of great agitation in England; and well may it be so, for whoever deals England a blow there sounds her death-knell." So writes the General whom we have already quoted, and in what he says we may find an explanation of much that is urged by Russian critics, and of a good deal that is going on in Central Asia.

Surely there was something forced and overstrained in the indignation at Newcastle over the official refusal of a district holiday on the fifth instant. There was a public holiday two days previously, of which ample notice had been given, and which might have been utilised by the miners for their purpose; the more so as, to judge from the oratory at Newcastle, the miners were out of sympathy with the purpose of the holiday on the third. The miners can get a holiday whenever they like for their own demonstrations—they have only to indicate their wish to their employers, and it is always complied with. As therefore they can get all they want for themselves, there is no reason why they should compel other people to keep holiday for what is purely a class demonstration. As long as they can get what they want they should be reasonably content, and not seek to force upon other people what might be inconvenient. Nobody prevented their holiday, nobody interfered with it, and there was no necessity to force a district holiday on people who did not want it. If we are to have a free country, we must keep as clear as possible of social and political tyrannies, and the Government should not be asked to impose any greater restraints upon people than the necessities or proprieties of Government demand. As there had been one holiday in the week, the Government was certainly justified in refusing a second for what was a purely sectional demonstration, and which demonstration could go on just as well without a public holiday as with one. At the same time, Mr. Critchett Walker's letter ought to have stopped at the statement that the holiday was "unnecessary." The rest of it was not only surplusage, but worse. He was not in a position to divine the motives of the applicants, and if he knew them, it was not necessary to disclose them.

Death has been thinning the ranks of the Legislative Council, and it may be worth while to consider the expediency of filling them up. In September, 1883, the Council had fifty-four members, and six more were then added, making sixty. Since that date, by death and resignation, nine members have been removed. Taking them in alphabetical order they are the Hons. W. M. Alderson, A. Bell, J. Blaxland, E. K. Cox, J. Docker, J. Frazer, T. Holt, L. W. Levy, and John Marks. The Council is thus reduced to fifty-one. On the ground of this much decreased number there is reason to consider the question of selecting additional names; but there are two other reasons, one special and the other ordinary. So long as it is deemed expedient to have a second Chamber it is obvious that it ought to be maintained at its full strength, numerically as well as in character. If nine additional names were now added, the House would be no larger than it was two years ago, and would still be a trifle below its proper ratio to the next Assembly. But one of the commonly-urged pleas for a second Chamber is that men of leisure and wide experience may watch over public affairs and prevent the precipitate action in which a single elective Chamber might at times indulge. The ensuing session is called to deal with one of the gravest matters yet brought before the country. Already it has been the occasion of an unusual degree of excitement, and as to it there is considerable difference of judgment as well as of sentiment. Unmistakable signs have been given that it may be treated as a party question with not a little personal feeling. The brunt of the battle may be in the Assembly, and it is not well to assume that there is an assured victory on either side. If Mr. Stuart could be consulted, or could return in time, the occasion warrants that the recent action of the Government should be considered in a full Upper House. Since men worthy of this position ripen for it fully as fast as they are required, there should be no difficulty in finding sufficient names.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Important deliberations are taking place in London on the subject of the advance of Russian troops towards the Afghan frontier. Mr. Gladstone, in reply to a question in the House of Commons, stated that questions of the greatest delicacy were pending at the present moment between England and Russia.

The English mails to 30th January, ex Orient liner Potosi, will be delivered from the General Post Office this morning, at 9 o'clock.

On page 4 of this day's issue will be found a list of sums received by the hon. treasurers to the Patriotic Fund, and amounting to £19,558 4s. This money is actually in hand, and does not include English and local promises, which amount to several thousand pounds. If any error or omission be noticed in the account now published, immediate intimation thereof should be sent to the treasurers.

We have been requested by the Colonial Treasurer to point out that the statement made in Mr. P. J. Clark's letter of Wednesday, in reference to the deputation which waited upon Mr. Dibbs on Friday last respecting the boat race regulations, is incorrect; and further, that the deputation, through Mr. Thornton, the spokesman, after arguing for a considerable time against Mr. Dibbs, admitted that the Treasurer was right in his views, and expressed themselves as satisfied that the new regulations would be better for the safety of the public and in the interest of fair racing; and that with this sentiment the other members of the deputation, including Mr. P. J. Clark, concurred; also, that the deputation did not leave the room protesting, as Mr. Clark asserts.

The people in the Western districts of this colony have been for some time past urging Mr. Abbott to pay that locality a visit. Many of these people, more than six months ago, stated that they would make arrangements to find horses for him through the whole of the district, and for some time past, in many places, they have had the horses waiting. The journey will be a long and tedious one, and without the assistance of the people out there the Minister would be unable to accomplish it. As these persons had made their arrangements Mr. Abbott thought he could not disappoint them, and his colleagues having agreed with him he determined to carry out those arrangements, which were made long before there was any notion of summoning Parliament so soon. Mr. Abbott will leave Sydney on Tuesday night, with Mr. Quin, M.L.A., Mr. Cramsie, M.L.A., and Mr. Wilkinson, M.L.A., for Hay. Messrs. Cramsie and Wilkinson will proceed with him from Hay to Balranald, returning from there to be in their places in Parliament when it opens on the 17th. Mr. Quin will accompany Mr. Abbott to Euston, and from there the Minister will go on to Wentworth. His object in going by the river is to obtain knowledge of the working of the Rabbit Act, as the runs he will pass through from Hay to Wentworth are some of the worst infected runs in the colony. From Wentworth Mr. Abbott will proceed to Menindie, on the Darling, and from there to the silver mines at Silverton; thence to the Umberumberka run, on the boundaries of South Australia. From there he will go through Langawirra run, and so on to Wilcannia, thence by the Darling to Louth, and across from there to Cobar, Nymagee, and Mount Hope, and then by way of Hillston to the railway at Carathool, returning to Sydney by the Hay line. It has been a source of complaint for a long time among the residents of the Western districts that no Minister has ever gone amongst them to see their wants. As the districts through which Mr. Abbott will pass are all more or less infested with rabbits, he will have an excellent opportunity of making himself practically acquainted with the working of the Act for the destruction of those pests.

In the Supreme Court yesterday, the action Watson v. the Commissioner for Railways lasted all day in the Banco Court, and the evidence was concluded. The addresses of counsel terminated at 4 o'clock, and his Honor Mr. Justice Windeyer placed the law and facts clearly before the jury, who, after about 20 minutes' consideration, found in favour of the defendant on the issues submitted. In the Jury Court the evidence in the action Murray v. M'Neill and others was concluded, and the addresses of counsel were proceeding when the Court adjourned. In the Divorce Court the decree nisi in Bretnall v. Bretnall was made absolute. Although his Honor Sir William Manning was still indisposed, he attended his chambers and dealt with all the Equity business that was pressing.

Dr. Linton, the first Bishop of Riverina, who will be welcomed to the colony, at St. Andrew's Cathedral, next Sunday, stated, whilst at Adelaide, to a representative of the S.A. Register, that, after a brief rest in Sydney, he will proceed to Goulburn, in order to make the necessary arrangements with the Bishop of Goulburn respecting the boundaries of the Goulburn and Riverina dioceses. Dr. Linton will then visit Hay and Deniliquin and inspect other portions of his diocese before coming to any final decision as to the site of his residence. Looking at the question from a geographical point of view, and before personal inspection, he is inclined to think that Hay will be the most likely spot, as, although not quite so well populated as Deniliquin, it is more centrally situated, and promises to increase in importance more rapidly than the other. On this point, however, he cannot arrive at any decision till he has made a permanent inspection of the diocese. His Lordship is accompanied by the Rev. J. J. Harvey and a layman, who will assist him. Another clergyman is already on his way out to join the Bishop; a third will start this month, accompanied by a layman, and arrangements have been made for about four more clergymen to come out very shortly. This is irrespective of the clergymen who are already at work in different parts of the Riverina diocese. Prior to his being chosen Bishop of Riverina, Dr. Linton had charge of St. Philip's, one of the large parishes on the outskirts of Norwich, and previous to this he was at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Oxford, where his father, Canon Linton, is censor of St. Peter-le-Bailey.

Yesterday the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of New South Wales met in St. Stephen's Church, pursuant to adjournment. The first business was the adjourned discussion respecting the petition from the directors of the Presbyterian newspaper. Finally it was resolved to refer the petition to a committee to be appointed to confer with the petitioners. The petition of the Rev. A. S. C. James for admission to the Church was dealt with in committee, and the report on Sabbath schools, and also the report on Religion and Morals, were adopted by the Assembly, which adjourned till Saturday (this) morning, at 10 o'clock.

In another column will be found a list of students who passed in the late annual examination of the classes at the Sydney Technical College in connection with the Board of Technical Education.

In return for hospitalities extended during his Mayoralty to the Aldermen and others, Mr. W. H. Simpson, J.P., Mayor of Waverley, was on Thursday invited to a day's outing up Middle Harbour. Among those on the boat were Alderman J. M'Pherson, J.P., J. Fullford, J.P., T. J. Dickson, W. Martin, T. J. Murray, D. J. Cooper, A. Allen, Messrs. John Williams, J.P., W. Henderson, J.P., W. Wiley, J. H. Newman, D. J. Allen, T. E. Hall, W. Thomas, W. Spring, R. T. Orr, R. Watkins, and D. G. Fletcher. The day was fine, and the trip on the water most enjoyable. A halt was made at a picturesque spot far up the harbour, where dinner was served. Mr. Alderman M'Pherson occupied the chair, and after the usual loyal toasts, gave "Our Guest," paying a due meed of praise to Mr. Simpson's many good qualities. The Mayor replied in a graceful speech, thanking all present for the good feeling entertained towards him, and for giving him such a pleasant and wholly unexpected day's outing. "The Mayoress and the Ladies," was then proposed, and responded to; and the health of Mr. T. E. Hall, who had so well-conducted the arrangements for the day, was drunk. Alderman Martin then proposed the "New South Wales Contingent," speaking highly of Mr. Dalley's tact, and the loyalty of the men. The toast was drunk with much enthusiasm. The last toast was the "Chairman," by Mr. John Williams. Some net fishing was then indulged in, after which a pleasant trip was made home.

Captain Baxter, R.E., has invented a new field kitchen, which is likely to supersede any of those now in use, on account of its extreme simplicity and portability. It consists of a series of annular kettles, the central tubes of which, when the kettles are placed one over the other, form a continuous flue or chimney. The combustion of the wood or fuel is thus maintained by the strong induced draught; and any sort of combustible matter will burn freely. The kettles are made of diminishing size, so that they can be packed one in the other. The kitchen would be particularly useful in a boat, where a little sand strewed on the bottom would sufficiently guard against fire. A field kitchen, to cook for 60 men, measures, when packed, 15 inches in diameter by 14 inches high, and can be carried by one person with ease.

The latest contribution to the batch of patriotic compositions inspired by the recent outburst of martial spirit here is the work of Mr. Charles Huenerbein, and is likely to become very popular. It is a song entitled "To the front," the spirit of the words being embodied in the opening line "Raise high Australia's banner," and the work is dedicated to the Hon. W. B. Dalley. The melody is spirited and tuneful, the accompaniment is clever and harmonious, and the words, by Mr. Leopold Jordan, are thoroughly expressive of popular sentiment. The outside page bears the representation, in monochrome, of a handsome Amazon holding aloft in one hand the Australian banner, and bearing in the other a drawn sword, marching beside the British lion, to the front of a battle-field. The frontispiece is the work of Mr. W. M'Leod, and has been well lithographed by Jarrett and Co.

The growing suburb of Hunter's Hill has had its spiritual wants recognised by the Presbyterian Church. Early in February the Rev. J. M. Ross (general agent) conducted the inaugural services, and the station has since been supplied chiefly by leading ministers of the Sydney pulpits, public worship being conducted each Sunday, both morning and evening, at Hunter's Hill, and in the afternoon at Woolwich. It is expected that by the end of the month a minister will be stationed there.

A largely attended meeting of the members of the Drapers' Association of New South Wales was held last night at Punch's Hotel, Pitt-street, for the purpose of presenting the prizes won at the recent picnic held under the auspices of the association. The prizes included a number of valuable silver cups, watches, dressing cases, writing desks, and other suitable prizes presented by various gentlemen, and a remarkably handsome Bible, the gift of Mr. J. Wilson. The presentations were made by Mr. W. Mason, president of the association, and at the conclusion mutual congratulations were exchanged by those present regarding the successful manner in which the picnic had been carried out.

There will not be a Marine Board inquiry into the circumstances attending the recent collision between the Iberia and Nemesis until the former vessel returns to Sydney.

The monthly meeting for March of the Amateur Photographic Society of New South Wales was held at the Technical Institute last Thursday evening. There was a large attendance of members and visitors, Mr. J. S. Wigram, vice-president, being in the chair. The business of the evening was an address by Dr. J. F. Elliott on the description of some of the chemicals used in photography. Dr. Elliott, in mentioning the most important chemicals used, described their various properties and their active principles when used in connection with photography. The address was highly interesting, and Dr. Elliott, at its conclusion, was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. Several members of the society exhibited photographic views, amongst which a solar enlargement shown by Mr. Tyler received much attention. Mr. Mundy showed and described a "finder" and a "changing bag," both made by himself. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the evening's proceedings.

The annual meeting of the Darlinghurst Branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held in St. John's Schoolroom, Darlinghurst-road, on Thursday night. Mr. M. H. Stephen presided. The report was read by the Rev. A. W. Pain, B.A. The Rev. R. T. Hills, district secretary, gave the meeting some idea of the extensive operations of the society. The Rev. H. T. Robjohns, B.A., agent of the society, presented an outline of the society's business during last year. A resolution was passed on the motion of Rev. S. S. Tovey, seconded by Dr. Kingdon, expressing obligations and thanks to Miss E. Jones for her valuable services as secretary since the foundation of the branch. On the motion of Rev. A. W. Pain, seconded by Rev. Mr. Cranswick, the committee for the year was appointed, with Mrs. Scroggie as president, Mrs. Pain treasurer, and Mrs. R. J. King secretary.

The monthly meeting of the committee of the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts was held on Thursday evening, the president (Mr. Justice Windeyer) being in the chair. The members present were: Vice-presidents Dalgarno, Osborne, and Teece; Messrs. Beaver, Bevill, Collie, Dowling, Jones, Neitenstein, Perkins, Scott, Taylor, and Thomas. After the transaction of routine business, the treasurer (Mr. Thomas) presented his report, showing receipts during the past month amounting to £295 7s. 3d., and a credit balance at the bank of £888 11s. 8d., against which cheques were required amounting to £163 0s. 11d. The mortgage debt had been reduced by a further payment of £250, and now stands at £2000. The report of the library subcommittee was presented by Mr. Dalgarno, announcing the issue of the new catalogue, and recommending that a sum of about £1200 be expended during the present year in binding and in the replacement of worn-out books, and that meanwhile any further reduction of the debt should be deferred. The reports having been adopted, and the accounts passed for payment, it was agreed that the resolution appointing standing subcommittees be rescinded; and that the whole of the business of the institution should be transacted at the regular monthly meetings, any special subjects being referred to special sub-committees. A tender for the painting of the front of the building was accepted, and a suggestion for the erection of a conversation and smoking room was deferred, owing to the occupation of the building by the Technical College.

The Surry Hills branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society held its annual meeting in the Wesleyan church, Bourke-street, on Wednesday evening, when the Rev. George Brown presided. The report read by Mr. M'Clelland was adopted. The Rev. H. T. Robjohns, B.A., agent of the parent society, delivered an instructive address on the successful work of the society; and the Rev. R. T. Hills, district secretary, spoke on some of the operations of the society during the year. The meeting was also addressed by Messrs. Wilcox, Hayes, and Slade. Resolutions thanking the lady collectors for their exertions and appointing office-bearers for the year were passed, and the usual votes of thanks brought the proceedings to a close.

We have received a copy of the 33rd annual report of the Society for the Relief of Destitute Children, Randwick, which is now being distributed for the information of the subscribers and the public. In addition to the report read at the annual general meeting, a large amount of interesting matter is submitted of a statistical and financial character, and the names of all the city, suburban, and country subscribers are given in alphabetical order. The following appears as the numerical return since the establishment of the institution in 1852:—Apprenticed under indentures, 961 boys, 758 girls; restored to parents, 1709; discharged to boarding-out offices, 177; died in 33 years, 210; remaining in asylum on December 31, 1884, 253 boys, 99 girls; total, 4167. The secretary, Mr. Coulter, will be glad to furnish copies of the report upon application.

A correspondent, who has just arrived from Hongkong, sends the following interesting items of news with regard to the situation in China:—Business is almost at a standstill in consequence of the dispute with France. The Chinese merchants are afraid to speculate, not knowing how soon the French may swoop down upon them; and the European merchants are also complaining about the dulness of trade. The French ironclad Triomphante called at Hongkong, obtained a few days' supplies of coal and provisions, and then left for a destination unknown. The French are not keeping a very strict blockade of Formosa, as a few steamers have gone in and landed supplies for the Chinese. Just before I left Hongkong it was reported that a steam-launch, belonging to one of the men-of-war blockading the coast of Formosa, had gone ashore for water, believing that none of the enemy were in the vicinity; but they were suddenly surrounded by a body of Chinese soldiers and all killed before assistance could reach them. The heads of the dead Frenchmen were cut off and carried away as trophies by the Celestials, who it appeared had been watching the ship for some time. The Chinese authorities sent five men-of-war to engage the French ships guarding the entrance to the River Min at Foochow, but according to latest accounts they had not reached their destination. The French were on the qui vive, and were quite ready to give them a warm reception when they arrived.

The following Government notification was issued in a Hongkong Gazette Extraordinary of 6th February:—"His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to direct that the subjoined regulations shall be substituted for those issued on the 23rd January ultimo, with reference to the tenth section of the Foreign Enlistment Act, viz.: Public ships of either belligerents should not be allowed to take on board at Hongkong supplies, such as would assist naval operations; therefore, no more coal should be furnished to any belligerent ships than may be necessary for moving to the nearest national port, or nearer destination; also the repairs of belligerent ships and the supply of provisions for their crews should be restricted to such as are necessary to enable such belligerent ships to hold the sea on their voyage to such destination as aforesaid; and no repairs should be effected or supplies furnished to belligerent ships, except under the supervision of the local authorities, whose duty it would be immediately to report to the Governor in each case in which the limits imposed may be infringed."

Inspector Seymour continues to take vigorous action against those dirty folk who disobey sanitary regulations by allowing accumulations of filth on their premises, which thereby become offensive to sight and smell, as well as positive sources of disease. Yesterday about a dozen persons were summoned by him before the Water Police Court for this offence, and in several cases severe penalties, ranging up to £6, were inflicted. Most of the cases, however, were withdrawn, as the nuisance complained of had been abated; but it is to be hoped that the prosecutions will have a salutary effect, as a general disregard of the laws of cleanliness would certainly have an injurious effect on the health of the community.

The sittings of the Central Criminal Court were continued at Darlinghurst Courthouse yesterday, before his Honor Mr. Justice Innes. Mr. Foster and Mr. Gibson prosecuted on behalf of the Crown. The Wyadra murder case, in which Charles Watson was charged with having murdered one William Matthews, was concluded. The prisoner was found guilty and was sentenced to death. A man named John Fowler was arraigned upon a charge of having indecently assaulted a child, but, in consequence of the child being too young to give evidence, the case had to be abandoned. The jury, by the direction of his Honor, acquitted the accused.

At the Central Police Court yesterday a man named Joseph Dunn was charged before Mr. Abbott, S.M., in the Charge Division, with personating a detective. Evidence was given to show that the accused caught hold of a person in the street by the throat and said, "You will have to come along with me." Subsequently he seized upon another man, named M'Kee, told him that he was detective Dunn, and was about to take him to the watchhouse, when he was arrested. He was fined £10, with the option of two months' imprisonment.

Some time since the jury on an inquest held upon the body of Mary Anne Maria Gunning attached a rider to the verdict censuring the authorities of the Sydney Hospital for non-attention to her case, she having died from a shock consequent on burns accidentally received. The papers having been forwarded to Mr. Dalley as Attorney-General, he immediately directed the attention of the authorities to be called to the rider attached to the verdict, and intimated that the matter ought to become the subject of instant inquiry by the authorities of the hospital. Reports have been received from the hospital, from which it appears that immediately on the publication of the newspaper reports of the inquest the House Committee called upon their resident medical officers and lady superintendent of nurses and matrons for their reports, and that after due consideration of these the committee were convinced that the patient had received all the attention required to be given to her case. Appended to this report were copies of the report of the resident medical officer, lady superintendent, &c.

After an interval of four months, another terrible tram accident, which has resulted fatally, happened yesterday. It appears that just before 10 o'clock a Glebe Point tram, having made the usual stoppage at King-street, was proceeding along Elizabeth-street towards the terminus in Bridge-street, when a little boy named John Osborne, residing at Summer Hill, attempted to run across the line from Wentworth-Court to the opposite side in front of the tram. The motor dashed over him, the wheels crushing his lower extremities in a horrible manner and scattering gouts of blood and scraps of mangled flesh along the line for five or six yards. The driver pulled up the motor before any of the carriages passed over him, and the flagman (Joseph Willmot) drew out the unfortunate lad from amongst the wheels, took off his own shirt, and bound up his mangled limbs carefully, after which a cab was procured and the boy taken to the hospital. When the case was brought before Dr. Dixon he at once decided on amputation of both legs, one from the thigh and the other near the knee. The operation was performed, but Dr. Dixon had very little hope for the boy's recovery, as the shock to the system was necessarily very severe, and he died during the afternoon. A parcels receipt book was found in the boy's hand where he was lying on the tram track, and by means of this it was discovered that he was in the employ of Messrs. R. K. Buncombe, printers and stationers, 124, Pitt-street. Mr. Buncombe states that the boy was sent with a parcel to Wentworth-court, and he was evidently returning thence, as the receipt for the parcel was signed. The parents of the boy have been telegraphed to, apprising them of the sad accident. He expired at the hospital during the afternoon. An inquest will take place to-day.

Another tram accident occurred at about noon yesterday at the Bridge-street terminus to a man named Joseph Mansell, 30 years of age, and a cleaner employed in the Tramway Department. It seems that he was in the act of oiling some brakes in the yard when he was caught between two trams and severely injured. He was taken to the Sydney Hospital, where it was ascertained that his left leg was very badly lacerated. He was reported to be doing fairly well last night.

A man named John Bricketson, a stoker, aged 33 years, was admitted to the Sydney Hospital at 11.45 p.m. on Thursday, suffering from a crushed foot. It is stated that the man was getting on to his motor at Waterloo, and in doing so he missed his step, and, in consequence, his right foot got across the line, and the wheel of the motor passed over the limb. The injuries were of such a serious nature that amputation was deemed necessary, and, accordingly, the man's foot was taken off. He is now progressing very favourably.

A seaman named Henry Murray, 48 years of age, who resides at the corner of Druitt and Kent streets, was admitted to the Sydney Hospital at 6.50 p.m. yesterday, suffering from a deep wound in the front part of the neck. It is stated that the wound was inflicted by himself whilst he was in Park-street.

About a quarter to 11 o'clock on Thursday night a fire occurred in the shop of Messrs. W. J. Slack and Co., grocers, of Miller-street, St. Leonards. The fire was first observed by Mr. M'Gowan, who at once gave the alarm, and the members of the local fire brigade, the police, and a number of other persons were quickly on the spot. By the prompt use of a few buckets of water the flames were put out before any very serious damage had been done. No person was on the premises at the time, and nothing is known of the origin of the fire, but it is conjectured that some linseed meal which was stored near the spot may have become heated and thus caused the mischief. The damage caused by the fire, the smoke, and the water amounts to £40 or £50. The stock is insured in the Scottish Imperial Fire Office.

Soliloquising on the departure of the New South Wales contingent the Brisbane Courier of Wednesday remarks:—"And now that the hurrahs are over and the troopship has sailed, we shall have leisure to think of the outcome of all this. It is certainly a leap in the dark, and he would be a wise man who could tell where it will ultimately land the Australian colonies. This much we know, that it is a step forward which cannot be withdrawn. Never again can we resume exactly the same relations to the mother-country and the rest of the world which we occupied before the despatch of this corps of armed men to a distant war. No longer will an Australian poet sing—'We pile the arms of peace—her trophies manifold, her ploughshare swords, her shields of fleece, her armour of bloodless gold.' Like the rest of mankind, we shall probably in future hang the 'battle-riven banners' brought back from the Soudan high above all peaceful trophies. But these are not really subjects for regret. Approaching manhood brings to nations as to individuals its responsibilities as well as its privileges, and we are fast nearing the period of our emancipation from leading strings. Under the leadership of New South Wales we have made a great stride towards the unknown future that awaits us. That prudence as well as boldness will be displayed by the group of statesmen into whose hands the guidance of Australia at this critical time of her history has fallen, is the fervent hope of every Australian who loves his country."

The new postal note system, which came into force at the beginning of the present year, is (remarks the Age) steadily advancing in public favour. The total number of notes issued during February was 6170, being about 1500 more than in the previous month. The largest number of notes, 1098, were issued for sums of 10s. The next most in favour were the £1 postal notes, of which 1049 were issued. Notes for smaller sums, ranging from 1s. to 7s. 6d., were also largely patronised. The experience of two months has shown that the postal notes are to a small extent affecting the issue of money orders. The decrease in the issue of the latter has reduced the revenue of the department, but this is compensated for by the greater privileges afforded to the public for transmitting small sums of money to all parts of the colony served by postal communication.

A private meeting of ladies and gentlemen was held on Wednesday (reports the Age) in connection with a recently started movement called the Melbourne District Nursing Society, the aim of which is to secure skilled nursing for the sick poor in their own homes. A large and influential committee has been formed, and it was resolved to begin at once to solicit subscriptions. The annual subscription entitling to membership in the proposed society has been fixed at the small sum of 10s. Already subscriptions to the amount of about £50 have been received by the honorary treasurer. As soon as £150 has been raised the subscribers will be called together and office-bearers appointed. In the course of two or three weeks it is hoped that at least one skilled nurse will be engaged, and that operations will be begun in the central district of the city. A letter from a medical man was read at the meeting, giving some interesting statistics as to the success of a similar movement in the old country, and proposing that the society should include in its programme the training of nurses who might be desirous of joining the Australian contingent to Egypt. This proposal, however, it was felt not to be in the power of the committee to entertain. The operations of the society will be begun on a modest scale, but it is anticipated that these will subsequently be extended, and that a large staff of nurses may be maintained. It is to be hoped that gentlewomen may be induced to make nursing their profession, and that ultimately a training school for nurses may be established.

GREAT interest (says the Spectator) appears to be felt in some quarters in the mission of Fehmy Pasha. This Turk, together with Hobart Pasha, has been despatched by the Sultan to London, avowedly to tell Lord Granville that if the British Government will acknowledge all the rights which the Sultan claims in Egypt, his Majesty will support the English financial scheme. As England has not been pouring out blood and treasure in order to ruin Egypt, this mission would be slightly ridiculous, but that its avowed object is probably not the real one. The Sultan, though very ignorant, is an able man; he is alarmed at the new dangers to his European possessions, and at the emptiness of his Treasury, which breeds mutiny; and he has probably directed Fehmy Pasha to see if he cannot sell to the English or to the French some legal right which would be of value. The Sultan is also anxious to ascertain whether the removal of Tewfik Pasha, who is hated at Constantinople for his conduct in cutting off bribes, would not be acceptable, and in general to make himself visible in Egyptian affairs. The Pasha has come upon a bootless errand. The British Government will forward none of his master's wishes, is bound not to intrigue against Tewfik, and will purchase nothing in Egypt unless it be the Suzerainty, which the Sultan dare not sell.

IN the London Morning Post there is an admirably well written article, entitled "England's Best Possible Ally in Europe," which shows unmistakable signs of statesmanship and prescient knowledge. The ally aimed at here is Italy, and, from a naval point of view, a not undesirable one. Her navy consists of some 80 ships, all of a good type—20 ironclads, of which one squadron is as strong and as well, if not heavier, armed than any other squadron afloat. Her marine personnel is second to none on the Continent. Her interests do not clash with ours; but, on the contrary, on the north coast of Africa our interests are identical, viz., restraining the unjustifiable attempts of France to make herself dominant in that quarter, and this we could do by encouraging Italy's occupation of Tripoli. Again, at Assab they would prove a counterpoise to the French influence there; and as the Italians make good colonists, and are fair and just in their dealings with the natives, they would be sure to get on.

ON the German annexations in the Pacific the London Standard of January 22 observes:—"There is, however, no use 'crying over spilt milk,' but meanwhile the fine Solomon group lie temptingly ready for a European master, the general report being that they are infinitely superior to the New Hebrides, though they are not to be compared, so far as beauty, salubrity, and resources are concerned, with New Britain and the other acquisitions of Germany. Our latest annexations will not, we imagine, arouse any sanguine expectations. They comprise, as an island-dotted archipelago, a region some 400 miles in length, by less than a third of that distance in breadth; and, though only Woodlark Island and the D'Entrecasteaux group, along with Huon Gulf on the mainland, are mentioned, the probabilities are that these include their immediate dependencies, Rossel, South East Island, Piron, Joanet, Pig, and St. Aignon. In all, there are nearly 90 islets in the archipelago, most of them very mountainous, and inhabited by the same Papuan cannibals as the neighbouring shores of New Guinea. Their products are also very much alike, the main articles obtained by the traders being sandal wood, pearl shells, and beche-de-mer, the sea slug or holothuria, so highly valued in the Chinese market. But though our countrymen from Australia are the principal traffickers with the natives, it is not so much for their immediate commercial value as to avoid future political complications that the islands have been put under English control. The telegram mentions the Huon Gulf as having been annexed. This is a deep bay or bight immediately east of Cape Cretin, and, though it is in close vicinity to New Britain, we are left to assume that the Germans have neglected to hoist their flag in that particular quarter. We may also conclude, though the fact is in not expressly stated, that the annexation includes all the country eastward, the lofty Mount Owen Stanley Range being regarded by many naval surgeons as the future sanitarium of the South Pacific."

THE Pall Mall Gazette publishes Lord Blachford's statement of the bureaucratic case against the proposed Colonial Board of Advice, and says his arguments are vitiated by two fatal flaws. "In the first place, Lord Blachford despairs of the Empire. He does not believe in the possibility of maintaining the unity of Greater Britain, and we fear he does not even desire it. He is therefore out of court in the discussion of proposals framed in order to avert the catastrophe of disruption. The second weak point is that the whole of his case rests upon the assumption that bureaucratic is preferable to representative government. He may be right, but democratic communities do not agree with him. If, therefore, these communities are to be kept in union with the mother country in the settlement of all questions, whether few or many, which concern the Empire as a whole, they will insist, and rightly insist, that their representatives should at least be consulted by the Colonial Secretary. Lord Blachford objects to giving the colonies that right. He objects to hampering the discretion of the Secretary of State in any such fashion. That is an argument for autocracy, and autocracy would be fatal to the Empire."

THE Naval Brigade Band will perform this afternoon, at 3 o'clock, in the Wynyard-square pavilion, by permission of Captain Hixson and officers. Programme—1, march, "The Battle of Magenta;" 2, overture, "Primrose;" 3, selection, "Bohemian Girl;" 4, waltz, "Clasping Hands;" 5, fantasia, "The Tournament;" 6, fantasia, "Flowers of the Forest;" 7, march, "Honour to the Brave;" God Save the Queen. J. Devlin, bandmaster.

THE following is the report of the Benevolent Asylum for the week ending March 4:—Admitted, 3 women, 2 children; births, 37; deaths, 3; discharged, 7 women, 7 children; remaining in the house, 92 women, 126 children: total, 218. Provisions distributed: 1471 loaves bread, 1036lb. flour, 260lb. meat, 370lb. sugar, 92½lb. tea, 93lb. rice, 40lb. oatmeal, 38lb. sago. Fresh applications for relief, 6; cases reported by the inspector, 11. In 36 cases the relief was discontinued for various reasons; total number of cases relieved, 373.

RUSSIA AND ENGLAND.

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER.

QUESTIONS OF THE GREATEST DELICACY PENDING.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, MARCH 5.

Lord Granville and Baron de Staal, Russian Ambassador in London, had an important interview to-day on the subject of the advance of Russian troops upon the Afghan frontier.

LATER.

In the House of Commons, to-night, the Government were questioned in regard to the situation of affairs between England and Russia. Mr. Gladstone stated that questions of the greatest delicacy were pending at the present moment between the two countries. He deprecated any inquiries, and was therefore unable to give further information to the House.

A Daily Chronicle telegram from Larnaca states that the official defalcations at Cyprus, of which reports have been published, have assumed a much graver aspect than was at first announced. The frauds have been systematically carried on for four years, and several responsible officials are implicated in them, including the Deputy Inspector of Revenue. Seven officials have been arrested, but two of the defaulters are still at large.

THE SOUDAN CAMPAIGN.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

ADDRESS TO THE QUEEN.

THE COLONIAL TROOPS.

LONDON, MARCH 5.

In the House of Lords, to-day, Earl Wemyss gave notice that he would move at an early date,—"That an address be presented to the Queen, thanking her for the gracious acceptance of the loyal offer of military assistance by the colony of New South Wales, and expressing the satisfaction of the House that the similar offers of the other colonies were to be accepted at the right time."

MARCH 6.

In the House of Commons last night, the Hon. A. Evelyn-Ashley announced the despatch of a telegram to the Australian colonies, stating that if they can land troops in Egypt in September next, the Government would gladly welcome them.

THE NEW SOUTH WALES EXPEDITION.

TELEGRAM FROM THE QUEEN.

His Excellency the Governor despatched a telegram to her Majesty the Queen, on the afternoon of the departure of the troops, in the following words:—"The Queen, Windsor Castle, England. Sydney Contingent of 800 men, 224 horses, sailed to-day; great demonstration; immense enthusiasm, with intense loyalty to your Majesty. Signed, Governor." To which Lord Augustus Loftus yesterday received the following answer from her Majesty:—"Greatly gratified by your account of the departure of the contingent and enthusiasm displayed by my loyal subjects." By his Excellency's desire the Queen's telegram was forwarded to Colonel Richardson, to be read to the troops at Adelaide.

TELEGRAM FROM THE DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE.

His Excellency also received, in reply to a telegram which he had sent to the Duke of Cambridge, the following telegram from his Grace:—"Thanks for your telegram, and congratulate yourself and the colony on the loyal spirit evinced, which I highly appreciate."

TELEGRAMS FROM THE AGENT-GENERAL.

Mr. Dalley received on Thursday night the following telegram from the Agent-General:—"The Times and other papers of [illegible] speak of the embarkation of the New South Wales Contingent as a noteworthy and most gratifying event in the history of the Empire, and they promise the soldiers of New South Wales the most hearty welcome by the soldiers of the old country when they meet at Suakim. The Governor's speech was well received. The Pall Mall Gazette says that no more cheering lines have appeared in English newspapers for many a day than those which record the complete success of the movement in New South Wales for the equipment and despatch of a volunteer force to the Soudan, and the intense enthusiasm displayed in Sydney on the departure of the troops. The papers say that the moral effect of this movement on other nations in this the darkest hour of England's fortunes cannot fail to be very great. The action of Russia now takes attention from all other matters, and a feeling of anxiety prevails. The War Office wants information about horses. Mr. Francis Martin subscribes £80." With reference to the information about horses, Mr. Dalley on Tuesday evening sent all that was required.

Mr. Dalley received the following telegram from the Agent-General yesterday:—

"London, March 5, 1885.

"Re your telegram yesterday, the Secretary of State for War desires to express thanks and satisfaction at the prompt despatch of troops, and is much gratified at your report about officers and men. The provincial press comments most favourably upon your action, which has aroused great enthusiasm on the part of the public here. No more horses required at present; may be in autumn. War Office say our men will probably be in time for advance from Suakim. Forces, when all at Suakim, including New South Wales men, will muster about 12,500 British and Indian troops. The last men from here will arrive about middle March."

CONTRIBUTIONS.

Contributions from all sources continue to flow in upon the Government. Mr. Halliday, Brookong, on Thursday forwarded to Mr. Dalley his cheque for £1000, being his promised contribution for the year 1885.

The Agent-General says that several of the London papers announce that Mr. J. Henniker Heaton has subscribed £1000 to the New South Wales Patriotic Fund.

The children of the Public school, Baulkham Hills, contribute £2 7s. 6d., to which their teacher, Mr. John Worrall, adds £1, making £3 7s. 6d. in all.

Mr. George J. Strickland sent in a donation of £10. Mr. Strickland is pointsman at the Young junction, on the Southern Railway.

Mr. W. E. Kemp has forwarded the sum of £28 7s. 6d. from the officers of the Architect of Public Schools Department, of which sum Mr. Kemp himself contributes £10. These gentlemen promise to make the subscription an annual one.

The officers of the Industrial School at Biloela forwarded to Mr. Dalley £3 as their donation.

The wardswomen, nurses, cooks, and other servants of the Hyde Park Asylum, have sent in their contribution of £2 0s. 4d.

An anonymous letter was received on Thursday by Mr. Dalley, enclosing £5 for the Patriotic Fund, from C. S. F. C.

The Hon. William Grahame, of Strathoairn, Waverley, has forwarded to Mr. Dalley his cheque for £100 towards the fund.

Master Ernest Lawrence, 10 years old, son of Mr. Lawrence, of the firm of Stephen, Lawrence, and Jaques, has forwarded to Mr. Dalley, in a purely boy's letter, the sum of £25 towards the Patriotic Fund. The letter is as follows:—"Dear Mr. Dalley,—Father did not take me up to Sydney yesterday to see the soldiers march to the ships, because he said the crowd would be too great, so we remained in Manly and saw the steamers go through the Heads. But how I longed to be with them and help to punish the wicked Arabs who killed poor General Gordon. Father has been reading to us the life of General Gordon, and I could not help thinking what a good man he was, and how he was killed; and although I have asked often and often if I could do something to help our soldiers who went away yesterday I always received the same answer: I was too young, and must wait till I am a man. But yesterday I begged to be allowed to do something, even if it was only to send what little money I had saved up to the Patriotic Fund for the poor widows and orphans, and at last father has not only consented, but gave me something to add to it. Now, dear Mr. Dalley, I have written to you with it all, and want you to send it on with my best wishes from a little boy at Manly; and when our soldiers come back I hope to have some more money saved up and will send on that also. Hoping you will not think it too much trouble,—I remain, &c., ERNEST LAWRENCE."

To this Mr. Dalley made the following reply:—"My dear young friend,—I am very grateful to you for your beautiful letter, and for the money which you have sent to me for the wives and little children of the brave soldiers. A great many good and noble people have given large sums and have written loving letters, but no gift has been so good and no letter so loving as yours. You will grow up, I am sure, a noble, brave, generous boy, and you will always have in your mind what you saw on Tuesday, and be always proud of what you have done and written to-day.—I am, &c., W. B. DALLEY."

The hon. treasurers of the Patriotic Fund acknowledge the receipt of the following sums:—

MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS.

Numerous applications have been made for the care of and in some cases the adoption of Private Sessle's children, whose mother was killed on the day of the departure of the troops for the Soudan by the collision between the Iberia and the Nemesis. In addition to those already announced, Mrs. Croft, of Enfield, Leichhardt, called on the Acting Colonial Secretary, and desired to have the infant child handed over to her. She also wrote a formal application for the child. Mr. Dalley, however, is making arrangements, through the Inspector of Charities, for the immediate care of the children, who will be placed under a highly respectable matron until the wishes of the father are ascertained upon the matter. Yesterday morning Mr. Dalley telegraphed to Colonel Richardson as follows:—"Will you inform Private Sessle that his three children are provided for by the Government; that they will be most affectionately tended; and that should God spare him to return he will find that everything has been done for them which tenderness and the deepest sympathy could effect. Will you convey to him my sympathy with him in his affliction, and should he express any desire to return let him do so at once. I shall make arrangements with the South Australian Government for his return to the colony."

Large numbers of applications continue to be received from persons who are anxious that their names should be first on the list of those who may be required hereafter to replace those of our soldiers who may meet with casualties in the field. Many of these are old soldiers, and some of them are deserters from the Artillery in former years, and there are many who have served as Volunteers in our local forces.

Three large photographs of scenes in connection with the Soudan expedition have been executed by Boyd, of the New Palace of Art, 354 and 356, George-street, over Paling's Music Warehouse. The first of the three depicts the review of the troops on Saturday afternoon at Moore Park, the second shows the departure of the troops from Victoria Barracks on the morning of embarkation, and the third the troops marching to the vessels at Circular Quay. The photographs are excellently well taken and convey a very accurate idea of these very interesting incidents in a most important page of our colonial history. The truthfulness with which each individual and detail in the vast crowd of spectators have been depicted shows to what high excellence the art of photography has been carried.

A telegram was received by the Electric Telegraph Department last night, from the Cape Willoughby station, South Australia, advising that a large steamer passed inward at 10.20 p.m., supposed to be the Iberia.

A deputation, consisting of the Rev. Edgar B. Hutchings and Messrs. R. Reilly and Wm. Nettleton, on behalf of the parishioners of St. Peter's, Cook's River, waited upon Colonel Richardson, on Monday evening last, to ask his acceptance of a souvenir upon his departure for the Soudan. The presentation took the form of a handsome gold bracelet, set with diamonds, bearing the following inscription engraved on the under side:—"Presented to Colonel J. S. Richardson, Commandant of N. S. W., by the parishioners of St. Peter's, Cook's River, upon his departure for the Soudan. 3rd March, 1885."

The following suggestions have been forwarded to this office with a view to new modes of obtaining contributions to the Patriotic Fund:—

F. C. H. writes:—"Knowing that there are many others like myself who would willingly contribute our mite to the Patriotic Fund, I would suggest that boxes be placed in prominent positions outside the various public offices, such as the Post Office, Town Hall, &c. In all public subscriptions raised in the city of London this plan has succeeded admirably."

A British shipmaster says:—"I am sure some of the British seamen in this port would give their mite towards the Patriotic Fund if a seaman's branch were started. Certainly no class of men have better opportunity of realising the vast and word-wide responsibilities of the mother country, and when a band of men, such as we saw the other day, volunteer for service in Egypt we ought to do what we can for those they leave behind them. If such a branch is started my mite is ready for that list. Failing such a branch being started let my contribution be as a drop in the general fund."

A country Public school teacher sends the following:—"I have been waiting in the expectation of seeing a movement set on foot by my metropolitan brethren, for a teachers' contribution to the Patriotic Fund. I am sure teachers are not so deficient in patriotism as to stand idly by and see others breasting the waves. I for my part would willingly contribute one day's pay per annum to the fund, and I know there are many would cheerfully do the same. I would suggest that the accountant, or some responsible officer possessing the confidence of the teachers, should address a circular to every teacher with this object in view."

TROOPS FROM THE OTHER COLONIES.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The Government have received a telegram similar to that forwarded by the Secretary of State to the Government of South Australia, intimating that if the colony can, independently, or jointly with the other colonies, despatch a force to Egypt in August or September next, its assistance would be gladly accepted. The matter was not regarded of sufficient urgency to necessitate a special meeting of the Cabinet, and nothing will be done until the usual meeting of the Cabinet on Tuesday next. The whole question in all its bearings, and the desirableness of specially summoning Parliament, will then be discussed.

A memorandum from his Excellency the Governor to the Premier is published in to-night's Government Gazette, in which the Governor, on behalf of her Majesty, expresses her thanks to the officers and men of the Defence force and of the old Volunteer force who offered their services to the Government for the Soudan; and also to the citizens who offered aid, and the women who proffered to act as nurses in the hospitals for the Contingent.

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

His Excellency the Governor will not meet the Sydney Contingent at Backstairs Passage, as Sir William Jervois cannot spare the time for the trip. Sir William Robinson has written a letter to Colonel Richardson wishing him Godspeed on behalf of South Australia, and assuring him of the heartiest wishes of the colony for the welfare of the Contingent.

The Government is communicating with the Governments of the other colonies relative to sending troops to the Soudan, in order to despatch an answer to Lord Derby's message.

A large quantity of gifts were sent to the New South Wales troopships this morning, including fruit, beer, condiments, and books. The Yatalia (s.) and the Adelaide (s.), the latter being chartered by private persons, started for Backstairs Passage this morning. The steamer Governor Musgrave was placed at the disposal of the local military force. The gunboat Protector, having on board two or three members of the Ministry, and military officers, also left for Backstairs Passage. A large steamer, painted white, supposed to be one of the troopships, passed Cape MacDonnell at 5.30, and will therefore not reach Cape Jervis till this evening.

GRAFTON, FRIDAY.

The Mayor of Grafton has received subscription-lists from the secretaries of the Patriotic Fund, Sydney, with the request that he should establish a branch fund here. He will bring the matter before the Borough Council next Wednesday, when they will probably decide that a public meeting should be convened at Grafton.

RAYMOND TERRACE, FRIDAY.

A public meeting was held in the School of Arts last night, convened by the Mayor, for the purpose of allowing those who endorsed the action of the Government in raising a contingent of troops for service in the Soudan an opportunity of giving expression to their approval. There was a very poor attendance. A resolution, endorsing the action of the Government, was passed, and a branch of the Patriotic Fund was opened. The sum of £26 was subscribed at the meeting, besides the sum of £100, which Mr. White, M.L.A., promised on the inauguration of a branch here.

VICTORIA AND THE EXPEDITION.

(From the Argus, March 3.)

This afternoon steam and sail will carry away from Australia the brave men whom New South Wales sends to take part in one of England's wars, and the 3rd of March, 1885, will be a day always to be remembered in the annals of this new world. The crowds which will line the shores of Port Jackson to see the contingent off will represent only a fraction of those who, from all parts of Australia, wish our lads the old English wish—"Good-bye." After to-morrow the interest in the grim and still uncertain contest in the Soudan will, for those who are left behind, grow stronger. There is every probability that the neighbourhood of Suakim will be the scene of active operations almost immediately. Osman Digna threatens the place in force, and we have already evidence that his men are formidable foes. Now these things are brought closer to us than ever, for henceforward the news that comes over the wires to us here will not be the wide world's news, but news of our own people. We may be sure that, as far as our soldiers are concerned, nothing which awaits them yonder will be more trying than the cheers of the friends left behind growing fainter, and the shore which is Australia growing dimmer. These things soldiers have to harden themselves to. Whenever the time comes for the men who sail to-day to go into action, we are very sure that they will do their duty. No one doubts that.

From a political and international point of view, the significance of Mr. Dalley's act becomes daily more apparent as we perceive its effect outside of these colonies. There has been no lack of critics here and in Sydney who dreaded from the first announcement of the offer of troops to England a tumble from the sublime to the ridiculous at some stage of the proceedings. No doubt to those who have been well behind the scenes in the greatest movements of history, there was always something to carp or sneer at. But in New South Wales the idea of the expedition was, from the first, taken up with a grim seriousness which made it a reality at once. In countries where Australia was hitherto scarcely thought of, it has had the effect of a great historical coup; and whether it was the spontaneous impulse of a single statesman or an idea hit upon after consultation with friends at a distance, the moral effect on foreigners who are watching the English colonial system has been unmistakable. Without a great stretch of the imagination, it might be said that to-day Australia comes of age. If she has hitherto been co-heir in "the old and just renown" of the Empire, she has taken her part in those things on sufferance and as a minor. From this day forward, by the voluntary act of taking part in work which is no child's play, but grown man's work, she takes upon herself the responsibilities of full growth in the eyes of all the world. It would be easy to prove that precedence and consideration ought to be given to nations according to their population or commerce or aptitude for the peaceful arts. But success in those things alone never has won rank for a people in the world's arena. It seems as if nations must be ready to face or pass through a time of sacrifice, and, perhaps, heavy loss, before they can make claims of this kind good. New South Wales in such matters has been for the moment more fortunate than Victoria. There is an old rivalry between the two colonies. To-day we believe they vie with each other in the heartiness of their farewells to the brave lads going across the water, and in good wishes for them whatever their fate may be.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have witnessed to-day a sight which has so thrilled me with admiration that I cannot resist the temptation of writing to you. An Englishman of only four days' imperfect acquaintance with Sydney, I have had very small opportunities of judging the growth of feeling towards the mother country which has prompted the action culminating in the despatch of troops to-day; but, observing that you have some violent objectors to this new departure in your policy, I venture to hope that the views of an outsider may be of such novelty as to plead that as my excuse for again trespassing upon your space.

For nearly 30 years England has had peace, such little wars as the Cape troubles, the Afghan campaign, and even the earlier stages of the Egyptian difficulty, being more of the nature of expeditions to keep peace, and barely calling forth effort or interest at home.

During those thirty years she has made strides in material wealth and prosperity altogether unprecedented in any nation in 200 years of the world's history. That wealth and prosperity has brought in its wake luxury and self-indulgence, and for many years Englishmen at home and abroad have been so wrapped up in their own self-sufficiency that they have hardly noticed the intellectual development and progress of some neighbouring States. Having much visited Germany, America, and France; knowing something of their language, literature, and political sympathies; and having been in daily intercourse with the commercial men of these countries for the last fifteen years, I have had exceptional opportunities of judging of the careful training, energy, and knowledge of the two former of these peoples especially. And is the fact not patent in the colonies, where Germans rival and supplant us as bankers, merchants, and even as colonisers?

Can anyone have been resident on the Continent of Europe of late years without having become aware how English influence has waned, and how often her opinions and counsels are now but too commonly treated as those of an effete and worn-out nation? Alas! to what can this be ascribed but to the apathy begotten of too much ease and belief in her own superiority.

Such was the state of foreign feeling towards England when I left home early in January. Arrived at Suez, we had the first news of the disaster which had befallen our troops in the Soudan. Then followed nearly a month, when we were totally cut off from news of the outer world till on reaching Adelaide we were surprised with information of further disasters, apprised of the generous offers of aid from the Australian and other colonies, and learned with delight the acceptance of the offer of the New South Wales Contingent. In that short month a great crisis had supervened in the affairs of Great Britain. Proof had been given to the world of the homogeneity of the British Empire, and the young blood of the race had begun to assert its vigour. And thank God for it, for England has to face a crisis in her history which will demand sacrifices, and will prove whether she is worthy to retain the supremacy among nations which she has hitherto held, or has in her the seeds of decline which have brought down so many great nations before her.

To New South Wales the honour is due not only of taking the initiative in this outburst of patriotism, but of being the best prepared for it. She proves she has attained her majority, and is not only ready to protect her own interest but to render material aid outside her borders to support the policy she advocates; she proves her right as parent and head of the group of Australian and Pacific colonies, in which, too, she is not a little seconded by reason of her geographical position, unequalled harbours, and enlightened fiscal policy. Can anyone doubt what attraction such self-assertion, resource, and vitality must have for the British capitalist, who, disgusted with his bad investments in foreign loans and American railways, and wearied with the low rates of profit at home, will turn his attention to his own energetic and patriotic fellow-countrymen in the southern hemisphere? What makes British investors willing to place money on 3½ to 4 per cent. at home, when within six weeks of them they can invest on equal security at 7 per cent.? Want of knowledge and want of confidence; for few would believe how little the English people know of the resources of the Australian colonies, and how distant they seemed to them till the Suez Canal, the telegraph cables, and the weekly mail packets brought their existence more vividly before them.

This new departure marks, too, a great period in the history of Great Britain. A spontaneous wave of enthusiasm passes over her colonies in support of the Empire. Her children remind her of the duties she owes to her history, and come forward to support her in the councils of the world. What a blow to the arguments of the peace-at-any-price school of politicians at home, when Britain's hard-working sons who left her shores in search of wealth and comfort, and for whom there is yet no question of homes to defend, remember that the position and duties of a great name and extended empire demand sacrifices! England has ever been in the van of civilisation. If her power declined it would be the signal for envious and more aspiring nations—to wit, Germany and Russia—to pounce down upon what she had not the nerve to hold; and will anyone allow that these Powers would do more for civilisation than England has done? European politicians and peoples have recently been encouraged to think only of England as a country of wealth and resource in materiel, and her population of thirty odd millions as so wedded to commerce and the arts of peace as to be unable or unwilling to brace herself up for war; and though Bismarck is too well-informed and too sagacious to allow himself to be led into such an error, it is yet high time these peoples should be awakened to the knowledge that she possesses not only ten 34 millions at home, but counts upon her millions more of her colonists (to say nothing of Indian troops and recruits), men used to all climates and inured to hardships, courageous, self-reliant, and determined, with reserves and resources of food which they can never hope to rival. I have no thought of flattering your self-love by talking the balderdash of a Victor Hugo, but I say your action has done much to prove to envious Powers that they will now have to meet a people united in the spirit of self-sacrifice, and fully resolved to defend the grand Empire built up and bequeathed to them by the genius of generations of great men. I am, &c.,

CHIMBORAZO.

Petty's Hotel, March 3.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Until your reprint on Monday of the supplement to our Gazette of the 27th ultimo, I did not know that the New South Wales Contingent had been enlisted under the Colonial "Military and Naval Forces Regulation Act," but supposed the necessary steps had been taken under the Imperial "Army Discipline and Regulation Act," and I abstained from comment at the parting hour for very obvious reasons.

It appears to me that neither our Executive—no, nor our Parliament—can legally authorise the enlistment of troops for service out of the colony, or beyond our coast; that all who have acted in the matter have subjected themselves to penalties; that the officers and men are not amenable to military laws, and would have actions against any one attempting to enforce them; and that they can only legalise their position by enlistment under the Imperial Act.

This necessary power might have been given by her Majesty's Secretary of State to his Excellency. This not having been done, the colonial commissions of our officers are worthless, and the men are not soldiers.

The remedy is, happily, very simple. The Imperial Government should be telegraphed to appoint a "recruiter" and a person to attest each enlistment, and the men, on landing, should be properly enlisted, and the officers receive their commissions direct from the Queen.

And as by sec. 79 of the Imperial Act recruits may, by order of the Secretary of State, be enlisted for service in a particular corps, our Contingent could preserve its identity by enlistment for service in the "New South Wales Infantry." I am, &c.,

Chambers, Tuesday. C. STUART CANSDELL.

MORUYA PASTORAL AND AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S SHOW.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

MORUYA, FRIDAY.

The thirteenth annual show in connection with the Moruya Pastoral and Agricultural Society was held on Wednesday and Thursday last. The attendance was satisfactory, and the exhibits were numerous and good in most classes. Horses and cattle were scarce, probably owing to the bad season. The produce exhibits were excellent, notably the fruit, corn, and vegetables. The judges' decision were invariably appreciated. The Agricultural Society's dinner, which was held at the Royal Hotel last night, was very successful. Messrs. H. Clarke and P. Garvan, Ms.L.A., were both present, and each spoke in condemnatory terms of the Government for their hastiness in incurring the heavy expenses of the Soudan campaign without Parliamentary sanction, which they said was nothing less than ignoring the rights of the people, and that the action of the Government would meet with their warm opposition although they had hitherto supported the Ministry. The meddling of the colony in Egyptian affairs might possibly prove disastrous rather than otherwise, and Mr. Garvan, who spoke vigorously, looked upon the fatal accident in Sydney Harbour, which was caused by the Iberia collision, as most ominous of evil. The speaker's views appeared to meet with the approval of most of those present, and were considerably applauded. Mr. Clarke spoke favourably of the Land Bill. The nature of the meeting necessarily limited the speeches; but had the visit of Messrs. Clarke and Garvan been anticipated, a special banquet would have been held. Mr. Garvan left here for Nelligen, and he purposes visiting the southern portion of the electorate next week. Numerous visitors are here for the show, and the town has been en fete since Wednesday. The amusements will terminate to-morrow by a cricket match against Cobargo. The Church of England and Roman Catholic bazaars have both been extensively patronised.

INVERELL PASTORAL and AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S SHOW.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

INVERELL, FRIDAY.

The second day of the local Pastoral and Agricultural Society's show was principally devoted to the judging of horses. The weather was beautiful, and a large number of visitors were present. The attendance far exceeded that of yesterday, about 2000 people being on the ground. The awards were as follows:—

Draught Horses.—Stallion, three years and over—Onus and Ambrose, 1; John Jones, 2. Entire, two years—Edwin White. Yearling colt—John Lamagan, 1; R. Priestly, 2. Blood mare—J. J. R. Gibson, 1; W. Merry, 2. Filly, two years—James Summers, 1; John Frazer, 2. Colt foal—Patrick O'Mally. Filly foal—B. Gleeson. Pair plough mares—Andrew Caldow.

Blood Horses.—Stallion—Corbett. Entire colt—A. Mackenzie. Yearling colt—W. Onus. Brood mare—Edward Wyndham. Filly, two years—William Wyndham. Yearling filly—William Wyndham. Colt foal—Edward Wyndham. Galloway—C. F. Dean. Entire pony—W. H. Bond. Mare or gelding—G. H. Gordon. Buggy pair, under 14 hands—Rev. Thos. Sterton. Hackney, to carry 14st.—J. J. R. Gibson. Hackney, to carry 12st.—M'Lean Bros. Ladies' hack—James Cheadle. Best horsewoman—Miss M'Callum. Buggy horse—J. Mitchell. Hackney, under seven years—Edwin Grainger. Spring-cart horse—Fletcher, Cookson, and Co. Prize for nicest turn-out, offered by Messrs. Flemming and Co., of Sydney—M'Lean Brothers.

The sum of £45 was taken at the gates on Thursday and £90 to-day. The ball last night was a great success, 90 people being present. The dinner takes place this evening at Lattimer's Royal Hotel. Large numbers of stock will be offered for sale to-morrow.

HORSE SALES AT MELBOURNE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

Messrs. Campbell, Pratt, and Co. sold to-day a number of Clydesdale brood mares, foals, geldings, and fillies from the breeding establishment of the late Mr. T. J. Sumner. The highest price realised was 55 guineas.

A sale of yearlings was held to-day by Messrs. Yuille and Co., when 12 of Mr. J. Mitchell's were sold, the highest price being 130 guineas, which was paid by Mr. Cripps for a full brother to Santa Claus. Six of Mr. H. J. Bowler's were sold, the highest price being 100 guineas, paid by Mr. Joe Morrison for a nice colt by Horatio. Seven of Messrs. Robertson Brothers', of South Australia, were sold, Mr. G. Cook giving the highest price—80 guineas—for a colt by Englishman out of Springtime. Six from Mr. J. Wilson's St. Albans stud were sold, and Mr. J. D. Robertson gave 560 guineas, the highest price, for Claudine, a colt by First King out of Senorita. Mr. C. H. T. Hart gave 240 guineas for a bay filly, by First King out of Pardon.

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

This morning while the Maranoa (s.), from Sydney was crossing Luggage Point Cutting, Moreton Bay, a saloon passenger named A. H. Hamilton, who was sitting on the taffrail, fell overboard. The engines were immediately reversed, lifebuoys were thrown overboard, and a boat was lowered. The chief officer also dived twice, but all without avail, as the man never rose.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

Dr. Paterson, colonial surgeon, has reported to the Government upon his recent visit to Hergott to inquire into the typhoid fever scare. He found nothing to justify the scare. There were four patients in the Hergott Hospital, suffering from what is now called typhoid, but which was formerly known as colonial fever. Two of these patients were almost convalescent. Dr. Paterson had examined the water supply, and was of opinion that the alleged effects were due to drinking excessive quantities in hot weather—not to organic impurities. The scare was so bad that many people would not go into the township. He was consulted by the people having headaches and other temporary ailments, who were firmly convinced that they had fever, but who, under other circumstances, would not have confessed themselves unwell.

The late Thomas Fox left a tolerably large sum of money for the Orphan Home.

The directors of the Moonta mine have no intention of stopping the mine at present.

Mr. J. H. Angas has been elected president of the Royal Agricultural Society.

The labour market has been relieved by the Government sending men to the reservoir works.

A small rush has set in to the gold-bearing country about Mount Crawford. Over 60 men are working in alluvial ground, and they obtain not only good wages but also a fair sprinkling, weighing from 2oz. to 3oz. A large area of ground can be prospected in the district without a royalty of purchase.

A deputation from the Farmers' Association waited upon the Commissioner of Public Works to-day, and presented the resolutions which were adopted at the recent annual meeting. Mr. Playford promised to recommend to his colleagues an extension of time for surrendering both to selector and scrub lessees, whose position was the same. He would not consent to either free or assisted immigration. The time had come when we should follow the example of Melbourne—do without immigration.

A deputation representing the Aborigines Friends' Society waited on the Acting-Chief Secretary this morning, in order to bring before him the case of Paddy, an aboriginal, lying under sentence of death in Palmerston gaol for the murder of a stockman named Campbell. It was pointed out that the murder was committed two years ago, when Paddy was 17 years old, and that probably he was acting under the instructions of Charlie, an older native, who has not yet been arrested. Mr. Playford promised to lay the views of the deputation before the Government.

Sir Thomas Elder offers £1000 towards the fund for the establishment of evening classes at the University.

A man named Stundon has been sentenced to a fortnight's imprisonment for throwing stones upon the Salvation Army Barracks' roof.

The autumn show in connection with the Royal Agricultural Society, which was held in the Exhibition Building grounds yesterday, was a marked success. The exhibits were numerous and excellent in quality, the fruit and vegetables being particularly good, and various samples were secured for the London and Colonial Exhibition next year. Mr. Angas did not exhibit in the wheat competition for the challenge cup, so the only competitor was Mr. J. Thyer. The wheat generally was light. There was a very large attendance during the afternoon, and in the evening the building was crowded, his Excellency the Governor being amongst the visitors.

The students at the Roseworthy Agricultural College have now settled down to steady work, and Professor Custance has expressed his satisfaction at the willing and earnest manner in which the students are working. A number of applications have been received from those intending to enter the college on the new year.

The Government have notified the withdrawal of the rewards for the conviction of the person or persons who caused the fires which occurred in the city and suburbs during the last 12 months.

Cremation seems to be coming in. It is announced that arrangements are complete for the use of the crematorium which the Cremation Society of England has set up; and people who desire their bodies to be committed to the flames may now accomplish their purpose with impunity. But the fashion will not come in until the danger of the cemetery has made itself very clear by some plague or pestilence. Then, perchance, we shall have the whole world in favour of purification by fire.

ARRIVAL OF SIR WILLIAM JERVOIS AT ADELAIDE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

His Excellency Sir William Jervois arrived by the Victorian (s.) at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A large crowd gathered on the wharf, and as the vessel came alongside three cheers were given for Sir William. The Permanent Artillery presented arms to Sir William Jervois, and were inspected by him. A special train took the party to town, where a guard of honour from the second battalion of the Adelaide Rifles saluted his Excellency on arrival, and the military band played the National Anthem. Sir William then proceeded to Government House, where he will stay for two or three days, and will then take a trip up country. His visit is purely of a private nature.

AN EARTHQUAKE AT SEA.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The captains of the ships Melanope, from Glasgow, and Benicia, from Liverpool, report having experienced an earthquake at sea. The captain of the Melanope reports that on December 22, when in latitude 23·29 N., 19·53 W., a distinct shock of earthquake was felt under the vessel. The time was 2 o'clock a.m. The sensation was the same as if the vessel were passing over a coral rock, and there was a grating, buzzing noise during the few minutes that the shock lasted. The position of the Benicia was 33· N., 21· W., and the time 4 a.m. On the next day a German barque was signalled, and she reported that she experienced the earthquake shock about the same time.

NEWCASTLE, FRIDAY.

A burglar effected an entrance to the premises of Mr. Anderson, a storekeeper at Waratah, about 2 o'clock this morning. Mr. Anderson was in Sydney, and his wife was alone in the house, when she heard the noise. The thief was disturbed, and he bolted, taking with him two small money boxes from the bedroom. However, there were only a few shillings in the boxes, which were found broken up a short distance from the house.

Five of the members of the Newcastle City Fire Brigade leave to-night to take part in the Victorian Fire Brigades' Demonstration at Ballarat on Wednesday next. Their names are C. Buxton, J. F. Morris, J. M'Kenzie, Captain W. Haman, and T. Smith. One of the men (Buxton) is to be presented with the Royal Humane Society's medal for rescuing two boys at the Gulf, Shepherd's Hill, from drowning about 15 months since.

For the nomination to fill an extraordinary vacancy for alderman of Macquarie Ward there were only two candidates, Messrs. John Harris and Joseph Creer, J.P.

An alarm of fire was given last night at Honeysuckle Point. The engines went out quickly, and the fire was found to to be at the back of a Chinese carpenter's shop. The fire was promptly extinguished before much damage was done. Had it been otherwise, the house being in the midst of small wooden tenements, a great conflagration would have ensued.

GRAFTON, FRIDAY.

The diver who was sent up to place a charge of dynamite in the wreck of the steamer New England, on the Clarence River bar, has been down examining the wreck again, and finds that it is much more scattered since he inspected it some months ago.

The executive committee who have the arrangements for the Ministerial visit in hand, have prepared a programme which is to fill up the time devoted to Grafton. A banquet is arranged for the second day, to be held in the Theatre Royal.

The Hospital Committee decided at the last meeting, in answer to an application, that portable property water beds, or surgical instruments should not be lent from the institution, and that the nurses should not go out of the institution to nurse patients.

The Clarence Agricultural Society's new pavilion is approaching completion, and it will be a great acquisition for the coming show.

GLEN INNES, FRIDAY.

The weather of late has been nice and warm, and has the appearance of keeping fine. The country looks splendid, and there is abundance ot grass and water. This is the best season that has been known here for the last 20 years.

Typhoid fever is prevalent here, and several people have been attacked by the disease.

KEMPSEY, FRIDAY.

The fourth adjourned meeting of the subscribers to the local hospital was held in the committee rooms yesterday, at which the president, Mr. F. Panton, acted as chairman. It was decided to appoint a paid secretary at a salary of £26 per year, and Mr. M'Kerrigan, who acted formerly as hon. secretary, was elected to the position. The auditors' report was received, and adopted after some discussion.

The Rev. C. F. Turner, a deacon of the Church of England, has arrived here to take charge of the Macleay parish.

The Rev. Mr. Fairey, Congregational minister, is announced to conduct a gospel temperance mission throughout the Macleay district.

PORT MACQUARIE, FRIDAY.

Rev. R. H. D. Kelly, from Kogarah, successor to the Rev. W. H. Saunders, the Anglican pastor here, is about leaving the district after a short stay, and is going to Williamstown, Victoria. The Rev. H Dunlop, from Goulburn, succeeds him.

Messrs Jennings, Pickering, and Co. have sent a petition to the Government for the right to resume possession of a large piece of swampy land on the west side of the town.

The farmers on part of the river are complaining of the appearance of blight in the maize crop. The leaves and stalk wither as if frost-bitten or affected with hot winds, and the disease is also found to affect the cobs of corn on the stalks, which are quite withered. The oldest farmers here have never seen anything similar to affect the corn before, and consequently it is looked upon very seriously. The cause of the disease appears to be a mystery, and can only be attributed to atmospheric changes. Some large fields of corn that have been affectedare almost destroyed.

The late showers of rain have had good effect upon the country, which looks delightfully green, and there is abundance of grass and water.

GRENFELL, FRIDAY.

An enthusiastic meeting was held here last night with the object of forming a volunteer corps. The Mayor occupied the chair, and it was decided that the necessary steps should be taken and a committee was appointed with that object. A large number of names were enrolled of those willing to join.

HAY, FRIDAY.

The river is three feet above summer level.

The applications for conditional leases since February 19th comprise 5260 acres.

The preparations for the Ministerial banquet are progressing satisfactorily. No formal deputation will wait on the Minister, but the mayor and various gentlemen interested will privately interview him.

CARCOAR, FRIDAY.

The residents of Bigga complain that the money voted for the repairs to the Binda-Bigga-road has not yet been expended, though the roads are in a very bad state.

The weather is splendid, and grass is growing luxuriantly in the district. Light frosts have prevailed in the mornings during the present week.

GUNDAGAI, FRIDAY.

Nineteen aborigines received each a blanket at the court-house this morning. It is estimated that there are only about 20 men in this district to be supplied.

Mr. James Watson, M.L.A., has written to the Progress Committee, intimating that the sum of £200 for repairs to the Tarabanda-road, and £300 for the Bethungra-road, near Yammatree, have been granted.

The weather to-day was cloudy and cool.

COOMA, FRIDAY.

The Land Inquiry Court is now sitting here.

Great indignation is felt here at the operations of the new Land Law, and a monster meeting will be held to denounce the forfeitures through carrying out the present Land Act.

ALBURY, FRIDAY.

A notice of motion has been given for the introduction in the Borough Council of a new bylaw calculated to restrict the Salvation Army processions in the streets.

At a meeting of the Borough Council a letter was read from the committee of the Patriotic Fund in Sydney asking for the co-operation of the council in the work of raising a sum of money to provide for persons dependent on the members of the Soudan expedition. One of the aldermen moved the postponement of the matter for six months, and in doing so referred in terms of disapproval to the action of the Government in sending troops from Australia to the Soudan. He also intimated his belief that the prime movers in the business where mainly desirous of obtaining some personal distinction for themselves, and he deprecated any intervention on the part of Australia in a quarrel with which it had no concern. After some discussion it was decided to convene a public meeting to ascertain the feeling of the ratepayers upon the matter.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

GUNDAGAI, THURSDAY.

Mr. H. J. Slee, Government Inspector of Mines, made an official visit this morning, prior to his departure by coach to Temora, to the property of the Floraston Freehold Gold-mining Company, of Jones' Creek, Gundagai, and he gives it as his opinion that it is a most valuable mine, which would give employment to a number of men if properly worked. Mr. Slee says that it is similar to the Lucknow mines at Wentworth, and he believes that when the shaft has been sunk to a greater depth to the pyrites the lodes will increase considerably in richness. A small parcel of 8lb. weight of stone from this mine, which was recently sent to the laboratories of the Melbourne Industrial and Technological Museum, and treated by Mr. J. Cosmo Newbery, gave a result equal to 15oz. 8dwt. 2gr. of gold per ton. Mr. Slee also says that the Asbestos mine, in connection with this company, is of great value.

FRIDAY.

An important mining case was decided in the Warden's Court here to-day, before Warden Baker, who came specially from Temora to hear it. The plaintiff (William R. Styles) claimed a half-interest in a 50-acre lease of slate land at South Gundagai, which had been taken up by a miner named Matchett. After hearing the case, the Warden decided in favour of Styles, with costs.

GRAFTON, FRIDAY.

The diamond drill that is boring for coal at Rocky Mouth is now down about 60 feet.

CARCOAR, FRIDAY.

In the Estate Paddock, situated at Cadia, since 30½oz. of nuggetty gold has been found, a prospecting party has been formed for the purpose of sluicing the Cadia ground, situated above the Estate. At Galley Swamp, Messrs. Rowe Brothers, whilst putting down their second prospecting shaft, struck a rich reef about 3 feet thick, 12 feet from the surface. At the Forest Reefs, in the company's ground, the men are engaged in putting in a fresh drive. The lead is increasing in width.

Messrs. Gresley Lukin and Co. have received the following report from the manager of 3 and 4 North Glanmire Gold-mining Company, Limited, under date 19th February:—"At No. 2 level the north-western drive is now in 730 feet from the southern boundary; the reef is much broken and shows but little gold; there is a good black slate footwall. The first stope over the level shows a little gold; 2 and 3 do not show any, but all the rest, until above the break, show a little gold. The north-eastern is now in 630 feet; the ground in this drive has been bad for working, and has retarded progress very much; the reef has made another slip to the east about 5 or 6 feet; there is about 6 inches of solid stone. The stopes above this level show gold occasionally. The western or No. 1 winze has been sunk 10 feet—total, 46 feet. There is no change since last report. The eastern or No. 2 winze has been started, and will be ready for a windlass soon. At the bottom level the north-west drive is now in 218 feet; at present there is a cross course in the face. The block above this level has been started on, and shows a little gold; also, the stopes from the winze show gold. The drives on the eastern reef have been run north and south 48 feet. Not much of this stone is saved, as there is little gold to be seen. The eastern stopes south of the cross course show fair gold, but the reef is not as large as formerly. The eastern crosscut has been driven 192 feet; there is no change. The usual washing-up has taken place, with the following result:—899 tons 14cwt. of quartz; amalgam, 1893oz.; retorted 921oz. smelted gold."

The manager of the Craven's Caledonia Gold-mining Company, No Liability, reports, under date February 22, that the main drive is now in a distance of 123 feet from the main shaft. The country is still very hard, but the reef is about the same. At the end of the level the reef is one foot thick. We are still sloping from the backs and bottom of the main drive, and we have now a face open about 300 feet, showing the reef everywhere. We have now about 70 tons of stone in the paddock similar to the last, and everything is working well.

The quantity of ore delivered by the Great Northern Railway at Newcastle and Morpeth for the week ended February 14 was 35 tons 18cwt. 3qr. 5lb.; for the week ended 21st February, 65 tons 2cwt. 0qr. 7lb.

The following is a return of copper received at Darling Harbour for the week ended February 21st:—From Nyngan, 92 tons 5cwt. 1qr.; Orange, 3 tons 10cwt.; Carrathool, 5 tons: total, 100 tons 15cwt. 1qr.

The manager of the Victory Gold-mining Company, Limited (Charters Towers, Queensland), reports for fortnight ending February 21, 1885:—"Have sunk the underlie shaft 8 feet, making it now 61 feet from the plat at No. 5 level; the walls are four feet apart, and it is much easier to work than it has hitherto been. The north drive has been extended 9 feet, making it 93 feet from the shaft. The south drive has been driven 11 feet; total distance, 118 feet from the shaft. I have 20 inches of quartz in the face, of a very good quality, the walls being about 5 feet apart. We have driven through 40 feet of good stone in this drive, which will average 18 inches, and in another fortnight will be up to it with the stopes. We are stoping south in this level, and getting very good stone in some parts, 2 feet 6 inches thick. The winze has been sunk 8 feet, making total depth 67 feet; and have to sink 25 feet more in order to break through to No. 5 level. We have had good stone all the way down this winze. The Queen Shaft has been sunk 5 feet 6 inches, making total depth 137 feet 6 inches; and the ground is much easier to work than it has been. I have raised 36 tons of quartz for the fortnight, making total quantity 260 tons in paddock."

TERRIBLE COLLISION.—Information reached Holyhead on January 17 that the London and North-Western Railway Company's cargo steamer Admiral Moorsom, which left North Wall, Dublin, at 1 o'clock on Thursday, had been in collision with the Santa Clara, an American sailing ship, and that many persons on board had been lost. She had on board a crew of 24 and 11 passengers, 51 tons of general cargo, 34 head of cattle, and 663 pigs. At 6.55 p.m. she was met by the Shamrock, one of the North-Western Company's steamers, and was then all right and about 25 miles west of the South Stack Lighthouse, Holyhead. At 8 p.m. a British ship, name unknown, passed her and went south. She had barely cleared this ship, however, when the Santa Clara, a large American sailing vessel, struck her on the port side, amidships, at a point about seven miles west of the South Stack Lighthouse. The two boats on her port side were smashed, and preparations were at once made for lowering the boats on her starboard side. The one aft was lowered first, and 18 of the crew and passengers got into it. This has not since been heard of, the probability being that it was unable to live in such a sea. Captain Weekes, as soon as the collision occurred, cried out three times in agony, jumped overboard, and was drowned. The remainder of the crew and passengers—with the exception of Mr. Woolridge, a cattle dealer, who met with the same fate as the captain, and the chief officer, Mr. W. Bradwin Jones, who jumped on board the Santa Clara—got into the other boat, and, after drifting about for an hour and a half, were picked up by the Santa Clara. The Santa Clara, owing to the adverse wind, had to lie to until a tug arrived. She was then brought into Holyhead harbour. It is stated that the captain and those on the deck of the Admiral Moorsom did not see any lights on the Santa Clara, but this may be accounted for by the possibility that the lights of the Santa Clara were obscured by the mainsail of the strange vessel. At the time of the collision the Santa Clara was going at about 10 knots an hour, and the Admiral Moorsom at about seven or eight knots an hour.

NEWS recently reached England (the Chatham and Rochester Observer says) of the suicide of a young officer of Royal Engineers, Lieutenant Stothert, who was stationed in India, by shooting himself with a revolver while suffering from mental depression. At the inquest a verdict of "Suicide while in a state of temporary insanity" was returned. Among other statements which are now flying about the town it is said that the revolver with which the deceased officer killed himself is the same weapon with which Lieutenant Roper was so mysteriously shot at Brompton Barracks some three years ago. It was with a revolver belonging to Lieutenant Stothert that Lieutenant Roper was shot. It will be remembered that, although the strictest inquiry was made into the cause of Lieutenant Roper's death, no clue was found, the jury having to content themselves with recording a verdict of "wilful murder by some person or persons unknown."

THE misplaced leniency of French juries for the most ferocious criminals has recently received one more illustration in the small village of Broom, near Dinan. A young peasant, called Gautier, was in the habit of brutally ill-treating his mother in the hope of coming in sooner for her property. Unable to endure it, the latter resolved to sell her land and go somewhere out of her son's reach. Exasperated at this resolve, he determined to get rid of her at once. Finding her asleep he first tried to strangle her with a rope. Black finger marks on the victim's neck show, that finding this method ineffectual, he had used one hand to throttle her, while with the other he had closed her mouth and nostrils. Some of her teeth were knocked out by the violence of his grasp. The jury found "extenuating circumstances," and this murderer therefore escapes with hard labour for life.

THE VICTORIAN TURF.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

In the early part of the evening, the betting on the Champion Race was 2 to 1 on Commotion, offered; and 2 to 1 against Off Colour. No others were mentioned. Later on, 6 to 4 on Commotion was taken; 4 to 1 against Silver King, wanted; 100 to 8 against Tremando, wanted; and 20 to 1 was offered against Off Colour, which went to show that he will be a non-starter.

THE TURF.

The V.R.C. Autumn Meeting will be concluded at Flemington to-day. The chief item of interest will be the Champion Stakes, which should be a contest between Commotion and Silver King, and they may come home as named. Monte Christo would appear to have a good thing for the All-aged Stakes, and, taken right through, the racing promises to be of a very high order.

The Canterbury Race Club will hold an interesting meeting this afternoon. Half-a-dozen events are set down for decision, and special trains will ply at convenient hours. All the races are exceedingly open, and the horses that are most likely to distinguish themselves are Orator, Rebus, Astrea, Brown Eagle, and Phyllis. The first race is to start at 10 o'clock. The following are the entries and the weights:—

ALL ENGLAND ELEVEN v. JUNIOR EIGHTEEN.

The contest between the English cricketers and the Junior Eighteen was advanced a stage yesterday on the Ashfield Recreation Ground. The attendance was a slight improvement upon that of the opening day, but it fell far short of what the importance of such a match demanded. As far as the game stands at present it looks a moral for the visitors but the juniors are confident of rendering a good account of themselves, therefore to-day's play may be looked forward to with interest. The Eleven resumed their innings about 1.30 p.m., Scotton and Shrewsbury facing the bowling of Spurway and Dennis. From the careful way in which these two "stonewallers" managed the various changes of bowling it was expected there would be an obstinate stand made. When the score had by tedious steps reached a dozen, Spurway, by a fast ball, clean bowled the English captain. Ulyett followed, and after playing a couple of overs steadily, he let out at an over-tossed one, and gave Sullivan, who was stationed over the bowler's head, an easy chance, which was not taken. Ulyett by freedom of play evidently meant to force the pace; and if it had not been for the expert fielding of the Eighteen, many runs would have been credited to the burly Yorkshireman. Young Ferris, however, cut short his career by sending in an undeniable one, at which the batsman played across. 2-5-17. The prospects of the Englishmen making a protracted stand did not look rosy as Barnes stepped into the breach. The fielding ground was so slow from the ungrassed top dressing that the ball would not travel upon it, and it required a very vigorous effort on the part of the batsmen to secure a run. A stand being made by Barnes and Scotton, Sullivan relieved Spurway. Though the batsmen still held possession of their wickets, they could make little headway against the bowling, Ferris in particular being difficult to negotiate. Donnan, in the slips, might have severed the partnership had he seized an easy chance which Barnes gave him off Sullivan's bowling. Just after 20 had been announced Donnan relieved Ferris, and in his first over dismissed Scotton with a good ball, the Notts man having been at the wickets for nearly an hour for 6 runs. Three wickets down for 24. Bates joined Barnes, and at once gave a taste of his quality by hitting Donnan over the boundary for 5. After Barnes had a narrow escape from being bowled, Bates, in attempting a big hit from G. Adams, skied one in the direction of mid-off the ball finding a resting-place in the hands of Robinson. Four wickets down for 35, and the supporters of junior cricket jubilant. Flowers then went to the assistance of Barnes, and operated upon Adams by sneaking a good stroke for 4 to leg, and then cutting Donnan in the next over for a like number. Soon after the appearance of 50 on the board Cottam was substituted for Donnan. Flowers then might have been sent away had Searle, at the wickets, have taken a difficult chance off Adams. Flowers gave another chance—to Ferris, at mid-on—but the catch, going to the wrong hand, was missed. At 60 Ferris handled the ball instead of Adams at the south end, while Spurway took charge of the attack at the other. The score now began to gradually mount up, mainly through the instrumentality of Flowers, who was particularly busy and playing well. Barnes kept his wicket intact at the other end for a long time, but at length he cut a ball from Spurway on to his wicket, after having played a brilliant innings for 25. Five wickets down for 78 runs. Another lengthened partnership was established between Read and Flowers, the score being augmented mostly by singles until Read sent one from Spurway clean out of the ground for 6—a very grand hit. Read and Barnes, recollecting their long and obstinate comradeship at the wickets against the combined team, set to work to give the juniors an idea as to the manner in which that memorable stand was made. Read was particularly free, while Flowers was resolute and safe. Various changes in the bowling were resorted to by the junior skipper without avail. The total made by the eighteen was soon passed, and it looked as if the defenders of the wickets had taken a permanent lease of the wickets. Ernest Ironside was tried, and then Sullivan was called upon with good effect, for Gray at long-field-on made a fine running catch, which disposed of Flowers, who scored 42 by sterling cricket. Six wickets down for 120. Attewell joined Read and assisted the Surrey representative to make substantial addition to the score, after which Sullivan bowled a "shooter" which gave him his quietus. Seven down for 130. Peel joined Read, who continued to impartially deal out punishment to the bowlers from both ends, and emboldened by his confrere's aggressiveness, he too opened his shoulders, and made a grand straight drive off Sullivan over the boundary. At 150 Donnan relieved Sullivan, and morally bowled Read, the ball just escaping the bale, four byes being the result. At 170 Tindale relieved Spurway, but Read promptly smote the new bowler to leg for 4. The stand between Read and Peel was at length broken by Ferris clean bowling Peel for 13. Hunter followed, and after taking a defiant glance at the opposing team quietly popped the first ball he received back to the bowler. He was cheered on his return to the pavilion. The enthusiasm which followed on the appearance of Lillywhite at the wickets was intense, and when the veteran opened his account on the score-sheet with a unit, there were genuine tokens of delight. A fourer by the veteran, however, fairly "brought down the house," and when the innings was brought to a termination by the downfall of the Sussex man, there was a feeling of regret that so good a beginning was so ruthlessly cut short, and there was not an unaffected onlooker upon the ground. Maurice Read's innings for 52, not out, was a splendid display of free cricket, his graceful and spirited treatment of the bowling calling forth general commendation from the onlookers. The total of 188 was, considering the good fielding and bowling of the juniors, a very creditable performance. Searle kept the wickets admirably, and Ferris may be commended upon his excellent bowling. The fielding of the 18 was fairly good, but their catching not accurate. Robinson and Hargraves may be signalled out for special mention for their dexterity in the field.

The Eighteen began their innings by sending in Dennis and G. Adams to face the bowling of Bates and Flowers. After Adams had made a single off Flowers, Dennis hit the same bowler to leg for a quartette. A smart catch at the wickets disposed of Dennis, and Cottam, who followed, was bowled with an easy ball from Bates. When the stumps were drawn for the day 8 runs had been scored for the loss of two wickets. The game will be resumed to-day at 1 p.m., and in the evening the Englishmen start for Wellington, where they will play on Monday and Tuesday next.

CYCLING.

Cyclists are reminded that the second tea and social at Homebush is to take place this afternoon. Meeting-place, at Town Hall, at 4 o'clock, University at 4 30; or those preferring it, at Homebush in time for 6 o'clock tea. From names received 50 at least are expected.

The Balmain B. C. held their general meeting at the club rooms, Warwick Castle Hotel, on Thursday night, when the following office-bearers were elected:—President, Mr. J. R. Elliott; vice-presidents, Messrs. Toogood, Parker, H. Tidswell; captain, Mr. F. Peers; sub-captain, Mr. H. Cronin; treasurer, Mr. S. Thompson; secretary, Mr. W. H. Hughes; bugler, Mr. J. Macdonald. The hon. secretary, Mr. W. H. Hughes, was passed a vote of thanks for past services, and unanimously re-elected. Report read was very satisfactory, showing balance of some £35 in hand. The club also decided to have straw hats with blue and silver ribbons for coming season. Five new members elected.

The following is the correct list of the office-bearers which were elected on Thursday night in connection with the Oriental Bicycle Club:—Captain, Mr. J. W. Gosbell; vice-captain, Mr. S. S. Field; treasurer, Mr. J. H. Mayes; hon. secretary, Mr. W. H. Poole; delegate to the New South Wales Cyclists' Union, Mr. C. Harris; bugler, Mr. Waddell.

THE EIGHT-OAR RACE OF 1885.

The contest this year gives promise of more than usual interest, the strength of no less than four colonies being represented, viz., Victoria, New South Wales, Queensland, and Tasmania. Year by year this event is increasing in interest, and it bids fair to create the excitement attending the great University race on the Thames. This year the race will take place on the Parramatta River on the 25th April. The crews for the different colonies have already been selected, and each will despatch a strong and representative set of oarsmen. The seats in the New South Wales boat will be filled as follows:—Stroke, Mr. C. A. Bros; No. 7, Mr. S. Martin; No. 6, Mr. G. Seale; No. 5, Mr. J. A. Brodie; No. 4, Mr. J. Kennedy; No. 3, Mr. E. P. Simpson; No. 2, Mr. R. Moppett; bow, Mr. N. Johnson. It will be seen from the foregoing names that this colony will send forward to do battle for the amateur aquatic honour of the colonies one of the strongest crews it has yet secured, and we feel sure they will do justice to the selection committee and the colony. They have already started training from the S. R. C. shed, Circular Quay, but on Monday week they will take up quarters at the S. R. C. branch, in order to obtain the calmer waters of the River.

PRINCE ALFRED YACHT CLUB.

The usual monthly meeting of the Prince Alfred Yacht Club was held at the clubrooms (Compagnoni Catering Company's) on Wednesday evening, Dr. Milford (the commodore) in the chair. The secretary (Mr. F. Bennett) reported to the meeting that the result of the general handicap race, which was sailed on the 14th February last, was that Mr. A. G. Milson's Waitangi took first, Dr. Milford's Sao second, and Mr. E. W. Knox's Sirocco third prize. Cheques to the amount of £45 were handed over to the various winners. The chairman informed the meeting that in the event of there being another handicap race this season, it was his intention to give a prize to the winning yacht, the prize to take the shape of something that would be useful for the yacht, and silver medals for the crew. The hon. treasurer read a statement of the finances, showing the club to be in a very satisfactory condition. A short discussion ensued as to the advisableness of having another handicap race this season, and it was eventually decided to adjourn the matter till next Wednesday evening.

SYDNEY AMATEUR CANVAS DINGY CLUB.

The following are the entries for the third-class race in connection with the Sydney Amateur Canvas Dingy Club, to take place this afternoon, for a trophy presented by President Hyam:—Estelle, 14 feet, F. M'Donnell; Grand Flaneur, 14 feet, F. M'Donnell; Altona, 14 feet, G. Foster; Ethel, 14 feet, C. Brackenreg; Ena, 14 feet, G. Snow. Flying start. Mr. H. Harding will act as umpire and starter.

AQUATICS.

Last evening the backers and American friends of Edward Hanlan performed a very graceful act by presenting Elias Laycock with a very handsome and valuable gold Waltham watch. The presentation was made at the Theatre Royal, and the winner of the Hop Bitters and the Walker's Whisky trophies, who suitably responded, was most enthusiastically cheered. The watch bears the following inscription: "Presented to Elias Laycock by the American friends of Edward Hanlan, Sydney, March 7, 1885."

Our Hay correspondent telegraphs that the Ivanhoe Racing Club are pushing ahead. They have appointed a committee to locate the course and put up the fixtures. Mr. Elliott has given a 15 guineas prize, and Mr. Brougham 10 guineas. At a meeting held at Moulamein, the sum of £60 was subscribed for a race meeting to be held on April 15th.

Our Blackall correspondent telegraphs that the racehorse Standard-bearer, by Tregeagle from Signet, had been injured in one of his legs, and subsequently had to be shot. The Blackall Racing Club have issued a programme for June 4 and 5.

The Canterbury Park races take place to-day. The committee have made arrangements with the Railway Department for a special train to leave Redfern station at 12.10 p.m.

We learn by telegram from our Hay correspondent that races will be held at Carrathool on the 17th instant, when the sum of £42 will be offered in prizes.

Our Glen Innes correspondent telegraphs that the gates, booths, and refreshment-stalls in connection with the race meeting to be held on the 17th and 18th instant, realised the sum of £260. This is the largest price that has been obtained for the privileges during the past five years. Should the weather prove favourable, it is anticipated that the meeting will be a great success.

We learn by telegram from Bungendore that at the local sports meeting on Thursday there were between 400 and 500 people present. In the Sheffield Handicap, J. Ryan came in first and Armstrong second, with "Gaslight" third. The racing was splendid, each event being well contested. The day was fine and warm.

THE HISTORY of ENGLISH TAXATION.

(From St. James' Gazette.)

Though taxation in this country has been dealt with by many economists, and here and there an historian has devoted a chapter to its consideration, yet no one, so far as we are aware, has systematically set out our methods of raising the revenue from the earliest times to the present day. This useful work Mr. Stephen Dowell has attempted and well performed. His position as assistant solicitor of inland revenue has given him exceptional opportunities, of which he has carefully and conscientiously availed himself. There are, of course, many repetitions, which perhaps could scarcely be avoided in a book that deals not merely with the dry bones of taxation proper, but endeavours to show how taxes arose out of the necessity for increasing revenue, and how they were provided from the increasing wealth of the people. How admirably Mr. Dowell has lighted up, with all manner of out-of-the-way scraps of lore, what at first sight appears a dull subject, we have already shown in a separate article. The book is one which no student of our economical history can afford to neglect.

Mr. Dowell begins his survey of taxation virtually with the Conquest and the establishment of the feudal system. The feudal system is described by Mr. Dowell as a "land league formed upon a basis of mutual protection, with a king-in-chief." Hence, passing over the subinfeudations and complicated personal relations of various kinds, a form of taxation grew up as a knight's fee for every four or five hides of land, afterwards commuted into money payment. Aids to the King were also assessed upon the fee, many payments were made for leaves and licenses of various kinds to individuals—the granting of charters to cities, the permission to hold fairs, and the like. Moreover, the Exchequer Rolls abound in payments and counter-payments to the King for the expedition or retarding of justice—a source of revenue which Magna Charta strove to cut off. Perhaps the most important Act up to the end of the reign of Henry II. was a new general form of tax, in which other forms of direct taxation eventually merged. This was a tax upon all moveables, collected for the First Crusade by means of chests erected in the churches. The contributors had to swear that they paid in the just amount. "But," adds Mr. Dowell, "in ancient as in modern times, in taxation, oaths have ever been little regarded." For the Second Crusade everyone was called upon to contribute the tenth of his rents and moveables—hence denominated the Saladin tithe—which became the basis of all similar taxation for centuries after.

"Tenths and fifteenths" were a regular form of taxation; but Edward III. derived a large revenue also from an export tax on wool. In 1348 the subsidy of wool produced £60.000 a year, which the Commons declared came out of the land, though the merchants voted it, and apparently paid it. Frequent attempts were made by the King to increase the grant by royal prerogative. By degrees, however, the Commons obtained control; though after the year 1376 the Kings of England had practically a permanent revenue by successive parliamentary grants of tunnage on wine and poundage on goods. As the Saladin tithe laid the foundation of direct taxation, so tunnage and poundage were the forerunners of that indirect taxation which a few centuries later has played so important a part in our revenue system. Life grants of the subsidies were made to the Tudor monarchs; but the extravagance of Henry VIII. led to very heavy taxation: an attempt being made to raise £1,200,000, or 6s. in the £, from land and goods within a short period. It was his need for money which, as much as anything, brought about the dissolution of the monasteries; though no great permanent benefit resulted to the revenue from this, as it ought to have done. The first-fruits and tenths which were granted to Henry were re-granted to Elizabeth, to whom, however, the Commons, who now began to exercise more and more effective control, were very niggard. By this time England had become a rich country; but the people shirked paying with great dexterity: under-assessment was the rule. The last subsidies to Queen Elizabeth amounted to £640,000, on Mr. Dowell's calculation.

"In 1619 we have for the first time something like a detailed account of the produce of the revenue at the ports. The total is £284,000." The Customs subsidies were indeed now of increasing importance; and in Charles I.'s reign without this revenue the Government of the country could not have been carried on. The form of direct taxes also was now about to change; and in 1623 the old fifteenths and tenths were granted for the last time. Hitherto we have merely recounted the gradual development of the old forms of taxation, which changed with the increasing wealth of the nation and the demand for further expenditure. But, as Mr. Dowell truly says, "In the taxes imposed by the Parliamentary ordinances we find the germs of our subsequent fiscal system." Direct taxation was remodelled, and the Excise, introduced by Pym in imitation of the system in Holland, was practically quite a novelty. The establishment of Excise, especially on articles of food and daily necessity, was resisted most vigorously. "It is not an exaggeration to say that the Excise was established at the point of the sword."

At the date of the revolution of 1688 the hearth money, then the only direct tax, produced £200,000 a year; the Customs produced less than a million, and the Excise and inland duties about £620,000, the total revenue being between £1,800,000 and £1,900,000; without the hearth-money, £1,600,000 to £1,700,000. The revenue of the Crown was fixed at £1,200,000 after William III.'s accession; the Civil list being fixed for 1689 at £600,000, later raised to £700,000. Very heavy taxation was imposed during the war with France, including the taxation of coal and malt; the excise on salt was renewed, and the tax on land was settled. A list of the principal taxes at the end of the reign of William III. is given by Mr. Dowell (Vol. II., p. 65), the total revenue being then about £4,250,000. In the reign of William III., indeed, the foundation of our whole modern financial system was carried above the surface. Thenceforward until the present time the development has been on these same lines; and 55 years later (1755), in spite of Walpole's pacific policy, the war of the Right of Search, of the Spanish Succession, brought the debt to the amount of about 72 millions and a-half, involving the charge of £2,600,000, or about one-tenth of its present amount;—the total revenue was then £6,750,000, of which Customs and Excise together produced £5,440,000. To this debt the seven years' war added 60 millions sterling. Beer bore the brunt of the first Pitt's victories, the price in 1761 being raised by taxation 1d. a pot. Sugar also bore its share. During the great war with France it is almost sufficient to say that everything and everybody was taxed until they could be taxed no more. The second Pitt, who came into office with excellent principles of taxation, had to throw them all overboard in order to carry out his policy. The taxation of Great Britain before the war was £17,000,000; in 1815 it was £68,250,000, or, including Ireland, £74,500,000—a truly portentous total. The direct taxes alone amounted to £25,438,259, and the taxes on drinks to £22,065,168; the stamp duties brought in £2,743,000! How the country stood it—the then population of England, Wales, and Scotland being only 13,000,000—is still hard to understand. The National Debt alone amounted to £860,000,000, with an annual charge of £32,000,000. The following year, 1816, saw a total repeal of the income tax, which was made up for in part by other taxes; though in 1822 the salt tax was also given up. Not, however, till 1824 did the reduction of taxation commence systematically. In that year the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his Budget speech, said, "Why not emancipate the commerce of Great Britain?" Thenceforward this has been the great aim of the whole school of commercial statesmen—to lessen taxation so as to foster external trade; and in 1846 came the Repeal of the Corn Laws. From that date until now the reduction of taxation upon imports and the development of free trade have been kept steadily in view by both parties. In these days, however, it seems likely that the whole subject of taxation will be re-opened.

The third and fourth volumes contain a careful abstract of the growth of direct and indirect taxes separately, with the dates of their imposition and repeal, and other information, in a compendious form. Perhaps the most interesting point at this moment is the separate sketch of the history of taxes on property. The land tax of the Commonwealth followed the form of the old subsidies; and the tax was not fixed at 4s. in the pound, as some suppose, though there was no doubt an opinion that this was a feasible rate under the Stuarts; and in 1693 the 4s. tax was levied, though it gave a constantly decreasing return. The property tax of William III. became "the annual land tax." Its variations are shown clearly in Vol. III., p. 98. Thus from 1740 to 1749 it was 4s. in the pound, for the next three years 3s., and from 1753 to 1755 it was 2s.; each 1s. in the pound producing about £500,000. No higher tax than 4s. in the pound seems ever to have been levied, and this was only nominal. Another interesting and most timely review is that of the income tax. This was first imposed in its present form in the last year of the last century. In 1806 the limit of exemption was lowered from £60 to £50, and confined to incomes derived from labour for daily or weekly wages. In 1843 the actual yield of 7d. in the pound, with exemption under £150, was £5,607,798—an amount increased but £300,000 at the same rate 10 years later. In 1883 6½d. in the pound, with considerable abatements up to £400 a-year, produced £12,166,477. Here we must leave a book which we again commend to our readers.

THE "SWIFT BOWLING OF THE DEVIL."—The following description of a Salvation meeting in London is given by one of the English journals:—General Booth was in the chair and his son stood behind him. An uproar of the applause that must have been heard in the stalls of the Vaudeville greeted the rising of this tall, thin, sallow, full-bearded and Cromwellian-haired enthusiast, who with shrill clarionet voice announced that this was a farewell meeting to 30 officers, chiefly women, who were to be despatched as recruiting sergeants of the Salvation Army to America, New Zealand, and India. "I have under organisation an army corps in every British village which will barrack in vehicular caravans, and be guarded at night by sentries." One of the recent converts to the army, a celebrated cricketer, stood near the General. Referring to him, the General said: "He goes to India to guard the Salvation wickets against the swift bowling of the devil." This was received with howls of applause. The audience, keeping time with well-known weird music, or with the songs, seemed animated with a fanatic zeal, truly Oriental in looks and gestures.

COMMERCIAL.

WOOL, PRODUCE, AND STOCK SALES.

Wool.—For the wool sales of the week upwards of 1700 bales were catalogued, the total quantity sold being 1330 bales. Quotations: Greasy, fair to good, 8d. to 9d.; low and faulty, 6d. to 10d.; washed fleece, inferior, 10½d. to 12d.; medium, 12d. to 15d.; scoured fleece, 17½d. to 19½d.; scoured skin wool, 14d. to 17½d.; greasy lambs, from 3½d. for very faulty and up to 7½d. for free and fairly grown.

Sheepskins.—For these the demand was brisk, and full-woolled brought 6d. to 6½d.; medium, 3d. to 5d.; short growth, 1d. to 3d.

Tallow.—At yesterday's sales 593 packages were offered, and 262 sold. The market was rather easier for shipping lots owing to the unfavourable state of the London market, and shippers are only purchasing with caution. Trade lots sold at about late rates. Quotations:—Beef, £25 to £27 10s. per ton; mutton, none offering at the late sales—quoted up to £28 per ton; mixed and station, £24 to £26 per ton.

Hides.—4209 were offered and 3840 sold at yesterday's sales. The supply was below average, but the market ruled firm, and there was a good demand for all descriptions, especially good conditioned heavies, which were in limited supply. Quotations: Extra heavies, 4½d. to 5d. per lb.; a few exceptional lots realised 5½d. to 5¾d.; heavy, 4½d. to 4¾d.; medium, 3¾d. to 4d.; light, 3½d. to 3¾d.; dry station, 3d. to 5d. per lb. Horsehides are in brisk request at from 6s. to 8s. for large and 2s. 6d. to 5s 6d. for small to medium. Kangaroo skins were in good demand, and prices advanced. Large sizes realised from 30s. to 43s. per dozen, medium 15s. to 29s., and small 6s. to 14s. per dozen.

Hair.—At the late sales there was only a small quantity of hair offered, and the market was firm. Previous rates were well maintained. They are as follows:—Horsetail, 15d. to 15d. per lb. Cow, washed, 10d. to 13½d.; dirty, 5d. to 8d.; cow stumps, 5½d. to 8d. per lb. Mixed, 10d. to 13d. per lb.

Horns and Bones.—The usual average quantities of both descriptions were offered at the late sales. The demand was active, and the market continues firm. Quotations:—Horns, large, 24s. to 34s. per 100; medium, 10s. to 24s.; tips, 13s. to 9s. per 100. Bones, shank, £5 to £12 per ton; common, up to £3 per ton. Hoofs, £2 to £4 per ton.

Leather.—At Wednesday's sales there was a fair attendance of buyers. There was no improvement in the condition of the market, which remains dull. Some of the best lines of dressed good maintained the late rates, but inferior and heavy dressed leathers were not in request. Sole was firmer in consequence of shippers purchasing with a little more freedom; but saddlers' goods are still slow of sale. Quotations: Sole, heavy, 11d. to 12d. per lb.; medium, 9½d. to 10d.; light, 7d. to 9d.; kip, best, 14½d. to 16½d.; medium, 12d. to 13d.; cow tweed, 14d. to 1d.; yearling tweed, 19d. to 24d.; calf tweed, 21d. to 27d.; waxed calf, 24d. to 30d.; harness, 9½d. to 12d.; bag, 8s. to 10s. per side; bridle, 8s. to 11s. 6d.; basils, 8s. to 10s per dozen.

PRODUCE MARKET.—FRIDAY.

The sales at Darling Harbour this morning were well attended by the trade. Good supplies of wood and forage were forward. The quality of forage, especially hay, was better than it has been for some time past. Competition was slack, excepting for extra prime descriptions of hay, for which it was fairly active. The market remains dull. Straw was a shade firmer. The wood market shows no improvement on the previous sales, but continues dull. On the wharfs there was a fair supply of produce from the Northern and Southern rivers and Victoria. Business was fairly active, operations being confined to hay, potatoes, and dairy produce. The market was not marked by any special feature of interest. The following prices were realised at Darling Harbour sales:—

Wood.—Large market. No improvement. Competition slack at per ton:—Billetwood, 10s. to 12s. 6d.; bundle, 11s. to 14s. 6d.; foot, 11s. to 15s.; bakers' quoted at 11s. to 12s. 6d.

Hay.—Good supplies. Demand continues good for prime descriptions of hay. Market unaltered and dull. Oaten, in bundles, 3s. 3d. to 4s. 3d. per cwt.; extra prime lots, 4s. 7d. to 5s. 2d.; bales, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 1d.; lucerne, in truss, 4s. 1d.; wheaten, in bundles, 2s. 7d. to 2s. 8d.; oaten and wheaten, in bundles, 4s. to 4s. 4d.; bales, 3s. 3d.; oaten hay and straw, in bundles, 2s. 7d.

Straw.—Fair consignments forward. Demand improved. Market a shade firmer. Clean, in bundles, 2s. to 2s. 5d. per cwt.

Chaff.—Good supplies. Moderate sales. Oaten, in bags, 3s. 3d. to 5s. per cwt.

On the wharfs the following are the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—Stocks augmented by supplies from the Hastings, Macleay, Manning, and Clarence Rivers to hand last night and this morning. Stocks moving off steadily at 4s. to 4s. 3d. per bushel for prime samples; other qualities at 3s. 6d.

Oats.—A Victorian addition of 1003 bags was received last night. Market well stocked and extremely quiet. Feed, 2s. 6d. to 2s. 8d. per bushel. Seed, no inquiry.

Barley.—241 bags from New Zealand yesterday. Cape seed in steady request up to 3s. 3d. per bushel.

Bran.—Market well supplied by the late heavy arrivals. Sales at 10d. to 10½d. per bushel.

Pollard.—In steady request up to 1s. 1d. per bushel.

Hay.—Comparatively small additions to supply this morning from the Hunter River, but still the stocks on the wharfs are equal to the requirements. Trade was fairly active. Demand slightly improved, owing to a great extent to the limited supply of lucerne offered at Darling Harbour sales. Prime lucerne, £4 to £4 5s. per ton; other qualities, from £3 to £3 15s.

Chaff.—Supplies received from Victoria last night. Stocks accumulating. Market quiet. Victorian £4 to £4 10s. per ton.

Onions.—Stocks augmented by 537 bags from Victoria last night, and with the remaining consignments the market is amply supplied. Holders of Victorian asking £3 per ton.

Potatoes.—2785 bags to hand from Melbourne last night, and further additions are expected. Stocks moving off steadily at £2 15s. per ton for Warrnambool, which were the only descriptions offering.

Butter.—Stocks replenished from the Southern ports this morning. No change, standard price of Illawarra being 1s. per lb. Intercolonial packed quoted to 10d.

Cheese.—Another consignment from the Southern ports yesterday of 500. Ample stocks. Colonial in moderate request, at 5d. to 7d. per lb.; little or no inquiry for other descriptions.

Bacon.—Hand-cured Southern selling at 10d. to 11d. per lb.; machine-cured up to 8½d.; Northern rivers, 6d. to 8d.; hams, 10d. to 1s.

Lard.—Finely rendered in bladders at 7½d. per lb.; in keg, 4d. to 6d.

Honey.—Inquiry at 5½d. per lb. for good and clear; other sorts from 3½d.

Beeswax.—Salable at 10d. to 1s. per lb., according to quality.

Eggs.—Additions to stocks this morning, principally from Northern rivers. Brisk sales up to 1s. 9d. per dozen.

Poultry.—All varieties in steady request, at the following rates per pair:—Fowls, 3s. to 4s.; ducks, 3s. 6d. to 4s.; geese, 7s. to 9s.; cock-turkeys, 11s. to 18s.; hen turkeys, 7s. to 10s.

Fruit.—At George-street Market there was a good supply of fruit, comprising colonial and Tasmanian descriptions. Business was fairly brisk. The quotations are as follows:—Colonial apples (eating and baking), 5s. to 7s. per case; Tasmanian, 7s. to 12s. Lemons, 20s. to 25s. Pears, 4s. to 12s. Plums, 5s. to 8s. per quarter-cases. Fiji bananas, 9d. per dozen; Clarence River bananas, 8d. to 9d. per dozen. Brisbane pineapples, 4s. to 5s. per dozen, or 12s. per case; Fiji pineapples, none offering. Peaches, 6s. to 12s. per case. Quinces, 4s. to 8s. per case. Passion fruit, 6d. per dozen. Grapes, 4d. to 6d. per lb. Water melons, 4s. to 8s. per dozen. Cocoanuts, 2s. per dozen, or 10s. per bag.

Meat.—The Riverstone Meat Company report the sales of 55 bodies of beef at 3d. to 3½d. per lb; 500 bodies of mutton at 2d. to 2½d. per lb. The following are the retail prices of beef and mutton:—Joints of beef, 5d. to 6d. per lb.; ribs, 4d. per lb.; joints of mutton, 3d. to 4d. per lb.; veal, 6d. per lb.; pork, 8d. per lb.; corn beef, 5d. per lb.

NOTES EXPLANATORY OF MAP.

In the list of stations the column headed W.T. gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b standing for blue sky; c, detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; m, misty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; t, thunder; u, threatening. The next column, M'x gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours. M'n the corresponding minimum temperature; r'in the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained in the centre of it. At each coast station the wind symbol is placed like a vane pointing to the direction from which the wind is coming. A clear circle with it means fine weather; a circle with bar, cloudy weather; and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour; next, a symbol showing the state of the sea; and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt, Perth; Ay, Albany; Ea, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Ro, Robe; P, Portland; M, Melbourne; W P, Wilson's Promontory; Go, Gabo; E, Eden; Ma, Moruya; G G, Jervis Bay; Wg, Wollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; P M, Port Macquarie; C, Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R, Rockhampton; Ct, Cooktown. Inland the state of barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions, beginning in Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them and southerly following.

PAWNING A PAIR OF TROUSERS FOR MEDICINE.

James Francis Thomas lives in Pontnewynydd near Pontypool, Monmouthshire. He is now twenty-three years of age, living with his mother, a widow. Some eleven years ago, then a mere boy, he went to work in the coal pit as a miner, in order to assist his mother in rearing her family of little children. Soon, however, the little fellow broke down in health; but the necessities of the family seemed to require it, and he continued to toil in the mines, suffering all the time from the effects of indigestion, an agonising symptom being asthma, in such a troublesome form that the boy was unable to lie in bed. Working through the day, and resting as best he could in an armchair during the night, naturally undermined his constitution. Year by year his health grew worse and worse, until at last rheumatism came with all its dreadful agony. One joint after another became swollen and inflamed, so that he was obliged to stop work. In this sad plight the now young man was confined to the house for two long years, suffering all that mortal could endure. One physician after another was called upon to treat his complaint, but with no benefit, for the poor fellow continued to grow worse and worse. Hoping to find some means of relief, a consultation of doctors was held, when it was decided that an organic disease of the heart existed in an incurable form, and that medical aid could not afford relief. He was given up to die. These years of expensive medical treatment had exhausted the little savings of the mother, and they had no money to buy even the necessaries of life. But a fond mother never gives up in despair. There was one spark of hope left. Someone had told her of a remedy that had cured so many cases—even when as hopeless as this one seemed to be—and the mother's love went out for her dear boy. But how to get the medicine was the question. Their money was entirely gone. The boy had a new pair of trousers that he had been too ill to wear, and the mother reasoned within herself, "If the boy is to die he will not need them, so I may as well pledge them for medicine with an effort to save his life." Strange as it may appear, the bottles of medicine procured at the chemist's shop in Pontypool with the money obtained from the pawnbroker effected a cure in this hopeless case, which had been pronounced as incurable. But it is only just to say that, if the chemist had known of the wants of the family, the medicine could have been obtained without a visit to the pawnbroker. It is now nearly two years since this took place, and young James Francis Thomas has been working in the coal-pit underground ever since, earning extra pay for overwork, which he is able to perform. Of course he never had organic disease of the heart, as was supposed. The palpitation, rheumatism, and asthma were mere symptoms of the real disease, which was dyspepsia, or indigestion, for which the remedy was specially adapted. Those who wish to communicate with this young man can write to him at the above address, and he will vouch for the curative properties of Seigel's syrup, the article that effected this almost miraculous cure. The following letter is from a chemist, who thought the facts should be made known:—"James Francis Thomas, of Pontnewynydd, near Pontypool, age 23, collier, was ill for nine years, unable to do any work for three years, never lay down in bed for nine years, had to sleep in a stooping posture, was treated by nearly all the doctors for miles around, who generally stated his complaint to be rheumatism and heart disease of a chronic nature, and beyond all power to cure. When hope had nearly died out, he was persuaded to try Seigel's Syrup; and, to the delight of his relatives and astonishment of his neighbours, after taking half a bottle he could lie down in bed. After taking one bottle he went to work. Has now taken two bottles, and on with the third, and is quite well and strong. His mother is in raptures, and can talk of nothing else but his marvellous cure, and wishes me to make it known."

Seigel's Syrup is sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors, and by the proprietors, A. J. WHITE (Limited), London, England, or the Wholesale Agents, Elliott Bros., Sydney.

15th August, 1883.

Dear Sir,—I write to tell you that Mr. Henry Hillier, of Yatesbury, Wilts, informs me that he suffered from a severe form of indigestion for upwards of four years, and took no end of doctor's medicine without the slightest benefit, and declares Mother Seigel's Syrup which he got from me has saved his life.

Yours truly,
(Signed) N. WEBB,
Chemist, Calne.

Mr. White.

Seigel's Operating Pills are the best family physic that has ever been discovered. They cleanse the bowels from all irritating substances, and leave them in a healthy condition. They cure costiveness.

St. Mary-street, Peterborough,
November 29, 1881.

Sir,—It gives me great pleasure to inform you of the benefit I have received from Seigel's Syrup. I have been troubled for years with dyspepsia; but after a few doses of the Syrup I found relief, and after taking two bottles of it I feel quite cured.

I am, Sir, yours truly,
WILLIAM BRENT.
Mr. A. J. White. September 8, 1883.

Dear Sir,—I find the sale of Seigel's Syrup steadily increasing. All who have tried it speak very highly of its medicinal virtues; one customer describes it as a "Godsend to dyspeptic people." I always recommend it with confidence.

Faithfully yours,
(Signed) VINCENT A. WILLS,
Chemist-dentist.
Hensingham, Whitehaven, Oct. 16, 1882.

Mr. A. J. White.—Dear Sir,—I was for some time afflicted with piles, and was advised to give Mother Seigel's Syrup a trial, which I did. I am now happy to state that it has restored me to complete health.—I remain, yours respectfully, (Signed) JOHN H. LIGHTFOOT.

Spanish Town, Jamaica, West Indies, Oct. 24, 1882.

Dear Sir,—I write to inform you that I have derived great benefit from Seigel's Syrup. For some years I have suffered from liver complaint, with its many and varied concomitant evils, so that my life was a perpetual misery. Twelve months ago I was induced to try Seigel's Syrup, and although rather sceptical, having tried so many reputed infallible remedies, I determined to give it at least a fair trial. In two or three days I felt considerably better, and now at the end of 12 months (having continued taking it) I am glad to say that I am a different being altogether. It is said of certain pens that they "come as a boon and a blessing to men," and I have no reason to doubt the truthfulness of the statement. I can truly say, however, that Seigel's Syrup has come as a "boon and a blessing" to me. I have recommended it to several fellow-sufferers from this distressing complaint, and their testimony is quite in accordance with my own. Gratitude for the benefit I have derived from this excellent preparation prompts me to furnish you with this unsolicited testimonial.

I am, dear Sir,
Yours ever gratefully,
(Signed) CAREY B. BERRY,
Baptist Missionary.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Are admitted by thousands to be worth above a Guinea a Box for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness and Swelling after Meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in 20 minutes. This no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these pills, and they will be acknowledged to be WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal Beecham's Pills for removing any obstruction or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver, they act like "magic," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs of the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with a Rosebud of Health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are "facts" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society; and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous and Debilitated is, Beecham's Pills have the largest sale of any patent medicine in the world.

Full directions are given with each box. Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers throughout the colonies.

IMPERIAL HOTEL, CLIFTON.

A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

For SALE by TENDER, the LEASE for five years and GOODWILL of the above first-class HOTEL, doing a large and increasing trade.

A SURE FORTUNE TO AN ENTERPRISING MAN.

The proprietor, being about to relinquish the public business, invites tenders for the lease for five years of the above favourably-situated and commodious Hotel, together with the goodwill and furniture. The premises occupy the best position in the thriving and prosperous township of Clifton, and as the main operations of the Illawarra Railway—the Coal Cliff tunnel—have only commenced, and will occupy a considerable time to complete, together with the fact that several new coal mines are now opening in that locality, there is every reason to believe that the future of the township will be fully and firmly established; and there can be no doubt that this investment is the soundest and best yet offered to the public in this line of business in the far-famed district of Illawarra—being a positive fortune to the successful tenderer before the expiration of the lease.

The stock can be taken at a valuation.

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to SATURDAY, the 28th March, and any further information and full particulars may be had on application.

REMOVING. REMOVING. REMOVING.

CHARLES LANE, of 368, GEORGE-STREET, has much pleasure in informing his friends that he has succeeded in securing in those two shops now approaching completion immediately adjoining his present premises, which he hopes will be ready by 31st March next.

LARGE and CONVENIENT PREMISES

Having disposed of the remainder of the lease of his present premises, on removing to the new shops about the end of the present month, in order to lessen somewhat the labour of removing the entire stock, he has determined to offer the whole of it at a very considerable reduction on the ordinary low prices. There is no bad stock, but everything at all slow or deteriorated will be sold at any price, and the bulk of the DRAPERY, FANCY HOSIERY, GLOVES, and LACE DEPARTMENT will be cleared at a great concession. All we have left of our SUMMER MILLINERY will be given away at less than half-price. The same with our COSTUMES and WRAPPERS.
Prints and Sateens very low.

We have also advance shipments of samples of new WINTER GOODS, which will be sold at about invoice price until removal, in order to lighten the stock as much as possible.

Parcels sent same day free of charge.

on the south, and to a NEW ROAD 66 feet wide, leading from DARLING POINT-ROAD to the New South Head road, between the premises forming MONA-TERRACE.

This large block of FREEHOLD BUILDING LAND, situated in the heart of the favourite and fashionable EASTERN SUBURB
has been carefully laid out by the well-known surveyors, Messrs. Atchison and Schleicher, of Pitt-street, Sydney, into allotments, of which the following are some particulars of the respective frontages and depths.

On and fronting the DARLING POINT-ROAD, that portion of the estate has been subdivided into 26 CHOICE ALLOTMENTS,
18 of which have 23 feet frontage by a depth of about 145 feet, and 8 have frontages of from 20 to 25 feet each, by depths varying from 145 to 70 feet.
All these allotments extend back to a 20-foot lane, which runs from MONA-AVENUE to the New South Head-road.

MONA-AVENUE, 66 feet in width, opens out of the Darling Point-road, and extends westerly past and within a few feet of the stables of Mona House, thence turning at nearly a right angle, and extending by an easy descent to the New South Head-road, between the pair of semi-detached villa residences known as nearly opposite the Glenmore-road.
MONA-TERRACE,
This portion of the estate has been apportioned into 11 ALLOTMENTS,
each having frontages ranging from 18 to 25 feet, by long depths varying from 135 to 165 feet, all extending back to the 20-feet lane abovementioned.

The NEW SOUTH HEAD-ROAD frontage, running from the eastern fence of Mona-terrace, has been divided into 18 ALLOTMENTS,
of 18 feet each, with various depths from 150 to 70 feet, all extending back to the 20-feet lane before referred to.

The balance of the paddock portion of the property, from the junction of the Darling Point and New South Head roads, has been laid out into each having double frontages.
8 ALLOTMENTS,

The triangular piece of land at the junction of the two roads, with ample depth, has been set apart as 1 ALLOTMENT.

A plan is now on view at our Rooms, copies of which, in lithograph, are obtainable on application.

TERMS LIBERAL, viz.:—
10 per cent. cash deposit,
15 per cent. cash instalment, in 3 months without interest, and the balance, 75 per cent. of the purchase-money, may remain for 3 or 5 years, secured in the usual way, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

TOWNSHIP of SILVERTON,
NEW SOUTH WALES, possessing Valuable Frontages to Adelaide, Paramoota, Abbott, Thackaringa, and Layard streets, Also,
the UMBERUMBERKA HOTEL, standing on an area of nearly Two Acres, having a commanding position, second to none, and at present doing an enormous trade.

Also,
BLOCK No. 18, Section 5, having a frontage to Stokie-street, upon which is a WELL, sunk and slabbed throughout, and yielding a permanent supply of water, which is invaluable for smelting works or domestic purposes.

The Proprietors, in submitting these valuable properties to the public, feel confident that no better investment has ever been offered in this market.
The PERMANENCY of the SILVER MINES is established beyond doubt.
This TOWNSHIP bids fair to rival the celebrated NEVADA, where property advanced fabulously.
TRAFFIC between THACKARINGA and LAKES CAMP runs direct through these blocks.
The RAILWAY TERMINUS will be adjacent thereto, if not on some of them.
Land has already been sold at £12 a foot, and is advancing.
SILVERTON
THE ELDORADO OF THE SOUTH.
This opportunity should not be lost in securing one or more of these Blocks, as Land is daily rising in value, and substantial buildings are being erected.

GREIG and MURRAY will sell by auction, at their Rooms, 60, Collins-street, Melbourne, on THURSDAY, 12th March, at half-past 11 o'clock,
The above valuable freehold properties, which are

NOT TO BE SURPASSED for DEPTH of WATER, SHELTERED BERTHING for VESSELS, or
PROXIMITY to the CENTRE of the CITY,

MILLS and PILE have been instructed to sell by auction, at the Sydney Auction Mart, on THURSDAY, the 19th day of MARCH, at half-past 11 o'clock.
THAT VERY VALUABLE PYRMONT LEASEHOLD having 70 years to run, at a ground rent of £130 per annum, portion of which is refunded by the part sublet to the Sydney Corporation Baths.

The ESTABLISHMENT of the SUGAR WORKS and GOODLET and SMITH'S new Steam Joinery Works and Sawmills, next to this property, is a proof of its valuable position.

BESIDES the FRONTAGE to Point-street, it has a SPECIAL ADVANTAGE by reason of Herbert-street, which forms the eastern boundary of Goodlet and Smith's factory terminating at this property, through which it could be continued, at the option of the owner, and there is ample depth to give, by this means, THREE FRONTAGES.

On the POINT-STREET frontage are TWO COTTAGES in good order.

, The AUCTIONEER'S DESIRE to CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION to this SALE, as for TIMBER MERCHANTS and ENGINEERS, or any large business dealing in seaborne goods it is a chance not often met with, to have a property like this in the market.

As a SAFE INVESTMENT, having a large prospective value, it is worthy the ATTENTION of TRUSTEES.

TITLE, FREEHOLD.

MILLS and PILE have received instructions from the BANK of NEW ZEALAND to sell by auction, at the Sydney Auction Mart, 130, Pitt-street, Sydney, on THURSDAY, 26th March, at 11.30 o'clock,
Those handsome Stone-built BUSINESS PREMISES, known as the BANK of NEW ZEALAND (Head Office), and at present in the occupation of the Bank; formerly the offices of the AUSTRALIAN MUTUAL PROVIDENT SOCIETY, situate in PITT-STREET, and the OFFICES AT THE REAR having extensive frontage to SPRING-STREET, with a lane at the side.

THE BANKING PREMISES are erected of stone, with ornamental front, on Block of Land, having 59 feet 8 inches FRONTAGE TO PITT-STREET, between the
LONDON AND LIVERPOOL AND GLOBE INSURANCE COMPANY'S PREMISES, and
by which it is separated from THE SYDNEY EXCHANGE.

The land extends 73 and 70 feet in depths, and on the south-eastern boundary has 25ft. 3in. FRONTAGE to SPRING-STREET,
and
44ft. to LITTLE SPRING-STREET.

The Bank premises contain, on the GROUND FLOOR, as under:—
LARGE and LOFTY BANKING-ROOM, with ornamental ceilings, occupying nearly the whole frontage Strong-room, 13ft. x 12ft. 6in.
Manager's or Board Room, 30ft. 6in. x 26ft. 6in.
Office, 24ft. 6in. x 11ft.
Ditto, 13ft. x 11ft.
Ditto, 13ft. x 8ft.
Ditto, 10ft. x 9ft.
Lavatories and Accessories
Cloak and Stationery Room.

ON THE SECOND FLOOR, entered by a side entrance from PITT-STREET, are the commodious OFFICES of Messrs. WANT, JOHNSON, and CO.,
Solicitors, of the following dimensions:—

No. 1	19 x 13	No. 2	13·6 x 9·6
No. 3	15·6 x 9·6	No. 4	15·6 x 9·6
No. 5	13 x 10	No. 6	13 x 11
No. 7	14 x 13·6	No. 8	13 x 11

On the second floor (tenanted by the same as on the first floor), as under:—

No. 1	19 x 13.6	No. 2	13.6 x 9.6
No. 3	15.6 x 9	No. 4	15.6 x 9
No. 5	13.6 x 10.6	No. 6	15.6 x 11.0
No. 7	14 x 13.6	No. 8	13.8 x 11.0

Together with waiting-room, lobby, and other conveniences.

The above floors are at present returning a rental of £500 per annum.

The SPRING-STREET OFFICES, 2-story and basement, are erected of stone, and comprise 2 large rooms and 2 small rooms, with cedar fittings, lavatory, and w.c. They are at present vacant, but have been let at £300 PER ANNUM in fact; there are inquiries every day to take the premises on lease, but the vendors, in consequence of placing the property in the market for sale, decided NOT TO LET, as the purchasers might wish to utilise the whole of the premises.

THE AUCTIONEERS wish to draw the attention of managers of insurance companies, building societies, warehousemen, merchants, investors, capitalists, and others to the sale of the above
BLOCK OF CITY PROPERTY, situated in PITT-STREET, extending back to SPRING-STREET,
and being in close proximity to the CIRCULAR QUAY, the WOOL STORES, the EXCHANGE, the MUTUAL PROVIDENT SOCIETY'S OFFICES, the NEW ZEALAND INSURANCE COMPANY, Messrs. MASON BROS., D. COHEN and CO., and others. Almost opposite is BOND-STREET, which is now one of the most important streets in the city, and gives an exit from PITT to GEORGE STREET.

PRELIMINARY NOTICE.
Important sale of the best Land on the Williams River, comprising about FIFTEEN HUNDRED ACRES, and well known as the LANGLANDS ESTATE,
situate between Raymond Terrace and Clarence Town.

BY ORDER OF THE TRUSTEES, MESSRS. C. AND W. H. SOUL.

W. PRITCHARD has received instructions from the Trustees in the Estate of the late R. Lang (Messrs. C. and W. H. Soul) to submit to public competition, on an early date,
AS A SUBDIVISION,
The well-known Langlands Estate, containing about 1500 acres, and having frontages of about 1½ miles to the navigable waters of the Williams River, and of about 2¼ miles to the main Government road to Clarence Town, which intersects it, about to be surveyed and subdivided into farms.
Permanent creeks of excellent water run through the estate.

The buyer of the first or any lot will have the option of taking as many consecutive lots as he may think proper.

The auctioneer desires to remind intending purchasers that the whole of the land on both sides of the Williams River is specially noted for its extraordinary fertility and productiveness for all kinds of cereals and lucerne, and its suitability for fattening cattle or raising any kind of produce.

Small steamers trade regularly every day up and down the river from Newcastle, in addition to the company's large steamer from the metropolis for the convenience of settlers, thus giving them the daily command of the Newcastle as well as the Sydney market for their produce.

Further particulars will appear in a future advertisement.

SHEPHERD and CROSSMAN, Pitt-street,
Solicitors to the Estate.

In the Estate of the late Edward Pritchard, Esq.
By order of the Executors,
GEORGE RENWICK and B. MORRIS, Esqs.

TERMS AT SALE.

VIRGIN AGRICULTURAL LAND.
THE GRANDEST SUBDIVISION EVER HELD IN THE WEST.
7000 ACRES
NEW SOUTH WALES FROZEN MEAT COMPANY'S ESTATE, fronting the Great Western Railway.
The MANITOBA and CHICAGO
OF AUSTRALIA.
SUBDIVISION FROM 20 ACRES UPWARDS.
Only two miles from Rising Town of Orange.
Virgin Land of Unsurpassed Richness, with creeks of never-failing spring water running throughout Estate.

BURKE, COULSON, and NAYLOR have been instructed by the liquidators of the New South Wales Frozen Meat Company to sell by auction, at THEIR ROOMS, Lord's Place,
on SATURDAY, the 14th MARCH, at 12 a.m.,
The whole of the above magnificent estate, subdivided into farms of 20 acres and upwards.

In placing this magnificent property before the public, the auctioneers cannot refrain in justice to its undoubted value from calling special attention to sale. The land to be sold is acknowledged by one and all to be unsurpassed in this wonderful agricultural district. The plough can be set to work with comparatively speaking but little expense.

Each subdivision will have a never-failing supply of water upon same, and will in every case be either contiguous to railway line or within half a mile of it. Any subdivision not facing railway has a frontage to the main road. The close proximity to the greatest grain markets in New South Wales, namely, Sydney and Orange, having direct communication by rail from the former, and being only two and a-half miles by rail from the latter, enhances the value of this grand subdivision.

The producing powers of the land in the Orange district are proverbial, and as far as cereals are concerned, unsurpassed in Australia, and the district can honestly be classed as the Chicago and Manitoba of Australia.

Adjoining the estate an industry has been started, which is proving an undoubted financial success, namely, the planting of extensive apple orchards, and orchards comprising fruit trees of every description. The trees are flourishing beyond all anticipation, and yield enormously. Every foot of this subdivision is peculiarly adapted to fruit-growing.

Surveyors are now busily engaged in subdividing, and plans and fullest particulars will be given at an early date.

TERMS LIBERAL. TITLE PERFECT.

The above-described block of land, subdivided into allotments as per plan, being lots 14 to 18, 20 to 35, 46 to 63, and 66 to 68, of the Gladstone Estate.

To a small speculator this is a capital chance to purchase land for resale in a growing locality. Trams are surveyed for to RYDE, and the NEWCASTLE RAILWAY crosses the river close to the GLADSTONE ESTATE, which is also close to the village and pretty church at RYDE.

WEDNESDAY, 11th MARCH.

In the Estate of the late Mr. A. ELLIOTT.

Darlinghurst and Waverley.

1. Nos. 50 and 52, SURRY-STREET, DARLINGHURST (opposite Craigend Estate), two brick-built houses, each 5 rooms, balcony and front, and let at 10s each per week; also, two W.B. Cottages at rear, each 3 rooms, let at 8s each per week. Total rentals, £1 16s weekly.

The land has 30 feet frontage to Surry-street, by 78 feet deep.
A capital position, close to town, and with fine views from balcony.

2. 11 splendid Building Allotments, Sea View Hill, Waverley, close by Charing Cross terminus, as follows:—
Lots 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, as per plan, each about 40 feet, fronting Cooper and Greville streets, and lot 11, 60 feet to High-street, and 125 feet to Sea View-street, splendid corner.

Houses are springing up on the Sea View Hill Estate, and it will be worth the while of any investor or speculator to buy these lands and let them remain by for a year or so.

HARDIE and GORMAN will sell (under instructions from the Executors), at their Rooms, 133, Pitt-street, at 11.30 o'clock,
WEDNESDAY, 11th March,
The above properties in the late Mr. Elliott's Estate at Darlinghurst and Waverley.

TITLE, FREEHOLD.

HARDIE and GORMAN have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, 133, Pitt-street, at 11.30 o'clock, on WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8,
The above-described block of land, situate at the head of Middle Harbour, commanding a frontage to the waters of Middle Harbour, and opposite Sugarloaf Point.
Plan on view at the Rooms.

By order of the Administratrix in the Estate of WILLIAM JONES, Esq., late of Maryvale, near Bowral.

LOT 1.

To GENTLEMEN desirous of securing an INEXPENSIVE COUNTRY RESIDENCE, together with healthy, invigorating, and profitable agricultural pursuits.

BOWRAL, only three miles from the BOWRAL RAILWAY STATION, along a MACADAMISED ROAD.

A MOST COMPACT RESIDENTIAL ESTATE, known as MARY VALE, comprising a FIRST-CLASS FAMILY RESIDENCE,
and
414 ACRES of RICH AGRICULTURAL LAND.

The Grass Lands throw off an abundance of sweet feeding grasses, whilst the arable, easily worked at all seasons, is most prolific.

THE RESIDENCE containing the following accommodation:—HALL 17 x 6, DRAWING-ROOM 22 x 18, DINING-ROOM 18 x 16, both fitted with fireplaces, ATTACHED BREAKFAST ROOM 15 x 18, Wine Closet and Pantry, FIVE GOOD BEDROOMS, Kitchen, two Servant's Rooms, Scullery, Pantry, Ironing-room and Washhouse; a Verandah entirely surrounds the house. There is an OVERSEER'S COTTAGE of 4 rooms. THE FARM BUILDINGS comprise fine Barn and Sheds, 14 Milking Bails, with Troughs, a 4-stall Stable, with Loft over; also a Trainer's or Harness Room, Fowl, Duck, and Pig Houses, all covered with iron; Boiling-down, Dairy, Washing-up Room with copper, milk-cooler; a capital Well, 60 feet deep, supplied with a never-failing spring; force pump, and every convenience for supplying the F. F. and Ice Company; Horseyard, with bolt for branding cattle or catching colts, &c. There is also a most prolific Orchard, stocked with the choicest of fruit trees.
The LAND itself is of the richest possible character, the flats are black soil, over 16 feet in depth, the hills red loam, yielding to proper cultivation and in ordinary seasons 5 and 6 tons of potatoes to the acre; 200 acres are ready and fit for the plough. The permanent pasture is, generally speaking good, and includes a considerable area of highly valuable meadow lands, producing herbage of a rich feeding character. There is an excellent and never-failing supply of water from a running creek.
For situation, quality of land, and a combination of features essentially necessary to give character and value to a residential property, MARY VALE stands out as offering unusual attractions.
Take the property as a whole, it very strongly recommends itself as an investment for profitable occupation by a gentleman fond of farming and agricultural pursuits or for a stud farm.

TITLE, TORRENS'.

For Sale by Auction, at the HALL OF COMMERCE, SYDNEY,
on
WEDNESDAY, April 1, 1885.

Under instructions from the Mortgagees.

TITLE PERFECT.

BRUNKER and WOLFE have received instructions to sell by auction, at the Hall of Commerce, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, 1st April, 1885, at half-past 2 p.m.,
The famous
OAKLANDS ESTATE,
one of the early selections of the late Geo. Bowman, Esq., and until recently occupied by Alexander Bowman, Esq., in three portions:—
Lot 1—Containing 350a. 3r.
Lot 2—Containing 905a. 0r. 10p.
Lot 3—Containing 10,027a. 0r. 6p.,
Making a total area of 11,062a. 3r. 16p., 7938a. 1r. and 0p. of which are freehold, the residue, 2056a. 2r. 0p. conditionally purchased.

THE IMPROVEMENTS ARE EXTENSIVE AND SUBSTANTIAL.

They comprise—Comfortable dwelling-house, outhouses, garden, stables, horse-boxes, stock and sheep yards, sheds, small cultivation paddocks—in fact everything that is essential to form a complete residence, surrounded by facilities for working the estate efficiently.

The position of "Oaklands," cannot be surpassed. It is centrally situated in one of the very best districts in New South Wales, partially bounded by the Great Northern Railway, and it adjoins the Ravensworth Railway Station and Post-Office, is within a few hours' reach of the metropolis, only a short distance from Singleton, and approximate to Maitland and Muswellbrook, the reputed stock markets of the north.
Its extensive area, combined with its adaptation for either cattle or sheep, and its renowned qualifications for wool-growing, cannot fail under one supervision to render its working highly remunerative. In addition to the supply of water from natural sources, which is bountiful, the run has been improved by the construction of dams at points which concentrate the stock and render the management easy and effectual. The fencing which is extensive, is very substantial, and the subdivision of the estate such as to ensure economy, in time and labour.
The stock now depasturing on the estate may be taken at a valuation, or removed, at the option of the purchaser.
The furniture, plant, working implements, &c., will be sold with the estate, and the value determined in the usual way.

TERMS.—One-fourth cash; the balance to remain secured by mortgage over the property, and to be payable in equal instalments at 2, 3, and 4 years, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

PETER MOLLER'S COD LIVER OIL cannot be excelled, or even equalled. This is evidenced by the continual awards (nineteen) whenever and wherever it is exhibited in competition with the best samples of other makers. The latest proof of this assertion was given at the International Fisheries Exhibition, London, 1883, where some fifty exhibitors were represented, and fine specimens of Oil, from all parts of the world, shown; but PETER MOLLER'S is the ONLY COD LIVER OIL for which the International Jury at the Fisheries Exhibition AWARDED TWO GOLD MEDALS.

By his process the Oil is perfected in one operation. No after manipulation can restore those invaluable qualities which are lost by incautious or careless treatment; any such attempts must tend only to further deteriorate the therapeutic value of the Oil, and can alone be directed to masking a flavour which never should have existed.

The marked characteristics of PETER MOLLER'S Cod Liver Oil are:—
Absolute Purity, Easy Digestibility, Pristine Freshness, Certain Efficacy,
Combined with a very slight but agreeable flavour. In Capsuled Bottles only.

DR. DUSART'S (of Paris) SYRUP OF LACTO-PHOSPHATE OF LIME.
Phosphate of Lime is the substance most necessary to life; indispensable for the formation and nutriment of the bony system as for the transformation of food into muscular fibre. For PALE AND DELICATE CHILDREN suffering from LOSS OF APPETITE, and subject to SCABS, MUMPS, ERUPTIONS of the SKIN, and DEFORMITIES of the LEGS, Dusart's Syrup is the right medicine. It is of inestimable benefit to CONVALESCENTS, WEAK and OLD PEOPLE, and RICKETY CHILDREN, who find in it the CALCAREOUS ELEMENTS—entering into the CONSTITUTION of the BONES—and thus enables children to cut their teeth without convulsions. Well adapted to LADIES in the FAMILY-WAY, WETNURSES (whose milk it enriches), and to stop CHILDREN'S DIARRHŒA.
Sold by all chemists throughout the colonies.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS
FOR CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH.
CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.
The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which, in OUTWARD APPEARANCE, so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.
Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—
1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to EACH PACKET.
2. Each SINGLE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words "John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey," printed thereon.
3. The name Steedman is always spelt with the two EE's.
4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.
Sold in packets by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors at 1s 1½d and 2s 9d each. Sold in Sydney by ELLIOTT BROTHERS.

EAU DE COLOGNE,
4711 4711.
Established 1792.
Gold Medal, Moscow, 1872; Prize Medal, Vienna, 1873.

This Eau de Cologne, so favourably known to the Australian public during the last 35 years, obtained at the last Philadelphia Exhibition the Prize Medal, and First Prize Sydney International Exhibition, for its superior sweetness, strength, and invigorating qualities, excelling all other competitors.
It has become the great favourite of the public, and is extensively patronised by the élite of Europe.
The large and constantly increasing demand for the genuine 4711 Eau de Cologne, not only in Europe, but also in North and South America, India, and Australia, is further undeniable evidence of its superiority.
The public are respectfully warned against numerous spurious imitations with the genuine number—4711 changed into 7411, 1147, 4117, &c., &c.
The real genuine article which carried off the Prize Medal at the Vienna Exhibition is that with the peculiar Gothic blue-and-gold label (different from all the others), and marked 4711.

Wholesale Agents—ELLIOTT BROTHERS, Pitt street, Sydney.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—Times, July 13, 1864.
Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in cholera was chlorodyne.—See Lancet, December 31, 1864.
Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne "is prescribed by scores of orthodox practitioners. Of course it would not be thus singularly popular did it not 'supply a want and fill a place.'"—Medical Times, January 12, 1866.
Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is the best and most certain remedy in cough, colds, asthma, consumption, neuralgia, rheumatism, &c.

GREAT BODILY STRENGTH follows the use of PEPPER'S QUININE and IRON TONIC. By enriching the blood and strengthening the muscular system.

GREAT NERVE STRENGTH follows the use of PEPPER'S QUININE and IRON TONIC. It braces up the weakened nervous system. Each bottle contains 32 doses.

GREAT MENTAL STRENGTH follows the use of PEPPER'S QUININE and IRON TONIC. Repairs the ravages caused by overtaxing the brain power.

GREAT DIGESTIVE STRENGTH follows the use of PEPPER'S QUININE and IRON TONIC, as it strengthens the stomach, stopping sinking sensations, removes indigestion, heartburn, palpitation, &c. By its cordial bitter flavour Pepper's Tonic always increases the appetite; and by its use all necessity for beer, wine, or spirit is avoided. Bottles, containing 32 doses, sold by Chemists; but insist on having Pepper's Tonic, made at Bedford Laboratory, London.

PEPPER'S TARAXACUM and PODOPHYLLIN. A fluid combination for derangement of the liver, particularly when arising from slight congestion. By gently stimulating the action of the liver and slightly moving the bowels, the heavy drowsy feeling, headache, pain beneath the shoulders, at the chest after eating, unpleasant taste in the mouth, and manifold other indications of dyspepsia, are removed. Taraxacum and Podophyllin is much safer than calomel or blue pill. Bottles, 2s 9d and 4s 6d each. Sold by all chemists. Insist that Pepper's is supplied. Made only at Bedford Laboratory, London. It is a most valuable medicine for the colonies.

SKIN DISEASES CURED IN A FEW DAYS.—SULPHOLINE LOTION removes Eruptions, Pimples, Redness, Blotches, Scurf in a few days. It is highly successful in Eczema, Psoriasis, Prurigo, Tetter, &c. It totally destroys deep-seated, inveterate skin affections. Sold everywhere.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—Any one, however deeply and apparently hopelessly afflicted with Skin Disease, should apply Sulpholine as quickly as possible. In two or three days the effect will become evident in a diminished appearance of the malady, a growing tendency to fade away, and complete obliteration of the eruption.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—As a Remedy for Pimples, Blotches, Redness, Rashes, Blemishes, Spots, Roughness, Discolouration, Eczema, Roses, Pityriasis, Scurf, and General Irritability of the skin. Sulpholine acts like a marvel.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—If desiring to have a clear, spotless skin, take care to try Sulpholine. Its beautiful fragrance and freedom from poisons commend it to all. Bottles 2s. 9d. Sold by Chemists. Made by J. Pepper and Co., London.

LOCKYER'S SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER is the safest and best. In a few days it gradually deepens grey or white hair to a perfectly natural shade. Lockyer's surpasses the effect of costly washes. Never disappointing in effect. Guaranteed harmless. Large bottles, 1s 6d. Sold everywhere.

LOCKYER'S SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER produces a perfectly natural colour. The gradual change by scarcely perceptible gradations is certain for removing scurf, beautifying and cleansing the hair, causing it to grow wherever thin and patchy, so ensuring a fine Head of Hair. Lockyer's is unrivalled. Made only in London.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—No expense. When thousands voluntarily assert that this medicine has freed them from formidable diseases which have ruined health and threatened life, there can be no excuse for sufferers who have refused to try it. Sold at 78, New Oxford-street, W.C., London, and all druggists.

INVALID VISITORS to Sydney.—SENIOR'S Pharmacy, 246, George-street, near Bridge-street, the oldest in Australia, is replete with the medicines of the Pharmacopœia, the new preparations not included in it, and all the modern appliances for dispensing. On account of the difficulty in getting careful assistants, the proprietor and his sons are always engaged in the work of manipulation, and have established a peculiar system of dispensing, if anything, superior to what is found in the old country, and which makes a mistake almost impossible. No apprentices kept.

DERMATOLOGY.—JAMES H. ADGER, Dermatologist.
Office: 131, Elizabeth-st., Sydney, treats successfully all diseases of the skin and scalp, loss of hair, premature blanching, and general cultivation and growth of the hair; and, as a result of this experience, he may point to his flattering success during several years' practice in this city, without reference to the many special cures he has effected, as the best proof of the general efficiency of his system of treatment.
Mr. Adger may be consulted at his office, 131, Elizabeth-street, where letters and testimonials are open to inspection, which must satisfy the most sceptical, signed as they are by persons of the highest positions in society. It will be obvious that no person could have obtained such names as an endorsement of his professional ability without constant proof of merit.

ANOTHER UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL FROM THE MEDICAL PROFESSION.
Darby House,
Glebe-road, Sydney, March 4, 1885.
Dear Sirs,—It affords me great pleasure to inform you that I have proved a high opinion of the value of MONK'S NEW ZEALAND HERBAL EXTRACT as a remedy for Infantile Diarrhœa and Dysentery. I prescribed it in teaspoonful doses to children suffering from these complaints, and found it gave immediate relief when other medicine had failed to do the least good. I shall have much pleasure in prescribing it, and have directed our local chemist to keep it in stock. Yours, faithfully,
WILLIAM A. WEST.

Our Stock is always fresh and on the increase. We have just to hand another large shipment of AUSTRIAN FURNITURE, so that we are now in a position to supply any quantity of this well and favourably known Furniture at prices lower than any other house. We will be glad to forward designs and prices post free upon application.
Our £13 10s WALNUT DRAWING-ROOM SUITES—consisting of Couch, 6 Chairs, and 2 Easy Chairs, covered with blue, green, crimson, or marone rep, are of exceptionally good value.
A nice assortment of Occasional Tables, Music Canterburies, Whatnots, Music Stools, and Pianos always in stock.
We upholster all our own Suites, and can therefore guarantee good work. Do not purchase an English suite. The price you pay does not warrant a good article. English suites are got up in an attractive style, for SALE, but not for wear.
We invite inspection. You are not pressed to purchase. Any information we are always glad to give, or send our Book, containing prices and designs, post free, to any part of the colony.

NEUSTADT and CO. invite your inspection
Of the varied stock, well worth attention;
Their furniture the best make and latest design,
Fashion and moderate prices they combine.

You cannot mistake their place—No. 154,
The very next shop adjoining Kidman's new store;
Also, in Oxford-street, No. 39,
They conduct their business on the PAYMENT TIME.

Their stock so large, too numerous to mention—
Of every shape, make, and latest invention;
Carpet and bedstead, and everything you please,
And bedding warranted to keep out the fleas.

Every household requisite, everything you wish—
From tapestry and plush suites down to a pie-dish;
Mirrors and toilet sets, and things in profusion,
Such endless variety—quite a confusion.

They furnish houses with everything replete;
There is no other shop who with them can compete.
For mansions large and for a humble cot
Everything at Neustadt and Co.'s establishment to be got.

If you should take a walk through Oxford-street, pray go
Look to the right, and you will see Neustadt and Co.;
You then return, and looking left the same name meets your eye;
So please step into either shop, and do not pass us by.

For right to left, or left to right, whichever way you go,
You're sure to see, in letters bright, the name Neustadt and Co.;
So please step in and look around our place—
We're sure to please the most fastidious taste.
Competition we defy, no matter where you go;
You can't get better suited than at Neustadt and Co.

WAREHOUSE
TO LET,
with or without Option of Purchase, or
FOR SALE,
COLLINS-STREET WEST, Melbourne.
To Wool Warehousemen, Agency Companies, Grain Merchants, Syndicates, and others.
The undersigned is instructed
TO LET
that extensive property formerly in the occupation of the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, consisting of Warehouse, Offices,
and Detached Buildings, and embracing an area of over Half an Acre of Land.

The premises consist of a massive two-story blue-stone building, in the very best part of Collins-street West, within a short distance of Spencer-street and Flinders-street railway stations, and comprise a large warehouse, wool-sorting and pressing rooms, auction room, counting-house, private offices, skin sheds, stables, outoffices, and all the appurtenances requisite for carrying on a most extensive business.

The facilities for the reception and delivery of wool, grain, and other merchandise are complete.

The land has a frontage of 66ft. to Collins-street, by a depth right through to Little Collins-street, taking in also adjoining allotments which open into lanes on both sides.

About one-quarter acre is unbuilt on, and is so situated that with a very small outlay a large amount of additional accommodation could be acquired.

Further particulars can be obtained from the undersigned, who will also receive applications.
